Memorandum

To: Superintendent, Hoopa Agency

From: Area Director

Subject: Short v. the United States

The decision of the U. S. Supreme Court to deny the petition for a writ of certiorari in the case of Jessie Short et al., v. the United States makes it necessary for this office to institute interim measures for dealing with Hoopa Valley Reservation tribal trust funds and tribal trust income until it hears further from the Trial Judge to whom the Court of Claims remanded the case for further proceedings. Accordingly, this office is proceeding on the following assumptions:

- (1) Hoopa Valley Reservation: A single reservation, as extended by Executive Order on October 16, 1891 by President Benjamin Harrison to include the Square, the Addition, and the Klamath River Reservation.
- (2) Tribal Land: All Indian trust land within the Hoopa Valley Reservation not allotted to Indians.
- (3) Tribal Trust Funds: Tribal money held by the United States Government in the following accounts:

Account 7236. - Proceeds of Labor, Hoopa Valley Indians, California

Account 7736 - Interest and Interest on Accruals, Proceeds of Labor, Hoopa Valley Indians, California

Account 7056 - Proceeds of Klamath River Reservation, California

Account 7556 - Interest and Interest on Accruals, Proceeds of Klamath River Reservation, California

- Account 7153 - Proceeds of Labor, Yurok Indians of Lower Klamath River, California
- Account 7653 - Interest and Interest on Accruals, Proceeds of Labor, Yurok Indians of Lower Klamath River, California
- Account 7154 - Proceeds of Labor, Yurok Indians of Upper Klamath River, California
- Account 7654 - Interest and Interest on Accruals, Proceeds of Labor, Yurok Indians of Upper Klamath River, California

- (4) Tribal Trust Income: Money paid to the United States Government for the sale of Hoopa Valley Reservation tribal resources or use of tribal land from all sources such as: leases, rights-of-way, permits, easements, rentals, fees, licenses, and sale of timber and deposited to one of the accounts in (3) above.
- (5) Hoopa Valley Tribe: Those persons on the Hoopa Valley Tribal Roll and eligible to be on the roll on June 30, 1974, and numbering 1405. (Note: This office does recognize that the number may increase or decrease as Hoopa Valley Tribe tribal membership applications are processed by the Hoopa Valley Tribe).
- (6) Plaintiffs: Those persons who are plaintiffs in the case and numbering 3323. (Note: The plaintiff number is considered, at this time, this office's best guide as to those persons who may be found entitled to recover as an Indian of the reservation by the Court of Claims. We recognize that the number may be more by intervention in the case by others who are not plaintiffs, or less, as eligibility standards are set by the court and applied to the plaintiff list. A count was made of the persons who stated their identity as Yuroks on their applications for the California Judgment fund and the number was within two of the above; 3321. Here again, there are persons on the roll who are not listed as plaintiffs, but the possibility remains that they may wish to establish their entitlement by intervention in the case and may be successful in so doing. This office recognizes, as stated above, that the number of plaintiffs entitled to recover as an Indian of the Reservation may be more or less than the number of plaintiffs listed in the complaint; however, it is this office's view that the number of plaintiffs listed in the complaint is the best number available for use at this time).

The purpose of establishing the number for the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the number for plaintiffs is for the division of Hoopa Valley Reservation Tribal Trust Funds and Tribal Trust Income. This division is made on a percentage basis as follows:

Hoopa Valley Tribal Members	-	1405
Plaintiffs	-	3323
TOTAL	-	4728
Percent of Hoopa Valley Tribal Members to Total	-	30%
Percent of Plaintiffs to Total	-	70%

Commencing with the date of this memorandum, Hoopa Valley Reservation Tribal Trust Funds and Tribal Trust Income shall be handled by this office in the following manner:

30% of the total of Hoopa Valley Reservation Tribal Trust Funds is available for the Hoopa Valley Tribe, as well as 30% of subsequent Hoopa Valley Reservation Tribal Trust Income for its use in accordance with approved Hoopa Valley Tribe tribal budgets. 70% of the total of Hoopa Valley Reservation Tribal Trust Funds and 70% of subsequent Hoopa Valley Reservation Tribal Trust Income is set aside in a separately held tribal account for the Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation pending determination by the court of eligibility of plaintiffs to recover as an Indian of the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

Unaffected by the issuance of this memorandum, are the continued political and economic activities of the Hoopa Valley Business Council, the Hoopa Valley General Council, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Peter H. Masten, Jr., Chairman

Dear Mr. Masten:

In response to your letter of March 10, 1975, you are correct in assuming that the 70% of the Hoopa Valley Reservation tribal trust funds and trust income which the Bureau of Indian Affairs has set aside for the Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation is not being held in trust solely for the benefit of the plaintiffs in Jessie Short, et al. v. United States, No. 102-63, United States Court of Claims. The 70% of the tribal trust funds and trust income which is presently set aside is being held in trust for all Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation. Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation, by definition, include the Indians of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

The reason for the Bureau's withholding of the 70% is twofold - to protect the United States from an enlarged judgment in the Short case and to enable the United States to carry out its trust responsibilities owed to all Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation. Judge David Schwartz, the trial judge in the Short case, in his memorandum of pretrial conference of May 17, 1974, cautioned that any overpayments to the Hoopa Valley Tribe could lead to double or individual liability once judgment is rendered.

The decision to withhold 70% of the trust funds and trust income from distribution was based upon various sources available to the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Among those sources were the data from various California Judgment Rolls, the Bureau's allotment records from the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Bureau's tribal and membership rolls from the Hoopa Valley Reservation, and the number of plaintiffs enumerated in the Short case.

RECEIVED

HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE

It was determined that by withholding 70% of the trust funds and trust income the United States should be able to protect itself from further liability for the mismanagement of trust funds from the Reservation and that the Bureau would be able to carry out its trust responsibilities to all of the Indians of the Reservation by making proper investment of the funds so withheld.

Sincerely yours,

William E. Fernald

To: The Hoopa & Yurok People of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation

From: Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs

The purpose of this message is to indicate to you, the Hoopa and Yurok people, a course of action which I propose to take in order to resolve the dispute over the use and benefit of the Hoopa Valley Reservation and remove the impediments to self-determination by Indian people in its management.

In view of the Department of the Interior's responsibilities regarding the people and resources of the Reservation, I recently directed my staff to take a fresh look at the entire history of the matter, including the past practices and policies of the Department. On the basis of this study, certain conclusions have been reached which point to a definite course of action. I know that you share my hope that this will result in a just resolution of the longstanding conflict and in the fair and proper use of the resources of the Reservation.

As you know, the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation was established for Indian purposes by Executive Orders authorized by an Act of Congress. The Executive Order of 1891 established its present boundaries. In 1958, the Solicitor's Office of the Interior Department advised the Bureau of Indian Affairs that the Square was separate from the Extension and that the Hoopa Valley Tribe was entitled to exclusive use of and benefits from Reservation resources from the Square. However, in 1973, the Court of Claims in Jessie Short, et al v. United States decided that the Square and Extension were one Indian Reservation. In 1974, the Supreme Court declined to review the Court of Claims decision.

The fresh assessment of the overall controversy has focused attention on the obligations of the Department of the Interior in this matter, given the fact that the Reservation is subject to the administration of the Secretary of the Interior for Indian purposes. One of these obligations is for the Secretary to remove all doubt about who is entitled to use and benefit from the Reservation and to formally designate the Indian beneficiaries. It is my intention to designate the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe as the Indians of the Reservation who are entitled to use and benefit from the Reservation and its resources.

The membership of the Hoopa Tribe is known. The membership of the Yurok Tribe is yet to be established, and membership standards and criteria have yet to be developed and announced. To the extent possible the membership of the Yurok Tribe will be constructed along lines similar to those used during the construction of the membership of the Hoopa Tribe, with the result that members of both Tribes will include some Indian people who are not necessarily of Hoopa or Yurok blood.

In the future, the Department of the Interior will deal and work with each Tribe and its governing body as separate entities on matters of exclusive concern to each. In the case of the Hoopa Tribe this means that certain of their current constitutional powers relating to management of Reservation assets will be limited and their constitution should be amended accordingly.

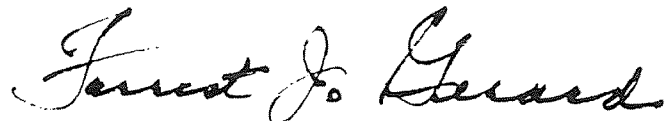

However, since both Tribes are entitled to share in the Reservation assets, a mutually agreeable arrangement will necessarily be developed for managing these assets and otherwise dealing with the range of matters affecting the Reservation as a whole. Until such time as a Reservation-wide management and coordination body or similar organization can be established, it is necessary for the Department of the Interior through my office to assume complete management of the Reservation assets on behalf of both Tribes. In so doing, a temporary moratorium is placed on all per capita payments as of February 1, 1979.

The first step in establishing a Reservation-wide management and coordination body is the organization of the Yurok Tribe. So that this may occur, I have directed that work begin immediately on a Yurok voters list and that the Yurok voters shall be accorded the opportunity to nominate and select an interim Yurok Committee. The Department will deal and work with this Committee under a temporary grant of authority so that as soon as possible they might avail themselves of those benefits afforded to Indian tribes. However, we foresee that the Committee's primary responsibility will be to draft a proposed Yurok Tribal constitution. This document would then be placed before the Yurok people for their adoption or rejection in an election called for that purpose by the Secretary of the Interior. Once the Yurok Tribe is formally organized and functioning in accordance with its governing document, its membership roll may be certified. After certification of the roll, I will make trust funds available for the use of the Yurok Tribe which have been set aside since 1974. Subject to the usual Secretarial approval, these funds may be used for per capita payments or other purposes, as the Yurok Tribe may determine.

The present 70%/30% split of Reservation trust income will continue until February 1, 1979, when a single Reservation account will be established. When the Reservation-wide body is formally established, it will determine, under this general trust authority of the Secretary, the use of funds flowing into this account. Until this Reservation-wide body is established, only the amount necessary for essential organizational and administrative purposes of the Tribes will be made available in amounts approved by the Secretary. No per capita payments will be made from this account until the Reservation-wide body is established.

This course of action is consistent with my commitment to the people of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation to do all within my power to assist you in your attainment of self-determination goals and responsibilities. It embodies the indispensable first steps toward the realization of self-determination on the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

SUBJECT : Questions with Respect to Hoopa Valley Reservation Settlement as Proposed in H.R. 4469

This responds to your request to provide a memorandum concerning the Hoopa Valley Reservation dispute settlement proposed in H.R. 4469 as amended by the substitute, a draft of which you enclosed. What follows is an analysis of three specific questions posed by the Committee; a summary appears on the final pages of the memorandum and on a separate page attached for your convenience.

Before proceeding to the questions we will briefly set forth the major provisions of the proposal:

H.R. 4469 as amended

If Hoopa Valley Tribe adopts a resolution to the effect, the Hoopa Valley Reservation is to be partitioned: the Square to the Hoopa Valley Tribe; the Extension to be established as the Yurok Reservation (including National Forest lands and parts of Yurok Experimental Forest), with $5,000,000 authorized for additions.

The Short v. United States (Ct. Cl. No. 102-63) litigation would not be affected.

Claims would be barred 210 days after partition or 120 days after publication of option election data. Yurok claim could be barred by tribal waiver or by expiration of 180 days after the general council meeting.

"Indians of Reservation" roll is to be established; that, together with Hoopa Valley tribal roll, is to constitute settlement roll. Persons listed on settlement roll are to be accorded right to choose: Hoopa Valley Tribe membership (provided other qualifications are met: 18 years of age, meeting Short Hoopa Valley criteria, and residence or property on the Square); Yurok Tribe membership (with $3,000 cash payment); or lump sum, $20,000, payment. Choice effects renunciation of assets of tribe not chosen or, in the case of choice of lump sum payment, any tribal assets. The settlement fund is to be divided between the tribes on a pro-rata basis. After payment of these sums to individual Yuroks from escrow accounts, remainder (including accumulating interest) (plus $10,000,000 authorized to be appropriated) is to be divided between the tribes equally. These sums are to be held in trust by the United States for the benefit for each tribe, not to be distributed per capita until the expiration of ten years. (There is also a provision authorizing up to $3,500,000 million annual expenditure from the fund to be paid to the Hoopa Tribe for tribal purposes.)

The Settlement Roll is to consist of eligible "Indians of the Reservation" who can qualify under Short, "living on the date of enactment, citizens of the United States, who are not enrolled members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Those choosing Yurok Tribal membership are permitted to join in forming tribe, which may be organized under the Indian Reorganization Act. Secretary is to convene a general council of eligible Yurok Tribe members, who are to nominate members of an Interim Council and to vote on waiving any claim against the United States. Interim Council is empowered to appoint a committee to draft tribal constitution and is to expire upon its adoption or at the end of 2 years.

Essentially, this proposal would effect a division of the present Hoopa Valley Reservation into two Indian reservations: one portion, the Square, a timber rich area, to be held in trust for the Hoopa Valley Tribe, who apparently are currently the chief residents of the Square; the other portion, the Extension, to be held in trust for the Yuroks, who are to include the "Indians of the Reservation," the successful plaintiffs in Short v. United States (Claims Court Docket No. 102-63).

You have asked three questions regarding this proposal:

1. What is the legal nature of the interest of persons qualifying as "Indians of the Reservation" in the tribal or communal resources of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, prior to any individualization of such resources?

2. What is the scope of Congressional power over tribal communal property of Indian reservations; membership in Indian tribes; and individual rights to participate in such tribal or communal property?

3. In view of the plenary power of Congress over Indian affairs and its role as guardian of Indian tribes in view of the responses to questions 1 and 2 above, does Congress have power to deal with the tribal or communal property and assets of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation as proposed in H.R. 4469 as amended by the substitute?

We shall attempt to confine our response to those questions and address them in order, avoiding tangential matters, however important their impact upon the proposal. We will, however, supply a brief background, derived from court opinions, in an attempt to set the framework within which your questions and the legislation arise.

Historical and Legal Background. Generally, the situation that exists today on the Hoopa Valley Reservation is a product of the interaction between legal doctrines and historical or political realities. The reservation evolved from two reservations joined because of a legal limitation on the number of reservations that could be established in California. On this reservation were settled Indians whose traditional organization was either non-existent in the tribal sense or so loose as to fail to make its presence felt in dealings with the federal government. Although there is evidence that the federal government recognized that because the two reservations had been joined members of both units had legal interest in the entire reservation, there is also evidence that the federal government made efforts to segregate the two sections of the reservation. The eventual organization of the Indians on the reservation into a formal tribal government was in some sense federally inspired and it was centered on one part of the reservation, the Square, wherein resided the primary resource of the reservation, its timber. Indians of the Extension, the other part of the reservation, successfully brought suit in the Court of Claims for damages based on the amount of timber proceeds they would have received had the distribution been equitable in their view. These plaintiffs had been excluded from participation in the tribal government of the Square and excluded from federal per capita distributions of timber proceeds. These plaintiffs included both residents and non-residents of the reservation who qualified as "Indians of the Reservation," based on a test analogous to the membership requirements of the organized tribal government of the reservation.

This test was used in the Short¹ case, which currently involves the process of deciding which of the over 3,000 plaintiffs was entitled to receive a per capita share of timber proceeds already distributed.

The specifics of how that situation developed are briefly as follows. The Hoopa Valley Reservation as it exists today is shaped like "a square skillet with an extraordinarily long handle."² The square section (hereinafter, the Square) derives from the original Hoopa Valley Reservation; the handle or extension (hereinafter the Extension) section derives from a reservation, one mile wide on either bank of the Klamath River, set aside for Indians living on the lower Klamath, primarily the Yuroks, and a connecting strip of land linking it to the Hoopa Valley Reservation. In 1864, by statute the President was authorized to set aside reservations for the Indians of California pursuant to the Act of April 8, 1864, 12 Stat 39, 40, which read, in pertinent part:

Sec. 2. That there shall be set apart by the President, and at his discretion, not exceeding four tracts of land, within the limits of said state, to be retained by the United States for the purposes of Indian reservations, which shall be of suitable extent for the accommodation of the Indians of said state....And provided, further, That said tracts to be set apart as aforesaid may, or may not, as in the discretion of the President be deemed for the best interests of the Indians to be provided for, include any of the Indian reservations heretofore set apart in said state, and that in case any such reservation is so included, the same may be enlarged to such an extent as in the opinion of the President may be necessary, in order to its complete adaptation to the purposes for which it is intended.

By executive order of June 23, 1876, President Grant set aside the Hoopa Valley reservation as follows:

It is hereby ordered that [description of metes and bounds follows]...be, and hereby are, declared to be the exterior boundaries of Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, and the land embraced therein, an area of 89,572.43 acres, be, and hereby is, withdrawn from public sale, and set apart for Indian purposes, as one of the Indian reservations authorized to be set apart, in California, by act of Congress approved April 8, 1864.³

That executive order pertained to the square part of the current Hoopa Valley Reservation. It has been described as "a 12-mile square tract of land in Northern California, on the last reach of the Trinity River before it joins the Klamath River."⁴ Another reservation had been established by executive order along the Klamath River on November 16, 1855, pursuant to the Act of March 3, 1853, 10 Stat. 226, 238) as amended by the Act of March 3, 1855. 10 Stat. 686, 699. The 1853 legislation, as amended, authorized the President to set aside "five [subsequently seven] military reservations from the public domain in the State of California or the Territories of Utah and New Mexico bordering on said State, for Indian purposes." 10 Stat. 226, 238. By the 1855 executive order President Franklin Pierce ratified the Department of Interior recommendation for a "Klamath Reservation," a "strip of territory commencing at the Pacific Ocean and extending 1 mile in width on each side of the Klamath River."⁵

After the 1864 act restricted the President's authority to establishing no more than four California reservations, no definitive action was taken with respect to the Klamath Reservation⁶ akin to the June 23, 1876, executive order pertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation. The Department of the Interior, however, continued to treat the Klamath River Reservation as a legitimate reservation. In 1888 the federal courts ruled that the Klamath Reservation was not Indian country because it had not been set aside pursuant to the 1864 act.⁷

Subsequently, on October 16, 1891, an executive order⁸ extended the Hoopa Valley Reservation "so as to include a tract of country one mile in width on each side of the Klamath River, and extending from the present limits of the said Hoopa Valley reservation to the Pacific Ocean." Lands to which other valid rights attached were excluded. The Supreme Court in Donnelly v. United States,⁹ a case requiring a decision on whether the former Klamath River Reservation was Indian country for jurisdictional purposes, upheld the extension of Hoopa Valley Reservation to include the Klamath River Reservation as within the power conferred upon the executive by the Act of 1864. In Mattz v. Arnett,¹⁰ the Court indicated its view of the rationale for the 1892 act:

The reason for incorporating the Klamath River Reservation in the Hoopa Valley Reservation is apparent. The 1864 Act had authorized the President to 'set apart' no more than four tracts for Indian reservations in California. By 1876, and certainly by 1891, four reservations already had been so set apart. These were the Round valley, ...the Mission, the Hoopa Valley, and the Tule River....Thus, recognition of a fifth reservation along the Klamath River was not permissible under the 1864 Act. Accordingly, the President turned to his authority under the Act [of 1864] to expand an existing, recognized reservation. He [President Benjamin Harrison] enlarged the Hoopa Valley Reservation to include what had been the Klamath River Reservation as well as an intervening riparian strip connecting the two tracts. The President's continuing authority so to enlarge reservations and, specifically, the legality of the 1891 Executive Order, was affirmed by this Court in Donnelly v. United States....

An Act of June 17, 1892, 27 Stat. 52, permitted opening the former Klamath River Reservation up to settlement with provision for Indian allotments as follows:

Provided That any Indian now located upon said reservation may, at any time within one year from the passage of this act, apply to the Secretary of the Interior for an allotment of land for himself and, if the head of a family, for the members of his family, under the provisions of the act of February eighth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, [the General Allotment Act]...and, if found entitled thereto, shall have the same allotted as provided in said act or any act amendatory thereof.¹¹

There was a further provision that the funds realized from the sale of land were to "be used under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior for the maintenance and education of the Indians now residing on said lands and their children."¹²

Surveying had begun on the Square and temporary allotments made on the basis of authority issued on November 29, 1887,¹³ under the authority of the General Allotment Act of February 8, 1887, as amended by the Act of February 23, 1891.¹⁴ Allotments on the Connecting Strip were not specifically authorized under the 1892 legislation, but were authorized by the President under authority of the General Allotment Act.¹⁵ Allotments were made to Indians residing on each of the portions of the Hoopa Valley Reservation;

first, to those on the Extension¹⁶; then to those on the Connecting Strip; and, finally the process of making allotments to those on the Square began.¹⁷ In 1922, 365 allotments on the Square were approved; by 1932, when a survey indicated that there was relatively little land on the reservation suitable for allotment, i.e., agricultural purposes, there were about 600 Indians on the Square and Connecting Strip who might seek allotments.¹⁸ Some allotments were made in 1933 but at that time, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs gave orders to cease making allotments because of the possibility that "Indians of the Connecting Strip and the Lower Klamath Strip (which he called the 'former Klamath River Reservation') would all be equally entitled to allotment on the Square (which he termed the 'original Hoopa Valley Reservation'), and the available agricultural and grassland would be sufficient for so small a number of those qualified as to work injustice."¹⁹ Overall, the allotments that had been made were made to Hoopas on the Square and Yuroks on the Extension with a few Yuroks on the Square and Hoopas on the Extension, mainly those who had ties by blood or residence.²⁰ According to the Court of Claims:

In connection with the allotment program, officials of the Indian Office on a number of occasions ruled that

Indians of the Addition²¹ and the Square--Klamaths and Hoopas and others--were equally entitled to rights in the entire reservation as enlarged and, specifically, in the Square.²²

The tribal organization of the Indians settled on the Hoopa Valley Reservation was not maintained into the twentieth century²³, prompting the Department of the Interior to convene a council in 1915 for allotment purposes.²⁴ That council apparently fell out of use for by 1930, no council existed.²⁵ In 1933 a business council, with purely advisory powers, limited to the Square and to the Hoopas, was established with the approval of the Interior

²³ In 1958, the Deputy Solicitor of the Department of the Interior apprised the Commissioner of Indian Affairs as follows:

A group of Indians had been politically recognized as a Hoopa tribe by the United States as early as 1851 when a treaty was negotiated with the 'Hoo-pah' or, as they were sometimes otherwise called, the Trinity River Indians. Although this treaty was never ratified, it is convincing evidence of the existence of a Hoopa tribal group. Later this tribal group exercised the rudiments of community government over the Indians of an area comprising the twelve mile square original Hoopa Valley reservation and were thus qualified for political recognition as a tribe occupying the reserved area. We have seen no evidence, or contention, that any other tribal group claimed, at that time any governmental or economic jurisdiction over the twelve mile square area of the original Hoopa Valley Reservation.

Department; a similar council for the Indians along the Klamath River was also established with a subordinate role.²⁶ Since comparable powers were not approved for the Klamath council, it eventually disappeared.²⁷ The constitution and by-laws of the Hoopa Valley Business Council were approved on November 20, 1933; no indication of the extent of its jurisdiction was indicated.²⁸ Members were elected from districts in the Square, Indians of Yurok and Karok blood have been elected to the council; and the council treated of matters having reservation wide impact.²⁹ Enrollment and membership qualifications, however, were related to the Square.³⁰ When the government distributed proceeds of timber harvested on the Square, it limited the per capita payments to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.³¹ In 1958, the Deputy Solicitor of the Department of the Interior ruled that "no Indians other than those entitled as members of the Hoopa Tribe of the original 12-mile square reservation and their descendants, have rights of participation in the communal property on that part of the Hoopa Valley Reservation."³² Speaking of ³¹ Three accounts were created for trust funds held by the United States; one for the lower Klamath River Yurok Indians, one for the upper Klamath River Yuroks, and one for the "Hoopa Valley Indians." Beginning in 1955, upon resolutions of the Hoopa Valley Business Council, the Secretary of the Interior made per capita distributions to the Indians on the official roll of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. the Indians of the Extension, the Deputy Solicitor said:

The Klamath River Indians, whose ancestors formerly resided on the Klamath River Reservation, have consistently been regarded as an identifiable tribe by the Federal Government....These Indians are also included in the general term 'Yurok' meaning downstream Indians although a Yurok Tribe, as such was not organized until recent years.³³ The 'Yurok Tribe' has never been recognized as having jurisdiction over any part of the 'Hoopa Extension' because its membership is not confined to reservation Indians.³⁴

As part of that ruling the Deputy Solicitor found that the 1876 executive order had vested property rights in the reservation in the Hoopa Valley Indians which could not be disturbed by the incorporation of the Klamath River Reservation and its Yurok Indians into the Hoopa Valley Reservation in 1891. The Department, thus, continued to distribute timber proceeds from the Square to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Those distributions were challenged by the filing of the Short litigation by plaintiffs representing themselves to be affiliated with the Extension and the Connecting Strip. Eventually, the Court of Claims ruled that the 1864 Act was so worded that no tribe settled on one of the reservations authorized thereby "could obtain vested rights to the exclusion of another group or tribe of Indians thereafter authorized by the President to share in the benefits of the reservation."³⁵ It further ruled that "[t]he Hoopas were not the sole occupants of the Square, either in aboriginal times or thereafter,"³⁶ and that "the evidence is abundant that the reservation was intended, from the outset, for the accommodation of numbers of tribes of Northern California, including the Klamaths, such as might reside there with Presidential approval...."³⁷ It also found that:

³³ The Deputy Solicitor seems to be speaking of the Yurok Tribal Organization, which was not a federally recognized tribe, and, thus, may have been merely a social organization. In Short v. United States, 202 Ct. Cl. 870, 958 (finding 132), the Court of Claims described this organization as "a California corporation,...formed in 1949 to represent and promote the interests of all persons of Yurok ancestry, a group described as native to and resident of the Klamath River Basin, an area larger than the Addition." According to the Deputy Solicitor, the organization was "recognized for the purposes for which it was formed namely 'to promote the cultural, social, educational and economical well being of members of the Yurok Tribe.'" 65 I.D. 59, 64, n.3; II Opinions of the Solicitor, Department of the Interior, Indian Affairs 1814, 1817, quoting a Letter from Assistant Commissioner to Mrs. Lowana Brantner, November 26, 1954.

President Grant's order of June 23, 1876, establishing the Hoopa Valley Reservation 'as one of the Indian reservations authorized to be set apart in California by act of Congress approved April 8, 1864'...established the reservation not for any specific tribe or tribes, none having been mentioned in the order, but for such tribes as might reside or settle there, then or thereafter, with the approval of the President, and the tribes as were then resident upon it were subject to further exercise of Presidential authority under the act with respect to the reservation.³⁸

Finally, the court found that the 1891 executive order created "an enlarged reservation in which the Indians of the original reservation and the Indians of the added tracts would have equal rights in common."³⁹

In subsequent proceedings in the Short litigation, the Court of Claims refused to permit the government to substitute the Yurok Tribe for the Short plaintiffs,⁴⁰ and held that under the federal Indian timber statutes⁴¹

directing use of timber proceeds for Indians "who are members of the tribe or tribes concerned," the individual Short plaintiffs were entitled to distribution since the term "tribe" was not a term denominating a particular Indian organization but a means of designating the Indians who had a communal interest in the timber property,⁴² and that the Short plaintiffs had no claim upon the funds distributed to the Hoopa Valley Tribe since they were suing as individuals.⁴³

It is important to note that the Short litigation deals with a statutory right under the Indian timber statutes and that it involves individuals suing as individuals not Indian tribes suing as tribes. It is also noteworthy for what it does not test--i.e., whether there is a vested interest in the reservation land, deprivation of which could entail a Fifth Amendment claim for just compensation for a taking. What it has decided, however, is that individuals, mainly associated with the Connecting Strip or the Extension, whose interest in the Hoopa Valley Reservation is analogous to that of members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe whose interest is associated with the Square, are entitled under federal statutes to a distribution of proceeds of timber harvested on the Square on a par with any per capita distribution to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Having set forth the main provisions of the proposed legislation as well as the basic historical and legal context in which it arises, we proceed to analyzing the specific questions that have been presented with respect to the proposal.

1. The Legal Nature of the Interest of Persons Qualifying as "Indians of the Reservation" in the Tribal or Communal Resources of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, Prior to Any Individualization of Such Resources. In order to discuss the legal nature of the interest of persons qualifying as "Indians of the Reservation" in the Tribal or Communal Resources of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, prior to any individualization of such resources, it is necessary to: (1) identify "Indians of the Reservation," (2) identify the extent to which the courts in the recent Hoopa Valley litigation have dealt with the question, (3) discuss how the courts have treated this question generally, and (4) predict how the courts would treat the question with regard to the Hoopa Valley situation.

A. "Indians of the Reservation." In the 1973 Court of Claims decision in the Short case, the Court of Claims ruled that the Hoopa Valley Reservation constituted a single unit and that Indians of the reservation were entitled to share in any per capita distribution of timber harvested from the Square. Since the United States was found to have acted arbitrarily in restricting the distribution of this property to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe it was liable in damages to any of the Short plaintiffs who could show that they were "Indians of the Reservation." The term, "Indians of the Reservation," therefore, has two meanings, one applicable generally with respect to the Hoopa Valley Reservation and one applicable to Short plaintiffs.

B. How the question was treated in recent Hoopa Valley litigation. The central question before the Court of Claims in Short was whether individual plaintiffs claiming ties to the Hoopa Valley Reservation by virtue of having been settled or descended from settlers on the Extension were entitled to participate in distributions of income from the Square. Since the statute required that such income be used for the benefit of Indians "who are members of the tribe or tribes concerned,"⁴⁴ the Court had to decide what tribes were concerned. It decided that by virtue of the Executive Order of 1891, "all the Indians of the reservation as thereby extended--Addition and Square--got equal rights in the enlarged reservation and thus that the rights of Indians of the Addition are equal to those of the Indians of the Square, the Hoopa Valley Tribe or any other Indians of the Reservation."⁴⁵ The term, "Indians of the Reservation," may thus mean any Indian or tribe that has any rights in the reservation. In Short, the term also denotes the "non-Hoopa Indians residing on or connected with the reservation...entitled to equal rights in the division of timber profits (and other income) from the unallotted trust land of the reservation."⁴⁶

It does not appear that any court has decided explicitly what tribes have rights in the reservation. In Short, the United States attempted to substitute the Yurok tribe for the plaintiffs to no avail.⁴⁷ The Claims Court has, however, decided that the Short plaintiffs have no right to claim a share of any payments made by the United States to the Hoopa Valley tribe.⁴⁸

⁴⁸ Short v. United States, 12 Cl. Ct. 36 (1987).

During the course of the Short litigation, the Court of Claims and its successor, the Claims Court, have ruled on tangential issues and have detailed the history of the Hoopa Valley Reservation, explicating the meaning of the various pertinent statutes and executive order. The focus in that case, however, was whether the individual plaintiffs as individuals had a legal claim to share in per capita distributions. No attempt was made to decide what tribal rights were involved in the reservation itself or what individual rights were involved in other property of the reservation, other than the timber proceeds to which there was a statutory right.

In related litigation,⁴⁹ individual plaintiffs have somewhat successfully challenged the authority of the Hoopa Business Council to manage the resources of the reservation without the participation of other "Indians of the reservation." The situation is described as follows:

Other Indians of the reservation, such as plaintiffs, are not eligible for membership in the Hoopa tribe and are not represented by the Hoopa Business Council. Most of these Indians live on the reservation's 'Addition' or 'Extension' along the Klamath river, or in other places distant from the Square, and many of them trace their origin to the Yurok tribe or other historic Indian groups. They have no council or governing body, do not view themselves as a separate tribe or tribes, and have resisted the government's efforts to have them organize themselves as a tribe. Plaintiffs are among these Indians of the reservation, but they sue as individuals, not on behalf of the class of all non-Hoopa Indians of the reservation.⁵⁰

Since less than one third of the Indians of the reservation belong to the Hoopa tribe, the interests of the majority of Indians are not represented by any tribal organization. Despite this, the government pursued its policy of strengthening tribal self-government by working closely with the Hoopa Business Council in administering the reservation. People not represented by the Hoopa Business Council came to believe that the government's administration of the reservation in conjunction with the HBC was unfair. They claimed that the government was allowing the Hoopa tribe to enrich itself, denying non-Hoopa Indians a fair share of income from reservation resources, administering social services in a discriminatory manner, and denying non-Hoopa Indians a voice in reservation government.⁵¹

In responding to the plaintiffs' claim for a greater voice in the management of the reservation, the defendants, i.e., the United States, the Department of the Interior, and other federal defendants as well as the Hoopa Business Council, advanced the argument that the reservation was owned by tribes. The court interpreted the 1864 act as conferring "continuing executive discretion to locate any tribe or tribes thereon [on any of the reservations established under the act] and to change the boundaries of the reservation,"⁵² and as having an "intent to create the reservation for tribes, not exclusively for the Hoopa tribe."⁵³

The court acknowledged "that Congress continued to view the reservation, and reservations in general, as tribally enjoyed," and that "executive administration of the reservation from the time of its creation forward is consistent with the tribal premise."⁵⁴ The court, however, said, that "plaintiffs are Indians of the reservation, which necessarily means that they trace their origins to one or another of the Indian tribes or groups for whose benefit the reservation was created."⁵⁵ It found that "the reservation is indeed tribally enjoyed, and plaintiffs can make no claim for individual, severable shares of its land or resources....it does not follow that plaintiffs, as Indians of the reservation, have no standing to claim a right to share in the communal enjoyment of the reservation."⁵⁶ Because the plaintiffs were not suing as a tribe or as tribal representative, the court had to rule on their claims as individuals.⁵⁷

In reaching the merits of the plaintiffs' case, the court first ruled that Congress had set a policy of tribal self-government that was furthered by the Department of Interior's according the Hoopa Business Council authority in reservation matters. Moreover, since such broad discretion was conferred upon the Department, the court could not enjoin it from permitting the Hoopa Business Council to continue to exercise management functions. Looking to the Short findings the court also set up four essential principles to guide it:

1. The Square and the Addition constitute one unified reservation for the purpose of distributing income from unallotted trust lands of the Reservation to 'Indians of the Reservation';
2. There are no tribes on the Hoopa Valley Reservation having vested rights to the income from unallotted trust lands on the Reservation;

3. The Indians of the Reservation hold equal rights to income from unallotted trust lands of the Reservation; and

4. The United States Department of the Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs, acted arbitrarily in recognizing only the persons on the official roll of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as the persons entitled to the income from the unallotted trust lands on the Square.⁵⁸

Proceeding from this base, the court concluded that "the government has a duty to allow all Indians of a reservation to benefit from reservation resources and to participate in self-government, on a non-discriminatory basis"⁵⁹ and that "the 1864 Act and subsequent legislative and executive actions do impose on federal defendants a duty to administer the reservation for the use and benefit of all Indians of the reservation."⁶⁰ Finally, the court ruled:

The federal defendants may not dispense funds for any projects or services that do not benefit all Indians of the reservation in a nondiscriminatory manner....

Federal defendants must retain supervisory authority over all spending of reservation funds, to assure that they are used for purposes which benefit non-Hoopa as well as Hoopa Indians of the reservation. To fulfill the responsibility, federal defendants must develop and implement a process to receive and take account of the opinions of non-Hoopas on the proper use of reservation funds.⁶¹

The federal government is, thus, under order in the Puzz case to inaugurate a procedure for participation in reservation management by all Indians of the reservation. A plan was submitted to the court, given "conditional approval," on June 20, 1988, subject to briefing and oral argument. The United States

Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit denied a request for a stay on August 9, 1988.⁶²

The Puzz case, thus, does not involve any findings on the question of whether the Indians of the reservation have any vested rights in the reservation as against Congressional action. It merely has decided that based on the wording of the executive orders and the 1864 statute, the Department of the Interior is under an obligation to administer the reservation for the benefit of all of its Indians, rather than to funnel most of the resources to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

It, thus, is clear that neither the Short decisions or the Puzz decision squarely address the central question of whether any Indians or tribes have any vested rights in the Hoopa Valley Reservation or its resources. Each case has had before it a specific question of statutory and executive order interpretation. Each has concluded that the reservation was founded for no particular Indian tribe but that it was set aside for the Indians of California and that any Indians settled upon the reservation were entitled to share in the reservation resources equally. To the Short court that meant that per capita distributions of timber revenues could not be denied Indians legitimately connected with the reservation. Using the Short rationale the Puzz court concluded that the statutes and executive orders placed a duty on the Department of the Interior to treat all reservation Indians equally in terms of having input into the management of the reservation. No court has held that any of the Indians of the reservation can compel the individualization of the assets of the reservation. Indeed, in Short, the court refused to compel the government to pay damages to the individual plaintiffs to make up for the fiscal disbursements to the Hoopa Tribe that had no parallel in payments to the other Indians of the reservation.

C. How the courts have treated the question in general. In general, tribal property is held to be communal property, to which individual members have a right to participate in any distribution, but no right to compel individualization as would tenants in common.⁶³ In The Cherokee Trust Funds⁶⁴ case, the Supreme Court stated that although Indian tribal lands are owned communally, "that does not mean that each member had such an interest, as a tenant in common that he could claim a pro rata share of the proceeds of sales made of any part of them." Another description of the interest of individual members in tribal property is as follows:

In the absence of legislation to the contrary, the individual Indian has no right as against the tribe to any specific part of the tribal property. It is often said that the individual has only a 'prospective right' to future income from tribal property in which he has no present interest. Other terms used to picture this right are 'an inchoate interest,' and a 'float.' These terms aptly characterize the intangible right of the Indian to share in tribal property. Until the property loses its tribal character and becomes individualized, his right can be no more than this, except insofar as federal law, tribal law, or tribal custom may give him a more definite right of occupancy in a particular tract. In the case of tribal funds, he has, ordinarily, no vested right in them until they have been paid over to him or have been set over to his credit, perhaps subject to certain restrictions. In the case of lands, he has no vested right unless the land or some designated interest therein has been set aside for him either severally or as tenants in common.⁶⁵

In addition to the question of whether individuals have rights in tribal or communal property, there is in this instance an issue of whether there is any communal compensable property. The question of whether there are compensable rights in executive order reservations is not completely settled. There are cases holding that such reservations give rise to no compensable rights.⁶⁶ Arguments have been made, however, that "Congress has acted in a number of ways to assure that title to many executive order reservations stands on the same footing as title to reservations created by treaty or statute."⁶⁷ It is possible that Congress has, thus, barred the executive from disturbing interests in executive order reservations but retains for itself the authority to confirm them or to alter their limits.⁶⁸

A statute exists that could be used to test whether the United States would have to pay damages for a taking in connection with an unconfirmed executive order reservation. Section 1505 of title 28, allows the Claims Court to hear "any claim against the United States accruing after August 13, 1946, in favor of any tribe, band, or other identifiable group of American Indians residing within the territorial limits of the United States or Alaska whenever such claim is one arising under the Constitution, laws or treaties of the

United States, or Executive orders of the President...." Whether that statute gives rise to acknowledgment of a compensable interest in executive order reservations has not been decided.⁶⁹

D. How the courts might treat the question with respect to the Hoopa Valley Reservation. The nature of the relationship between the United States and the Indian people has been a government to government relationship, a political relationship, with the Indian tribe, the usual Indian component of the relationship.⁷⁰ Generally the rights of Indians to reservation resources prior to individualization are rights as tribal members. It may be that the legal position of Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation is not that of members of tribes which have title to property or which are entitled to property held in trust by the United States. It is possible that the courts could find that the Hoopa Valley Reservation is not a tribal reservation. It was not created for a tribe but "for the accommodation of the Indians of said state [California]."⁷¹ The executive orders that set the reservation apart did not mention any particular Indian tribes but ordered that the lands be "set apart for Indian purposes, as one of the Indian reservations authorized to be set apart, in California, by act of Congress approved April 8, 1864. (23 Stats., p. 39)."⁷²

The reservation, moreover, was not given to an Indian tribe in exchange for a treaty cession of aboriginal rights.⁷³ It is possible that no tribe, thus, has clearly recognized title compensable under the Fifth Amendment.⁷⁴ No Congressional act designated the area as an Indian reservation for any tribe. What is involved is a reservation created by executive orders pursuant to statute with no specific designation of tribes to which the reservation is dedicated. The courts, moreover, that have looked at the question, in Short and in Puzz, concluded that one tribe, the Hoopa Valley Tribe had no vested interest in the resources of the reservation. It, thus, may be that the courts would have to conduct a review of the history of the reservation to determine if there were indeed tribal rights. If tribal rights were found, then the likelihood would be that the courts would find that no individual members had rights in tribal property before it was individualized. On the other hand, the courts might find that no tribal rights have arisen on the reservation and might then address the question of whether the individual Indians settled there ⁷³ In Short v. United States, 202 Ct. Cl. 870, 891-897, the court discussed a "'treaty'" made by Austin Wiley, Superintendent of Indian Affairs of California, in August 1864. Article I of that document purports to "set aside for reservation purposes for the sole use and benefit of the tribes of Indians herein named, or such tribes as may hereafter avail themselves of the benefit of this treaty, the whole of Hoopa valley, to be held and used for the sole benefit of the Indians whose names are hereunto affixed as the representatives of their tribes." 202 Ct. Cl. 870, 893. That "treaty" was never ratified; it, thus, has no legal power to bind the federal government.

⁷⁴ In Tee-Hit Ton v. United States, 348 U.S. 272, 277-279 (1955), the Supreme Court defined the manner in which Indian title to property may be "recognized" or confirmed, giving rise to compensable interest:

The question of recognition may be disposed of shortly.

Where Congress by treaty or other agreement has declared that thereafter Indians were to hold the lands permanently, compensation must be paid for subsequent taking....

...There is no particular form for congressional recognition of Indian right of permanent occupancy. It may be established in a variety of ways but there must always be definite intention by congressional action or authority to accord legal rights, not merely permissive occupation.

The Hoopa Valley Reservation's legal status may be distinct from that of most other executive order reservations. Unlike the majority of executive order reservations created in the nineteenth century, the Hoopa Valley executive order was authorized by specific Congressional authorization.⁷⁵ Because the 1864 statute empowered the President to establish the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the argument may be made that Congress has confirmed or recognized Indian title to that reservation and that those Indians or Indian tribes who have rights on the reservation would be entitled to Fifth Amendment damages should their interest be taken away by legislation.⁷⁶

This is not a settled question, however. No court has ruled definitively on whether the combination of the 1864 statute and the subsequent executive orders in fact recognized title to the Hoopa Valley Reservation in whatever Indians were located thereon.⁷⁷ We could locate no other decided case with parallel facts.

In addition to the question of whether an executive order reservation

involves a compensable interest, there is the further question as to who would be able to maintain an action for compensation when the reservation involved is one such as the Hoopa that has not been set aside for identifiable tribes. If a court were to decide that there was a compensable interest in the Hoopa Valley Reservation property, it would be faced with the question of how to distribute that interest.

Again there does not seem to be a case on point. There is, however, one situation that seems somewhat analogous in the sense that it illustrates how the courts might handle the issue of deciding whether any tribal rights exist on the Hoopa Valley Reservation. In 1958, Congress passed legislation that confirmed an executive order reservation and recognized title in the words of the executive order in the "Hopi Indians and such other Indians, if any, as heretofore have been settled thereon by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to such Executive Order."⁷⁸ The statute also authorized a three-judge district court to hear the conflicting claims of Navajos and Hopis to what had been created in 1882 by executive order as a reservation for the use of Hopi "and such other Indians as the Secretary of the Interior may see fit to settle thereon".⁷⁹ In 1963, the court ruled that in the areas that the Navajos had been settled, there was a joint tenancy in which each tribe had identical interests.⁸⁰

The court started from the premise that "...an unconfirmed executive order creating an Indian reservation conveys no right of use or occupancy to the beneficiaries beyond the pleasure of Congress or the President"⁸¹ and that no rights vested prior to enactment of the 1958 statute. In deciding what Indians had rights on the reservation, the court looked to the history of the executive order settling the Hopis on the reservation. It concluded that the purpose was protecting the Hopis from depredations by nearby whites and Navajos.

It next attempted to construe the "such other Indians" clause, showing it to be customary language in contemporaneous executive orders. It viewed the rights secured to the Hopis by the 1882 executive order in the following terms:

...the Hopis gained non-vested rights of use and occupancy in the entire 1882 reservation. These rights were then exclusive in the sense that unless and until the Secretary thereafter settled other Indians in the reservation, the Hopis were the only Indians entitled to use and occupy that area. These rights were non-exclusive in the sense that the Hopis would be required to share the 1882 reservation with any other Indians the Secretary thereafter saw fit to settle in the reservation. Such rights as the Hopis had in the reservation on July 22, 1958 [the date of the jurisdictional act] became vested on that date.⁸²

The court established the principle that "Indians other than Hopis acquired rights in the 1882 reservation under the executive order in question if: (1) such Indians used and occupied the reservation in Indian fashion, as their continuing and primary area of residence, and (2) the undertaking of such use and occupancy was authorized by the Secretary, exercising the discretion vested in him by the executive order."⁸³

It examined the language of the 1882 executive order, in itself, and in contrast with other executive orders and decided that the Navajos were not given any rights in 1882 primarily because the executive order did not mention them although some Navajo Indians had made the reservation area their residence prior to 1882.

It then looked to the history of settlement of Navajos on the reservation. Finding no official Department of the Interior document declaring them to be settled on the reservation, it embarked upon a lengthy examination of the course of conduct from 1882 and identified a 1931 Interior Department document approving a recommendation to divide the reservation as implicitly settling all Navajos present on the reservation.⁸⁴ Because the department placed no restrictions in terms of number or special qualifications of the Navajos who could settle on the 1882 reservation, the Healing court concluded that the Navajo Tribe, itself, had been settled on the reservation and tribal rights to the reservation were at stake.

Healing is merely analogous to the Hoopa Valley situation. Congress had explicitly confirmed an executive order reservation. The statute and the executive order mentioned one tribe as having vested rights and the court was instructed to decide whether any other tribe had vested rights and the extent of such rights. Hoopa Valley, on the other hand, involves an executive order that does not name tribes, a statute that does not name tribes, and to this date no Act of Congress specifically vesting rights. In the Hoopa Valley situation, moreover, two judicial decisions to date indicate that there is considerable difficulty in distinguishing tribal affiliations of the Indians settled on the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

⁸⁴ Other departmental actions were viewed as buttressing this conclusion. In 1936, the Department had divided the reservation into land management districts, only one of which was exclusively occupied by Hopi and many of which had Navajos. In the 1940's there were departmental efforts to establish a boundary between Hopi lands and Navajo lands on the reservation. The court's examination of the history of departmental treatment of Navajos on the reservation, moreover, led it to conclude that all Navajos who had entered the reservation for purposes of settling there had been settled there by the Department because they were treated no differently than those whom the court had found to be there at dates on which there was implicit departmental recognition of settlement.

Despite these distinctions, however, Healing is illustrative of several points: the importance of the historical circumstances surrounding the creation of the reservation, the method for determining if settlement of individual Indians gives rise to tribal rights, and the importance of a detailed examination of the attitude of the Department of the Interior when exercising discretion conferred upon it by executive order.

With the Hoopa Valley situation, the courts have not addressed the question of whether any tribes have been settled on the reservation. Short decided that individual Indians had been settled on the reservation; it refused to substitute a tribe for those individuals, not because there was no possibility of tribal rights arising but because the challenged governmental action involved individual, not tribal, rights. In addition to the Hoopa Valley Tribe, there is the possibility that other tribes may be able successfully to assert tribal rights to the reservation.⁸⁵ The Short court recognized this possibility. In deciding how to construct a standard for Indians of the Reservation analogous to one of the criteria used by the Hoopa Tribe for membership, the court had to determine how to define a blood quantum requirement. The Hoopa standard included one-quarter Hoopa blood. The court refused to use this:

The Hoopa Valley Reservation is not a one-tribe reservation or even a reservation for specific tribes, but was by statute one of several set aside for Indians of California generally. This conclusion went far to establish, in the decision on the nature of the Hoopa Valley Reservation, that no tribe could have exclusive rights to the Reservation. 202 Ct. Cl. at 877-78 (fdg. 175). But it did not follow that all California Indians had rights on the Reservation; the court held, further, that the Hoopa Valley Reservation was established by President Grant in 1876, as was well understood then and throughout the years following, 'for such tribes as might reside or settle there, then or thereafter, with the approval of the President.' 202 Ct. Cl. at 975 (fdg. 181), 877-78, 880-81, 974 (fdg. 175).

What then shall be the required blood? To begin, there is Hoopa blood, now, of course, to be enlarged to include at least Yurok blood. It is moreover conceded that Hoopa blood includes the blood of several tribes or bands who have merged into the Hoopas or are deemed 'affiliated' with the Hoopas. the Hunstang, Hupa, Miskut, Redwood, Saiaz, Sermalton and Tish-tang-atan Bands....the South Fork and Grouse Creek....⁸⁶

In addition to these tribes, the court confronted the question of whether other assorted bands of California Indians known by various names "were among those residing on the Hoopa Reservation at the time of its creation or settled there by the President."⁸⁷ Because anthropological evidence and documents from the Department of Interior archives indicated that the Indians of the area had very loose tribal organization which had all but vanished, the court examined various documentary and historical sources and concluded that Karok, Tolowa, Sinkyone, Wiyot, Wylackie, and Wintun blood could qualify as reservation blood for purposes of the standards set for Indians of the reservation. These findings in no way directly bear on the question of whether any tribes were settled on the reservation. The historical and anthropological data examined, however, indicates the possibility that a full judicial airing of the question of whether any tribes have tribal rights on the reservation would find at least some materials indicating the presence of various tribes on the reservation. The data examined by the court also indicates another problem that any court deciding whether tribal rights arose on the Hoopa Valley Reservation would have to face: fashioning a legal framework for examining tribal rights of the California Indians. The Short court described them as follows:

The context for the decision is that California tribes were not formally organized, that their names were inexact and usually referred to a place or area of residence, often the river on which their village was situated. Fdg. 4. The Hoopas themselves were also called the Trinity Indians, after the river on which they lived. Id. The anthropological evidence at the trial showed no signs of sharply bounded tribal areas from which Indians of other tribes would be excluded. Yurok villages were to be found, aboriginally, on the Trinity, in what was later called the Square. 202 Ct. Cl. at 880, 887-87 (fdg. 5), 899 (fdg. 22).

The word 'tribes,' used in referring to California Indians means peoples. Geography, lack of tribal organization, mingling of residences of groups and intermarriage operated together to minimize identifiable tribal affiliation. Fdgs. 44, 47. Tribal blood was difficult to verify, and tribal blood as recorded by the Indians themselves was likely to be inaccurate, Fdgs. 37-48. In 1929 the Superintendent of the Reservation wrote that it was meaningless to divide the Indians of the Reservation into Hoopas, Klamath River Indians, Lower Klamath Indians and the other tribes of whom census rolls were prepared annually: 'They have lost tribal affiliation to such an extent that very few of them know what tribe they belong to, and if they name a tribe, it is, in fact not a tribe but a band of Indians named after some local name of a place where they once resided.' Fdg. 44.⁸⁸

⁸⁸ Short v. United States (Ct. Cl. No. 102-63, filed March 31, 1982), slip op., at 38-39.

From this description, it is possible that a court: (1) could actually find some tribes to have tribal rights in the reservation; (2) could find that no tribes have tribal rights in the reservation; and (3) could find that the California Indian situation is so unique as to require courts to effectuate the purpose of the 1864 act and the executive orders thereunder to devise a method to protect the rights of the Indians settled on the reservation.

To summarize, generally the courts have held that individual Indians have no vested interest in tribal property prior to individualization. In contemporary Hoopa Valley Reservation litigation the courts have ruled that "Indians of the Reservation" have no interest in reservation property that has not been individualized. Because no court has faced the question squarely, however, there is a remote possibility that should the courts be required to adjudicate the interests of the Indians of the Reservation at this date, without further Congressional action, they might find that because the reservation was established by executive order with specific statutory authority there is a compensable interest and that because the reservation was established for non-tribal Indians, Indians of the reservation have a vested interest in reservation property.

2. The Scope of Congressional Power over Tribal Communal Property of Indian Reservations; Membership in Indian tribes; and Individual Rights to Participate in Such Tribal or Communal Property. Communally held Indian property is generally held in trust by the United States for the Indian beneficial owners. As trustee for this property, the United States has considerable but not unlimited authority over it. The Supreme Court, in a series of cases beginning with United States v. Kagama⁸⁹ and Lone Wolf v.

Hitchcock,⁹⁰ down to Delaware Tribal Business Committee v. Weeks,⁹¹ has held that Congressional power with regard to Indian tribes and Indian property is plenary. In Delaware Tribal Business Committee v. Weeks the Court upheld a distribution of judgment funds statute that allocated funds to two groups of Delaware Indians, and not a third on the theory that the decision to include only the two groups could be "tied rationally to the fulfillment of Congress' unique obligation towards Indians," a test that derives from Morton v. Mancari.⁹² That rational basis test seems to be the test that would be used to test the validity of a statute that dealt with property held communally by Indians.

The test that the courts use in determining whether legislation that deals with Indian property is an exercise of the eminent domain power or an exercise of the power of guardianship over Indian property is the test derived from Three Affiliated Tribes of Fort Berthold Reservation v. United States,⁹³ known as the Fort Berthold test and adapted by the Supreme Court in United States v. Sioux Nation.⁹⁴ The test is formulated in terms of the facts of the case in which the government extinguished Indian title to land and compensated the Indians with money:

It is obvious that Congress cannot simultaneously (1) act as trustee for the benefit of the Indians, exercising its plenary powers over the Indians and their property, as it thinks is in their best interests, and (2) exercise its sovereign power of eminent domain, taking the Indians' property within the meaning of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. In any given situation in which Congress has acted with regard to Indian people, it must have acted either in one capacity or the other. Congress can own two hats, but it cannot wear them both at the same time.

Where Congress makes a good faith effort to give the Indians the full value of the land and thus merely transmutes the property from land to money, there is no taking. This is a mere substitution of assets or change of form and is a traditional function of a trustee.⁹⁵

Congress has in the past legislated the breaking up of Indian lands into allotments, with remaining land sold for the benefit of the tribe. It has also authorized rights of way across Indian lands, sale of some lands for railroads or utilities, and use of Indian lands for water projects. The Supreme Court has upheld such legislation.⁹⁶ These cases involved tribal land and not the property of individuals.

Recently, the Court, in Hodel v. Irving,⁹⁷ held unconstitutional a provision of the Indian Lands Consolidation Act of 1983,⁹⁸ that would have cut off the rights of Indian allottees of fractional shares of 2 percent or less of allotments to devise or their heirs to inherit by intestacy such shares if they earned less than $100 in the preceding year. The court viewed the interest at stake, the right to pass on the remainder interest, as a valuable property interest and as a right long recognized by Anglo-American property law and held it to be a compensable right under the Fifth Amendment. The right at stake in Hodel v. Irving, an individual property right, however, is clearly distinguishable from communal property.

To summarize, other than the requirement that the property be communal and not individual, the courts in analyzing Congressional treatment of Indian tribal property require only that the legislative disposition of the property be "an exercise of guardianship," and not "an act of confiscation."⁹⁹ The Court has said:

Our decisions, while recognizing that the government has power to control and manage the property and affairs of its Indian wards in good faith for their welfare, show that this power is subject to constitutional limitations and does not enable the government to give the lands of one tribe or band to another, or to deal with them as its own.¹⁰⁰

The rights of individual Indians to tribal property is an inchoate right; individualization of the assets may not be compelled.¹⁰¹ Unless there has been express statutory designation of the property as that of various individuals the courts will permit the United States as trustee to dispose of the property for the benefit of its wards:

Indians have frequently taken to court the complaint that the tribal property has become vested, by previous act or treaty, in individuals and is no more subject to congressional control than the private property of other individuals. The courts, however, tend to construe such previous acts and treaties, wherever possible, against the vesting of private rights in tribal property.¹⁰²

Delaware Tribal Business Committee v. Weeks may be cited broadly in support of Congressional power to determine membership in tribes for purposes of administering federal law. Tribes, themselves, of course, being separate political entities from the United States, retain a paramount power to determine membership for all tribal purposes.¹⁰³ Tribal decisions on tribal membership generally are not reviewable by the federal government.¹⁰⁴ Tribal decisions, however, do not necessarily bind the federal government when administering federal programs. In determining who is entitled to tribal funds, for instance, the Secretary of Interior by statute has broad authority. In 25 U.S.C. § 163, for example, the Secretary is authorized to cause a final membership roll of any tribe (in order to segregate tribal funds) to be composed and given authority to approve such roll. It is, thus, possible that the federal government or Congress could define tribal membership in one way for a specific purpose and the tribe could define its membership in a different way.

3. Whether Congress Has Power to Deal with the Tribal or Communal Property and Assets of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation as Proposed by H.R. 4469 as Amended by the Substitute. Generally, the Fort Berthold test would be the applicable test that the courts would use to test the constitutionality of this legislation. At the present time there has been no adjudication to indicate that individual property rights are at stake. Puzz and Short, on the contrary, indicate that no individualized rights are vested. While no court has decided whether tribal rights are vested, the general law on executive order reservations holds that no rights vest without Congressional confirmation. The 1864 statute raises a certain amount of uncertainty about whether rights have vested. The wording of the statute and the subsequent executive order also raise doubts about the nature of the parties, i.e., tribal or individual Indians, who might have obtained any vested rights should rights have vested. The historical circumstances of settling loosely organized California Indians on the reservation combined with the further disintegration of any formal tribal organization of the Indians settled on the reservation indicate that any judicial adjudication of tribal rights could be even more complex, protracted, and bitter than the 25 year-old Short litigation.

All of those factors could influence a court to view any distribution of reservation assets by Congress as an exercise of guardianship. The substitute gives many indices of a good faith effort by Congress: (1) efforts to divide the reservation in a logical as well as historically defensible way; (2) provision for non-Hoopla Indians who have an interest in the reservation to decide to pool their resources or to withdraw monetary remuneration for their share; (3) and authorizing expansion of the portion of the reservation to be allocated to the Yurok Tribe.

With respect to determining Yurok tribal membership, the substitute makes no pretense of establishing an Indian tribe for all purposes. It simply sets standards for a group who are to be given management authority over the portion of the reservation allocated to the Yuroks. It does not require that they form a tribal government; it merely permits a mechanism for their recognition under the Indian Reorganization Act.

Portions the legislation that might be cited as indicative of a confiscatory intent include: (1) the provision that the partitioning of the reservation is to be triggered by a vote of the Hoopa Valley Tribe rather than by a vote of all Indians who have an interest in the reservation; (2) the fact that the major assets of the reservation have been allocated to the Hoopa Valley Tribe; and (3) the lack of consideration for any other tribes that might have a tribal interest in the reservation.

Using the Delaware Tribal Business Committee v. Weeks standards, however, it is likely that if Congress in the legislative history of this legislation provides evidence of an intent to deal fairly with all the interests in the reservation, the courts will uphold the legislation. The kinds of concerns that might influence the courts would be: (1) an interest in preventing the hostilities engendered by the Short litigation to continue; (2) an interest in giving both the Hoopas and the non-Hoopas contiguous, not checker-boarded areas to administer; (3) a political determination that the Department of Interior's views as propounded in Short that the Hoopa Valley Reservation and Klamath River Reservations were combined for administrative purposes and have never in actuality functioned as one entity; (4) concern that the Hoopas who, unlike the "Indians of the Reservation,"¹⁰⁵ have tended to live on the reservation continue thereon and be accorded sufficient resources to sustain their habitation; and (5) a political judgment that a functioning tribal government fulfilling the federal policy of tribal self-determination deserves greater federal support than does a group of Indians who have no tribal organization, who have refused tribal organization, and many of whom live off-reservation.

¹⁰⁵ A counterargument might be offered to the effect that federal policies drove the non-Hoopas from the reservation.

To summarize the responses to the committee's questions:

1. What is the legal nature of the interest of persons qualifying as "Indians of the Reservation" in the tribal or communal resources of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, prior to any individualization of such resources?

Generally the courts have held that individual Indians have no vested interest in tribal property prior to individualization. In contemporary Hoopa Valley Reservation litigation the courts have ruled that "Indians of the Reservation" have no interest in reservation property that has not been individualized. Because no court has faced the question squarely, however, there is a remote possibility that the case could create a new federal Indian law precedent: i.e., should the courts be required to adjudicate the interests of the Indians of the Reservation at this date, without further Congressional action, they might find that because the reservation was established by executive order with specific statutory authority there is a compensable interest and that because the reservation was established for non-tribal Indians, Indians of the reservation have a vested interest in reservation property.

2. What is the scope of Congressional power over tribal communal property of Indian reservations; membership in Indian tribes; and individual rights to participate in such tribal or communal property?

Other than the requirement that the property be communal and not individual, the courts, in analyzing Congressional treatment of Indian tribal property, require only that the legislative disposition of the property be "an exercise of guardianship," and not "an act of confiscation." The courts have also recognized a broad Congressional power to determine membership in tribes for purposes of administering federal law as well as the power of tribes, themselves, to determine membership for all tribal purposes. It is, thus, possible that Congress could define tribal membership in one way for a specific purpose and the tribe could define its overall membership in a different way.

3. In view of the plenary power of Congress over Indian affairs and its role as guardian of Indian tribes in view of the responses to questions 1 and 2 above, does Congress have power to deal with the tribal or communal property and assets of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation as proposed in H.R. 4469 as amended by the substitute?

Since the courts require that Congress make a good faith effort when transmuting Indian property from one form to another, if the substitute for H.R. 4469 indicates that Congress has conscientiously attempted to act in the best interest of its Indian wards, there is the likelihood that the courts will uphold the legislation as within the power of Congress.

We emphasize that we are in no position to have studied every aspect of this issue as thoroughly as would be required in any litigation. We can, thus, make only general statements. With that caveat, we can say that if Congress documents its intention to deal fairly with all concerned, on the basis of recent precedents and the long line of cases upholding plenary power in Indian affairs, there is a likelihood that the proposed legislation would be upheld.

SUMMARY

1. What is the legal nature of the interest of persons qualifying as "Indians of the Reservation" in the tribal or communal resources of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, prior to any individualization of such resources?

Generally the courts have held that individual Indians have no vested interest in tribal property prior to individualization. In contemporary Hoopa Valley Reservation litigation the courts have ruled that "Indians of the Reservation" have no interest in reservation property not individualized. Because no court has faced the question squarely, however, there is a remote possibility that the case could create a new federal Indian law precedent: i.e., should the courts be required to adjudicate the interests of the Indians of the Reservation, without further Congressional action, they might find that because the reservation was established by executive order with specific statutory authority there is a compensable interest and that because the reservation was established for non-tribal Indians, Indians of the reservation have a vested interest in reservation property.

2. What is the scope of Congressional power over tribal communal property of Indian reservations; membership in Indian tribes; and individual rights to participate in such tribal or communal property?

Other than the requirement that the property be communal and not individual, the courts, in analyzing Congressional treatment of Indian tribal property, require only that the legislative disposition of the property be "an exercise of guardianship," and not "an act of confiscation." The courts have also recognized a broad Congressional power to determine membership in tribes for purposes of administering federal law as well as the power of tribes, themselves, to determine membership for all tribal purposes. PARTITIONING CERTAIN RESERVATION LANDS BETWEEN THE HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE AND THE YUOK INDIANS, TO CLARIFY THE USE OF TRIBAL TIMBER PROCEEDS, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

SEPTEMBER 30 (legislative day, SEPTEMBER 26), 1988.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. INOUE, from the Select Committee on Indian Affairs, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany S. 2723]

The Select Committee on Indian Affairs, to which was referred the bill (S. 2723) to partition certain reservation lands between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Indians, to clarify the use of tribal timber proceeds, and for other purposes, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon with an amendment and recommends that the bill as amended do pass.

The amendment is an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

PURPOSE

S. 2723, introduced by Senator Cranston on August 10, 1988, is a bill to partition certain reservation lands between two tribes in the northern part of the State of California: the Hoopa Valley Indian Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, and to resolve long standing litigation between the United States, the Hoopa Valley Tribe and a large number of individual Indians, most, but not all of whom are of Yurok descent, who have asserted an individual interest in the communal reservation property. The claims were originally asserted in 1963 in the yet to be finalized case of Short v. United States filed in the United States Court of Claims, and has led to a number of companion or collateral cases which have made it impossible for the Hoopa Valley Tribe to perform normal tribal governmental functions, including the management of a significant portion of the reservation property.

The legislation will partition the reservation into two reservations, one consisting of the Hoopa Valley Square to be set aside for the use and benefit of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and the other consisting of the Hoopa or Klamath Extension, to be set aside for the use and benefit of the Yurok Tribe. The authority of the Hoopa Valley Tribe to govern the Hoopa Valley Square and its interests in the assets of the Square will be confirmed. The Yurok plaintiffs are authorized to organize and adopt a constitution and the property and governmental rights of the Yurok Tribe in the Extension will be confirmed. A communal escrow account which now exceeds $65 million will be allocated between the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok or "Short" plaintiffs. Limited per capita payments from the accrued escrow account are authorized for each of the tribes. A third portion is used to provide additional payments to persons who do not wish to become members of the newly organized Yurok Tribe. The remaining dollars are then allocated to the Yurok Tribe for governmental or development purposes.

This legislation will remove the legal impediments to the Hoopa Valley Indian Tribe to governance of the Hoopa Square and establish and confirm its property interest in the Square. The legislation will also establish and confirm the property interests of the Yurok Tribe in the Extension, including its interest in the fishery, and enable the tribe to organize and assume governing authority in the Extension.

This legislation should not be considered in any fashion as a precedent for individualization of tribal communal assets. The solutions fashioned in this legislation spring from a series of judicial decisions that are unique to the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation that have established certain individual interests that conflict with the general federal policies and laws favoring recognition and protection of tribal property rights and tribal governance of Indian reservations. The intent of this legislation is to bring the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe within the mainstream of federal Indian law.

The Yurok Tribe is a federally recognized tribe, but it is not organized and there is no established roll of members. This legislation enables the tribe to organize and to establish its base roll. Persons who are not members of the Hoopa Tribe but who meet certain criteria under the Short case are authorized to elect whether or not they wish to become an enrolled member of the Yurok Tribe, with all of the rights and benefits that that entails, including provision of federal services springing from membership in a federally recognized tribe. All minor children meeting the criteria will be deemed to be members of the Yurok Tribe unless they are already enrolled in another federally recognized tribe whose membership criteria forbids dual enrollment in another tribe.

HISTORY

ABORIGINAL TRIBES AND LANDS OF NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

The lands of what is now northern California, like most of the Pacific coastal area, were aboriginally inhabited by many small tribes or bands of Indians of numerous linguistic stocks or derivations. Representative tribes in the general area of dispute included the Hoopa (Hupa), Chilula, Wilkut, and Nongati of Athapaskan derivation; the Yurok and Wiyot of Algonkian derivation; the Karok (Karuk), Shasta, and Chimariko of Hokan stock; and the Wintun of the Penutian language.

The original location of these tribes centered upon the drainages of the Klamath and Trinity Rivers and adjacent streams in extreme northwestern California. The Klamath River flows southwesterly out of southern Oregon to its junction with the Trinity River (which flows north and is essentially a branch of the Klamath) and, then, veering sharply to the northwest, continues to the ocean. As noted by the Court of Claims in the Jessie Short case, the two rivers from a "Y" whose arms are the Klamath and whose trunk is the Trinity.

The aboriginal lands of the Yurok of Klamath Indians were generally centered on the drainage of the valley of the Klamath River from the Pacific Ocean to its fork with the Trinity River. These lands lay northward from that fork and westward to the Pacific. The lands of the Wiyot, a tribe related to the Yurok, were south of the Yurok lands in a narrow strip along the ocean.

The aboriginal lands of the Hupa or Hoopa Indians were centered on the drainage of the Hoopa Valley of the Trinity River southward from its fork with the Klamath. The lands of the related tribes of the Chilula, Whilkut, and Nongatl lay to the west and south of the Hoopa lands and eastward of the Yurok and Wiyot lands.

The aboriginal lands of the Karok, and the related Shasta and Chimariko tribes, lay to the east of the Hoopa and Yurok lands on the upper drainages of both the Klamath and Trinity Rivers. The Wintun lands were southeast of the Hoopa lands along the upper drainage of the south fork of the Trinity River. Although some scholars disagree, the U.S. Court of Claims noted in the case of Jessie Short et al. v. The United States (202 Ct. Cl. 870, 886):

The Indian tribes of Northern California were not organized or large entities; Indians resident on a particular river or fork were a "tribe". Tribal names were often applied inexactly and usually meant only a place of residence. To call an Indian a "Hoopa" or Trinity Indian meant he was an Indian resident in the valley of the Trinity called Hoopa. The names "Yurok" and "Karok" * * * also meant a place of residence.

IMPACT OF WHITE SETTLEMENT

These small Indian tribes or bands had only minimal contact with non-Indians, primarily Spanish settlers to the south or occasional fur-trading or exploration parties, until the discovery of gold in 1849. With that discovery came the well-known influx of gold seekers and other white settlers and immigrants. As the white population grew and white settlements expanded, the conflicts with local Indian tribes and bands increased in number and intensity. White settlers sought to push the Indians off their lands and demanded that local and Federal governments take steps to remove the Indians to other areas. Backed upon the Pacific Ocean, the tribes had no place else to go and the inevitable hostilities and warfare between Indians and whites began to occur.

The huge influx of whites into the area and the resulting wars had a devastating impact upon the Indian tribes. In 1850, only two years after the United States had acquired the territory from Mexico, Federal officials recognized that something had to be done quickly for the tribes. Indian Sub-agent Adam Johnston wrote that the white men had taken Indian lands and resources, introduced strange diseases, and provoked violent confrontations.

In other areas, the government had tried to relocate the Indians before the advance of white settlers; but there were already more than 100,000 whites in California, which became a state on September 9, 1850. It was decided that the best policy was to set aside small tracts of land in the new state for the tribes to protect them from the worst effects of settlement by separating them from the whites. At the same time, vast tracts of Indian lands would be opened to eager white settlers and miners.

To effectuate this policy, Congress provided for the appointment of treaty commissioners in September of 1850 to secure the cession by the Indians of their lands and to establish reservations for them. By the end of 1851, numerous treaties with many Indian tribes or bands, including those of northern California, had been signed. On June 28, 1852, President Fillmore presented eighteen California treaties to the Senate for ratification. Because of strong white opposition to providing any lands for the Indians, the Senate, in secret session, rejected the treaties on June 28, 1852. With the rejection of these treaties, the conflicts and hostilities between white settlers and Indian tribes resumed.

In northern California, much of the warfare and bloodshed was centered in the valleys of the Klamath and Trinity Rivers which were the traditional homelands of the Yurok and Hoopa Indians and related tribes.

ESTABLISHMENT OF KLAMATH RIVER RESERVATION

In an early attempt to carry out the policy adopted with respect to California Indian tribes, President Pierce, by Executive Order of November 16, 1855, established the Klamath River Reservation for the benefit of Indian tribes in that general area. The President acted pursuant to the Act of March 3, 1853 (10 Stat. 226, 238), as amended in 1855, authorizing the creation of seven military reservations in California or in the Territories of Utah and New Mexico.

As finally established, the Klamath River Reservation was "a strip of territory commencing at the Pacific Ocean and extending 1 mile of width on each side of the Klamath River" for a distance of approximately 20 miles, containing 25,000 acres. The reservation was within the aboriginal territory of the Yurok and, at the time of its creation, was occupied by about 2,000 Indians of the Yurok tribe, also known as the Klamaths. However, the Hoopa and other inland tribes refused to move onto this reservation and armed conflict in those areas continued.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HOOPA VALLEY RESERVATION

In 1864, in a further effort to bring about peace in California, Congress enacted legislation (Act of April 8, 1864, 13 Stat. 39) reorganizing the Indian Department in California by providing for the appointment of one superintendent of Indian Affairs and authorizing the President to establish four reservations in the State. On May 26, 1864, the President appointed Austin Wiley as Superintendent.

On August 12, 1864, at Fort Gaston, Wiley negotiated an agreement with the Hoopa Indians along the Trinity River entitled "Treaty of peace and friendship between the United States government and the Hoopa, South Fork, Redwood, and Grouse Creek Indians." Section 1 of the agreement provided that—

The United States * * * by these presents doth agree and obligate itself to set aside for reservation purposes for the sole use and benefit of the tribes of Indians herein named, or such tribes as may hereafter avail themselves of the benefit of this treaty, the whole of Hoopa valley, to be held and used for the sole benefit of the Indians whose names are hereunto affixed as the representatives of their tribes.

Section 2 provided that the reservation "shall include a sufficient area of mountain on each side of the Trinity river as shall be necessary for hunting grounds, gathering berries, seeds, etc." This agreement or "treaty" was never submitted for ratification. However, with corrections, it was approved by the Interior Department.

On August 21, 1864, at Fort Gaston, California, Superintendent Wiley issued a proclamation, under the authority of the 1864 Act and instructions from the Interior Department, establishing the Hoopa Valley Reservation on the Trinity River in Klamath County, California. Wiley's proclamation provided that the metes and bounds of the reservations would be established later by order of the Interior Department, subject to the approval of the President.

The Trinity River in the Hoopa Valley flows north through the valley to the junction of the Trinity and Klamath Rivers. Since the reservation was described as extending six miles on each side of the river to the junction of the two rivers, the reservation formed a 12-mile square bisected by the last 12 miles of the Trinity River, and has come to be called the "Square" or the "12-mile Square". As of February 18, 1865, when Wiley defined the boundaries of the Hoopa Valley Reservation, there have been identified, among the various tribes resident there, a substantial number of Indians of the Hoopa Tribe living in several villages in the Hoopa Valley proper, a smaller group of Lower Klamath or Yurok Indians living in a few villages in the northern and northwestern part of the reservation, and a number of Indians of the Redwood or Chilula tribe.

On June 23, 1876, President Grant issued an executive order formally establishing the boundaries of the Hoopa Valley Reservation and provided that the land embraced therein "be, and hereby is, withdrawn from public sale, and set apart in California by act of Congress approved April 8, 1864." As bounded, the reservation was a square, twelve miles on a side, now recognized as encompassing approximately 88,665.52 acres.

The Court of Claims in the Jessie Short case found that, at about the time of the 1876 Executive Order, there had been identified as living within the boundaries of the reservation established the following tribes:

Hoopas	571	511
Klamaths (Yuroks)	43	44
Redwoods	46	12
Saias	56	13

CREATION OF THE "ADDITION"

In the late 1880's and early 1890's, the legal validity of the 1855 Klamath River Reservation came under attack. There was growing pressure from surrounding white settlers to open these lands to homesteading. In addition, the Department of the Interior sought to control the activity of non-Indians on the reservation. In 1888, the United States brought suit against a non-Indian trader on the reservation for unauthorized activity. The district court, in an 1888 decision later upheld by the circuit court in 1889, held that the Klamath River Reservation did not have legal status as an Indian reservation. United States v. Forty Eight Pounds of Rising Star Tea etc., 35 Fed. 403. The court held that the President's power to establish Indian reservations in California was controlled by the 1864 Act which provided for only four such reservations and that the President had exhausted his power thereunder by establishing four reservations, including the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

In order to protect the Klamath or Yurok Indians residing on the Klamath River Reservation, the Department sought to find a way to preserve reservation status. Since the 1864 Act limited the number of Indian reservations in California to four and since there were already four reservations established pursuant to that Act, the 1855 reservation could not be validated by a further executive order establishing it as a reservation. In order to get around the limitations of the 1864 Act, the Interior Department used the provisions of the 1864 Act itself.

On October 16, 1891, President Harrison issued an executive order which enlarged the Hoopa Valley Reservation "to include a tract of country 1 mile in width on each side of the Klamath River, and extending * * * to the Pacific Ocean.". In effect, the order incorporated the questionable 1855 Klamath River Reservation into the Hoopa Valley Reservation by connecting the two reservations with a strip of land one mile on either side of the Klamath River extending 25 miles from the southern boundary of the Klamath River Reservation to the northern boundary of the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

After the addition of lands by the 1891 order, the combined reservation contained about 147,000 acres, 25,000 in the original Klamath River Reservation, 33,168 acres in the "Connecting Strip", and 88,666 acres in the original Hoopa Valley Reservation or "Square".

Even though the 1891 order combined the two reservations, they continued to be treated by the Department and the Indian Service, in some respects, as two reservations, the "Addition" for the Klamath River or Yurok Indians and the "Square" for the Hoopa Indians. In 1892, Congress, by the Act of June 17, 1892 (27 Stat. 52), provided for the allotment of lands on the "Klamath River Indian Reservation" to "any Indians now located upon said reservation" and the sale of the remainder for homestead purposes. In addition, from that date forward until the present, the Department of the Interior continued to administer the combined reservations as if they were still two reservations for certain purposes.

Under this method of administration, the Hupa or Hoopa Tribe was generally recognized as being located on, and owning, the "Square" portion of the reservations. The Indians on the "Square" later formally organized a tribe and tribal government as the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Department generally recognized the land of the original Klamath River Reservation and the 1891 "extension" as the reservation of the Yurok tribe. That tribe has never organized.

From 1891 to 1955, the official position of the Department of the Interior and the Bureau of Indian Affairs (Indian Service) regarding the rights of tribes in the Hoopa Valley Reservation varied with the official involved and the issue under consideration.

As noted earlier, for many purposes, the "Square" and the "Addition" were treated as two separate reservations and the Yurok or Klamath Indians and the Hoopa Indians were treated as two separate tribes. Indeed, the allotment of the lands of the reservation to individual Indians and the opening of the remainder to white homesteading under various Acts of Congress dealt with the reservation as three separate tracts: the original Klamath River Reservation; the "Connecting Strip"; and the "Square". Yet, official correspondence in certain years relating to the allotment process of the three tracts evidences an understanding that there was only one reservation and that the right of individual Indians to allotments were to be determined from that perspective.

The attitude of Federal officials during this time relating to the existence of tribal status and the early attempts of the Hoopa and Yurok Indians to organize was equally vacillating and confusing. In some respects, these officials encouraged and approved of efforts to organize separate entities and councils representing the two tribes. Yet, conflicting correspondence exists indicating an understanding that these separate organizations could only represent local interests and could not act with respect to the reservation as a whole.

By 1952, however, when the Commissioner of Indian Affairs approved the constitution and bylaws of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the position of the Department, at least on a de facto basis, was that the "Square" was a reservation for the Hoopa Valley Tribe and subject to the management of the Hoopa Valley Business Council elected pursuant to that constitution. Under the constitution, the Department recognized the membership of the Hoopa Valley Tribe which did not include most of the Yurok or Klamath Indians.

JESSIE SHORT V. UNITED STATES

This administrative position continued basically unchallenged until 1955, when substantial tribal revenues from the sale of commercial timber from the "Square" began to be realized. Beginning in 1955, the Secretary of the Interior began to credit revenue derived from the "Square" to a trust account separate from revenue earned from other portions of the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

From January of 1955 until February of 1969, the Secretary, upon the request of the Hoopa Valley Business Council, each year disbursed from the Hoopa Valley trust fund per capita payments to the Indians on the official roll of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The total amount of such funds disbursed per capita was $12,657,666.50. (Subsequently, on 21 separate occasions commencing on April 10, 1969, and ending on March 7, 1980, additional per capita payments amounting to some $16,660,492 were made to individual Hoopa Indians on the official roll of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.)

In 1963, certain Indians identified as "Yurok" Indians) claiming descent from Indians allotted on the reservation, but not enrolled as members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, brought a suit against the United States in the United States Court of Claims in the case of Jessie Short et al. v. U.S. (Ct. Cl. 102-63) alleging that the government had wrongfully excluded them from sharing in the per capita payments from revenues of the communal lands of the Square made by the Secretary from 1955 onward. In 1972, a Tribal Commissioner of the Court of Claims sustained the plaintiff's position. His decision was later upheld on October 17, 1973, by the Court of Claims (202 Ct. Cl. 870) and the Supreme Court refused to review the decision in 1974.

In construing the various relevant laws and executive orders noted above, the court held that—

(1) the Hoopa Valley Reservation, as established by the Executive Order of June 23, 1876, pursuant to the 1864 Act, and as augmented by the addition of land under the Executive Order of October 16, 1891, was a single Indian reservation;

(2) no Indian tribe as a tribe had, or has, a vested right to the ownership of, the reservation or its resources;

(3) the reservation had been duly set apart for Indian purposes in 1876 to accommodate the Indian tribes of northern California;

(4) the Secretary had wrongfully paid per capita payments only to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe to the exclusion of the plaintiffs; and

(5) that any Indian who had certain connections to the reservation and who could meet the court's standards for qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation" was entitled to share in the distribution of revenues from the "Square" and, therefore, was entitled to damages against the United States.

The court in the Short case is now engaged in determining which of the plaintiffs meet that criteria. Once this process has been completed, the court will enter judgment against the United States on behalf of each individual plaintiff found to meet that criteria.

PUZZ V. UNITED STATES

The decision of the Court of Claims in the Short case involved a money damage claim against the United States by individual Indians with respect to their right to share in the revenue derived from the resources of the "Square" upon individualization by the Secretary. The case did not deal with the issue of where the authority to make management decisions relating to the lands and resources of the "Square" or, for that matter, the reservation as a whole was vested.

In 1980, some of the plaintiffs in the Short case filed suit against the United States in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California in the case of Puzz v. U.S. (No. C 80 2908 TEH). In this case, the plaintiffs challenged the right of the United States to recognize the governing body of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as the sole governing authority of the reservation entitled to manage the reservation resources. On April 8, 1988, the court held that the reservation, as extended, was intended for the communal benefit of northern California Indian tribes and groups and that, absent statutory delegations, existing tribes lacked power to manage the resources. The Court ordered the Bureau of Indian Affairs to assume the management of the reservation and its resources and to consult fairly with all persons having an interest in the reservation on its decisions.

BACKGROUND

NATURE OF U.S.-INDIAN RELATIONSHIP

From the earliest contact with the Indians of this continent, the European powers and the United States have dealt with the Indians on a government-to-government or tribal basis. The historical development of the relationship between the United States and the Indian tribes, whether it is denominated as a trust, guardianship, or government-to-government relationship, has resulted in a political relationship focusing on the Indian tribes, not on individual Indians.

The great mass of treaties, statutes, and executive orders implementing Federal Indian policy are premised upon this tribal, political relationship. To the extent such laws confer special benefits on individual Indians or impose special burdens or limitations on such Indians or their property, these laws are nevertheless founded upon the status of such Indians as members of Indian tribes enjoying a political relationship with the United States.

The Supreme Court, in upholding the constitutionality of the law extending a preference to Indians for Federal employment in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, held that the law, and the many other Federal laws for the benefit of Indians, were not invidiously discriminatory because the laws were not based upon the racial background of the individual, but upon their status as members of an Indian tribe. Morton v. Mancari, 417 U.S. 535 (1974). In those limited cases where the Congress has legislated specially with respect to individual Indians outside their relationship as a member of an Indian tribe, other National grounds are, or will be, found.

CREATION OF INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Where the United States has not recognized the title of an Indian tribe to its aboriginal lands, usually through creation of a permanent reservation for such tribe from those aboriginal lands, the tribe does not have a compensable title in such lands and the Congress may take the lands without incurring a liability to the tribe. Tee-Hit-Ton Indians v. United States, 348 U.S. 272 (1955).

As a consequence of the nature of the relationship between Indian tribes and the United States, Indian reservations were recognized or set aside by treaty, statute, or executive order for Indian tribes, not individual Indians. In most cases, the enabling law specifically denominated the Indian tribes or tribes for whose benefit the reservation was established.

In certain cases, particularly with respect to reservations established by executive order, the source authority does not designate a particular tribe as the beneficiary of the reservations. In those cases, discretion is left in the responsible executive official to later designate the tribe or tribes to be settled on such reservation. Until such official has acted under that discretion, no tribe is deemed settle on the reservation. In the December 16, 1882, Executive Order establishing a reservation for the Hopi Tribe, the language set the lands apart for the "Moqui (Hopi) and such other Indians as the Secretary of the Interior may see fit to settle thereon." The Federal court found that the Secretary did not settle the Navajo Tribe on that reservation until long after 1882.

Whether the establishing instrument designates a tribe or tribes as beneficiaries of the reservation or leaves to the discretion of an executive official the authority to later designate beneficiary tribes, in every case, the reservation is set aside for tribal or communal purposes. Individuals have an interest in resources of the reservation only insofar as they are members of the tribal entity for whose benefit the reservation is set aside.

Where the law creating an Indian reservation designates the tribe(s) for whose benefit the reservation is created and where it is clear that the reservation is intended for the permanent benefit of such tribe, the beneficial interest in the reservation becomes vested in that tribe and the power of Congress to deal with the property is limited. Congress, in the exercise of its plenary power over Indian affairs, may modify or take the tribe's property interest in such reservation, Lone Wolf v. Hitchcock, 187 U.S. 553 (1903), but, in doing so, will be held to one of two standards.

Congress may act as trustee for the benefit of the Indians and, if it makes a good faith effort to replace the property taken with property of equal or nearly equal value, it will not be held to the 5th Amendment standard. If it take the tribe's property for the United States or for others without making such good faith effort, such action will constitute a 5th Amendment taking. Shoshone Tribe v. U.S., 299 U.S. 476 (1937); Three Tribes of Fort Berthold Reservation v. U.S., 182 Ct. Cl. 543 (1968); United States v. Sioux Nation of Indians, 448 U.S. 371 (1980).

In other cases, particularly with respect to executive order reservations, the law creating an Indian reservation may not designate the tribe for whose benefit it is intended or, where discretion is left to an executive official to so designate a tribe, that discretionary authority may not have been exercised or exhausted. Or such law may not be clear that the reservation is intended for the permanent benefit of Indians. In those cases, no right, as against the exercise of the plenary power of Congress, has vested in any tribe and Congress may deal with that property as it sees fit without subjecting the United States to a liability for an unconstitutional taking. Hynes v. Grimes Packing Co., 337 U.S. 86 (1949); Healing v. Jones, 174 F. Supp. 211; 210 F. Supp. 125 (1962), aff'd. 373 U.S. 758; Crow Nation v. United States, 81 Ct. Cl. 238, 279-80 (1935).

RECOGNITION OF INDIAN TRIBES; TRIBAL MEMBERSHIP

As noted above, the relationship between the United States and Indian tribes is a political one. While the validity of congressional or administrative actions may depend upon the existence of tribes, the courts have made clear that it is up to Congress or the Executive to extend recognition of that status. Handbook on Federal Indian Law, 1982, p. 3-5; U.S. v. Rickert, 188 U.S. 432 (1903). While the power of Congress, in the exercise of its plenary power over Indian affairs under the Commerce clause, to extend political recognition to an Indian tribe is very broad, it cannot be used arbitrarily. In U.S. v. Sandoval, 231 U.S. 28, 46 (1913), the Supreme Court held:

Of course, it is not meant by this that Congress may bring a community or body of people within the range of this power by arbitrarily calling them an Indian tribe, but only that in respect of distinctly Indian communities the questions whether, to what extent, and for what time they shall be recognized and dealt with as independent tribes requiring the guardianship and protection of the United States are to be determined by the Congress, and not by the courts.

As the power of Congress to extend such recognition is very broad, so also is the power to terminate that recognition. Menominee Tribe v. U.S., 391 U.S. 404 (1968).

In general, an Indian tribe has the power to establish its own membership and membership requirements and this right has been consistently recognized by the Congress and the courts. Tribal membership and membership requirements are normally determined by the tribal governing authorities, typically under a tribal constitution or other recognized governing documents.

Nevertheless, Congress retains broad power to determine or modify, for various purposes, a tribe's membership. The United States may assume full control over Indian tribes and determine membership in the tribe for the purpose of adjusting rights in tribal property. Stephens v. Cherokee Nation, 174 U.S. 445 (1899). Congress may disregard existing tribal membership rolls. In the case of Sizemore v. Brady, 235 U.S. 441, 447 (1914), the Supreme Court said:

Like other tribal Indians, the Creeks were wards of the United States, which possessed full power, if it deemed such a course wise, to assume full control over them and their affairs, to ascertain who were members of the tribe, to distribute the lands and funds among them, and to terminate the tribal government.

And it is clear that tribal membership does not confer upon the individual a vested right in tribal or communal property. As stated in Handbook on Federal Indian Law, 1982, p. 605-606:

It is well established that title to the communal land or personal property of a tribe resides in the tribe itself and is not held by tribal members individually. An individual member cannot convey title to any particular tract of tribal land and has no right against the tribe to any specific part of tribal property, absent a federal law or treaty granting vested rights to individual members. . . . A member's right to tribal property is no more than prospective and inchoate unless federal law or tribal law recognizes a more definite right." [Citations omitted.]

STATUS OF HOOPA VALLEY RESERVATION

The decisions of the United States Court of Claims in the case of Jessie Short et al. v. United States (Ct. Cl. No. 102-63) and related cases, with respect to the interest of individual Indians in the revenues from the Hoopa Valley Reservation, and the decision of the Federal district court in the case of Puzz v. United States, with respect to the obligation to manage the resources of that reservation, while perhaps correct on the peculiar facts and law, have had a very unhappy result.

It is clear from the 1864 Act authorizing the establishment of Indian reservations in California and the 1876 and 1891 Executive Orders creating the Hoopa Valley Reservation pursuant to such Act that the reservation was created for tribal or communal Indian purposes. This is consistent with the foregoing discussion and with the law of the case in the Short case.

Yet, the Court of Claims in the Short case very clearly has held that neither the organized Hoopa Valley Tribe, the unorganized Yurok Tribe, nor any other Indian tribe has any vested right to the benefits the Hoopa Valley Reservation. This, too, is consistent with the foregoing discussion. The 1876 Executive Order, creating the Hoopa Valley Reservation, merely provides that it is "set apart for Indian purposes". Since, as noted, reservations are set aside for Indian tribes, since no tribes were designated in the order, and since the court did not find that the Secretary had definitely used or exhausted his discretion to settle any Indian tribe on the reservation, it is clear that no tribal vested rights, as against the plenary power of Congress to deal with the property, have arisen. This applies not only of Hoopa and Yurok tribal entitlements but also of Karuk claims and claims of groups such as the Tolowa, Wintun and Shasta who are currently seeking federal recognition of tribal status pursuant to 25 C.F.R. Part 83.

The Conclusions of Law by the Federal district court in the Healing v. Jones case might be instructive. The 1882 Executive Order creating the reservation did designate the Hopi Tribe as a beneficiary, but retained with the Secretary the right "to settle other Indians thereon". In Conclusion of Law No. 2, the court stated:

By force and effect of the Executive Order of December 16, 1882, . . . the Hopi Indian tribe, on December 16, 1882, for the common use and benefit of the Hopi Indians, acquired the non-vested (emphasis added) right to use and occupy the entire reservation . . . subject to the paramount title of the United States, and subject to such diminution in the rights . . . so acquired as might thereafter lawfully result from the exercise of the authority reserved in the Secretary to settle other Indians in the reservation.

It is the Committee's conclusion that, as found by the Short case, no constitutionally protected rights have vested in any Indian tribe in and to the communal lands and other resources of the Hoopa Valley Reservation. In carrying out the trust responsibility of the United States under Congress' plenary power, the Committee finds that H.R. 4469, as reported, is a reasonable and equitable method of resolving the confusion and uncertainty now existing on the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

While the court in the Short case has found that no tribe have a vested right in the reservation, it was equally clear on the point that none of the plaintiffs nor any other individual has a vested right in the property. Again, this holding of the court is consistent with the discussion above on the rights of tribal members in tribal property. Two cites from the Federal courts' several decisions in this case may be helpful. In a 1983 decision of the Circuit Court in this case, the court said:

At the close of our opinion we again stress—what the Court of Claims several times emphasized and we have interlaced supra—that all we are deciding are the standards to be applied in determining those plaintiffs who should share as individuals in the monies from the * * * Reservation unlawfully withheld by the United States. * * * This is solely a suit against the United States for monies, and everything we decide is in that connection alone; neither the Claims Court nor this court is issuing a general declaratory judgment. We are not deciding standards for membership in any tribe, band, or Indian group, nor are we ruling that Hoopa membership standards should or must control membership in a Yurok tribe or any other entity that may be organized on the Reservation.

In its March 17, 1987, decision, the court said:

. . . an individual Indian's rights in tribal or unallotted property arise only upon individualization; individual Indians do not hold vested severable interests in unallotted tribal lands and monies as tenants in common.

Again, the Committee agrees with the court in the Short case that neither the plaintiffs nor any other individuals have a vested right in the Hoopa Valley Reservation as against the right of Congress to make further disposition of that property. As noted above, Congress has power to make determinations about tribal membership with respect to the adjustment of participation in tribal property. The power is even more clear in this case, where, except for the Hoopa Valley Tribe, there is no organized tribe which has a definable membership.

The Committee is also aware that although Congress later authorized the establishment of additional reservations in California, the Act of April 8, 1864 authorized the establishment of four reservations, including Hoopa Valley, Round Valley, Tule River and Mission. As noted above, in the Puzz case, a federal district court construed the Act as requiring that the Bureau of Indian Affairs run the Hoopa Valley Reservation for the benefit of all individuals (including non-tribal members) who had ancestral connections with the Reservation, and also construed the Act as prohibiting the exercise of reserved tribal sovereign powers by Indian tribal governments, with respect to the Hoopa Valley Reservation. The Committee believes that the Puzz case is confined to the peculiar facts and law applicable to the Hoopa Valley Reservation, and it is the purpose of S. 2723 to reject the application of this view of the 1864 Act to any California reservation. S. 2723 should therefore help ease the concerns of other tribal councils whose reservation lands are affected in whole or in part by the 1864 Act or similar legislation. It is not true, as a general rule, that federally recognized tribal governing bodies on reservations set apart for more than one historical tribal group need federal authority conferred upon them in order to exercise territorial management powers. Application of such a rule would seriously interfere with tribal sovereignty and modern federal Indian policy.

SETTLEMENT PROVISIONS

S. 2723, as reported by the Committee, is a fair and equitable settlement of the dispute relating to the ownership and management of the Hoopa Valley Reservation. The Section-by-Section Analysis and Explanation which follows sets out in detail the provisions of the bill.

The bill provides for the partition of the joint reservation between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. As noted, the Committee has concluded that there are no tribal or individual vested rights in the reservation and that Congress has full power to dispose of the reservation as proposed. As a consequence, the Committee need not overly concern itself with precise comparable values in such partition. The Committee intends to deal fairly with all the interests in the reservation, and believes it has done so. The nature of the interests involved here, however, is such that Congress need not precisely determine, or provide, the full value that a fee simple interest in these lands and resources might have.

It is alleged that the "Square", to be partitioned to the Hoopa Valley Tribe, is much more valuable than the "Addition" which is to go to the Yurok Tribe. Tribal revenue from the "Square" is in excess of $1,000,000 annually. Tribal revenue derived from the "Addition" recently has totalled only about $175,000 annually. However, the record shows that individual Indian earnings derived from the tribal commercial fishing right appurtenant to the "Addition" is also in excess of $1,000,000 a year. The Committee also notes that because of the cooperative efforts of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and other management agencies to improve the Klamath River system, and because of the Fisheries Harvest Allocation Agreement apportioning an increased share of the allowable harvest to the Indian fishery, the tribal revenue potential from the "Addition" is substantial. While in recent years tribal income from the "Square" has exceeded tribal income from the "Addition," it is the judgment of the Committee that a functioning tribal government fulfilling the Congress' and the Executive's policy of self-determination merits a certain financial deference over a group of Indians which has previously elected not to have a functioning tribal government. See Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, Pub. L. No. 93-638, 88 Stat. 2203, codified at 25 U.S.C. §§450, et seq.; President's statement on Indian Policy, 19 Weekly Comp. Pres. Doc. 98, 99 (Jan. 24, 1983); S. Con. Res. 76, ordered reported, Senate Indian Committee, 100th Cong., 2nd Sess. (1988). Furthermore, the Committee is acting out of concern that the Hoopas have tended to live on the reservation and that their government be accorded sufficient resources to provide the services necessary to sustain their habitation. Indeed the majority of the Indians living on the combined reservation live on the "Square." The record shows that the Hoopa Valley Business Council is the only full-service local governmental organization on the combined reservation, and has been the major government service provider in the extremely isolated eastern half of Humboldt County. The Hoopa Valley Tribe was recognized by the Congress as warranting federal assistance and support for its self-governance efforts. Conf. Rep. No. 498, 100th Cong., 1st Sess. 889.

As noted elsewhere in this report, the proposed partition is also consistent with the aboriginal territory of the two named tribes involved, particularly since the Hoopa Valley Tribe formally organized in a way encompassing all Indian allotted land on the Square.

The bill also provides for certain settlement options to be made available to individual Indians who can meet the requirement of the court for qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation". With the exception of a limited option to become a member of the existing Hoopa Valley Tribe, the settlement options are either to become a member of the Yurok Tribe or to elect a buy-out option. The settlement terms are to be supported primarily through the use of funds earned from the reservation and maintained by the Secretary in escrow accounts.

The Committee wishes to make very clear that this offer of options by way of settlement of this problem in no way is to be construed as any recognition of individual rights in and to the reservation or the funds in escrow.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

On April 26, 1988, Congressman Bosco introduced H.R. 4469 to partition certain reservation lands between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Indians, to clarify the use of tribal timber lands, and for other purposes. The bill is co-sponsored by Representatives Coelho and Miller of California. The intent of the legislation is to resolve a long-standing controversy between the Hoopa Valley Tribe which is organized under constitutional provisions approved by the Secretary of the Interior and persons who are primarily, but not exclusively, of Yurok Indian descent.

On August 10, 1988, the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute and ordered H.R. 4469 reported. The bill is scheduled for a further hearing before the House Judiciary Committee on Friday, September 30, 1988.

On June 30, 1988, Chairman Inouye held an oversight hearing in Sacramento, California, to receive testimony on the general background of the problems and issues on the Hoopa Valley Reservation. This hearing was not directed to specific legislation, but was only for purpose of collecting background information.

On August 10, 1988, Senator Cranston introduced S. 2723, which is identical to H.R. 4469 as ordered reported. The Select Committee held hearings on this bill on September 14, 1988. On September 29, 1988, the Select Committee in open business session, adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute, and ordered the bill reported with a recommendation that the bill, as amended, be passed.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATION AND TABULATION OF VOTE

The Select Committee on Indian Affairs, in open business session on September 29, 1988, by unanimous vote of a quorum present, adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute and ordered the bill reported with a recommendation that S. 2723, as amended, be passed by the Senate.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

There follows a section-by-section analysis of S. 2723 as reported and, where appropriate or necessary, a further explanation of the provisions of the bill.

SECTION 1—SHORT TITLE AND DEFINITIONS

Subsection (a) provides that the Act may be cited as the "Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act".

Subsection (b) contains definitions of various terms used in the bill.

Among the more important definitions is the definition of "Escrow funds", which lists the accounts maintained by the Secretary of the Interior into which income from reservation economic activity (as opposed to individual trust monies) are deposited; "Indian of the Reservation", which is a term of art developed in the Short case to define those persons entitled under Short and companion cases as eligible plaintiffs in the claims against the United States arising from the distribution of income from reservation wide economic activities; and definition of "Short cases" to include all companion cases filed thus far.

SECTION 2—RESERVATIONS; PARTITION AND ADDITIONS

Subsection (a), paragraph (1), provides that, when the Hoopa Valley Tribe adopts a resolution waiving certain claims and granting consent as provided in paragraph (2), the Hoopa Valley Reservation as now constituted and as defined by the Federal Court in the Short case, shall be partitioned as provided in subsection (b) and (c). A technical amendment is added to make clear that the partition is linked to recognition and confirmation of the governing documents of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, as provided in Section 8.

Paragraph (2) provides that the partition of the reservation as provided in paragraph (1) shall not be effective unless the Hoopa Valley Tribe adopts a tribal resolution within 60 days of enactment waiving any claim they may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Act. The Secretary is required to publish the resolution in the Federal Register.

An amendment is added to make clear the consent of the Hoopa Valley Tribe to the contribution of the escrow funds to the Settlement Fund. This amendment was requested by the Justice Department. The Committee does not intend that the requirement for a Hoopa tribal waiver under this section or the Yurok tribal waiver requirement under section 9(d)(2) shall constitute a congressional recognition that such tribes or any other Indian tribe may have vested rights in the lands and resources of the joint reservation. In Hynes v. Grimes Packing Co. 337 U.S. 86, 103 (1949), the Supreme Court held that an executive order reservation "conveys no right of use or occupancy to the beneficiaries beyond the pleasure of Congress or the President."

Subsequent cases establish that the compensable right of a tribe in an executive order reservation depends upon its status as a confirmed or unconfirmed reservation. The exact legal status of the reservation is unclear from the various Federal court decisions relating to it. However, the decision of the Court of Claims in the Short case and the District Court in the Puzz case make clear that no existing Indian tribe as a tribe, including the Hoopa and Yurok tribes, have a vested right in the assets and resources of the Hoopa Valley Reservation as now constituted.

The Committee also does not intend that the waivers of the tribes, if given, shall present the tribes from enforcing rights or obligations created by this Act.

Subsection (b) provides that, effective with the partition as provided in subsection (a), that portion of the reservation known as the "Square" shall be recognized as the Hoopa Valley Reservation and shall be a reservation for the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Committee notes that, while the record before the Committee and the findings of the court in the Short cases show that the "Square" included aboriginal lands of the Yurok or Klamath Indians, most of the lands of the "Square" were within the aboriginal territory of the Hoopa and related bands and villages. This partition also conforms generally with the geography of the reservation which, as currently constituted, comprises two river drainages.

Subsection (c), paragraph (1), provides that, effective with the partition as provided in subsection (a), that portion of the reservation known as the "extension", excluding the lands of the Resighini Rancheria, shall be recognized as the Yurok Reservation and shall be a reservation for the Yurok Tribe. The Committee again notes that the lands comprising the new Yurok reservation were within the aboriginal lands of the Yurok or Klamath bands or villages. Karuk tribal aboriginal lands generally lay upstream of Yurok lands along the Klamath River, outside of the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Reservations.

Paragraph (2) provides that, subject to all valid existing rights, all national forest lands in the Yurok Reservation and about 14 acres of the Yurok Experimental Forest shall be transferred to the Yurok Tribe in trust. These lands contain buildings which will be immediately utilized by the Yurok Tribe. The Committee, therefore, expects the Secretary of the Interior to work with the Yurok Interim Council to ensure that these facilities are cleaned and renovated as soon as possible. This clean-up and renovation should be accomplished under the BIA's existing facilities maintenance and repair budget. In addition, the Secretary shall within six months report to Congress concerning the advantages, disadvantages, and procedural aspects of conveying to the Yurok Tribe all National Park System lands within the Yurok Reservation. If the Secretary does not recommend immediate conveyance of such lands, his recommendation shall include a proposed inter-governmental agreement which, pending any conveyance, will assure Yurok tribal hunting, fishing, and gathering rights, and reasonable ceremonial and religious access and use on such lands within the reservation.

Paragraph (3) provides that the existing authority of the Secretary to acquire lands for Indians and Indian tribes under the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 shall be applicable to the Yurok Tribe. $5,000,000 is authorized to be appropriated and is directed to be used for land acquisition for the Yurok Tribe with the limitation that such funds can be used to acquire land outside the reservation only for purposes of exchange for lands inside. An amendment is added to permit acquisition of lands adjacent to and contiguous with the Yurok reservation. The Committee expects that the Secretary will make use of this and other authority to, among other things, insure that Indian lands within the reservation are not, or do not become, landlocked. The Committee is aware that the acquisition of new lands will increase the costs of land and resource management. The Committee, therefore, directs the Secretary to consider these additional costs when preparing the future budgets of the Yurok Tribe.

Paragraph (4) provides that (1) the transfer of funds to the Yurok Tribe under section 4 and 7; (2) the land transfer under subsection 2(c)(2); (3) the land acquisition authority of section 2(c)(3); and (4) the organizational authorities for the Yurok Tribe under section 9 shall not be effective unless the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe adopts a resolution waiving any claims it might have against the United States under this Act and granting consent as provided in section 9(d)(2). Section 9 of the bill provides for an Interim Council to be elected by the General Council of the tribe.

Subsection (d) provides that the boundary line between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok reservations, as partitioned in this section, shall be the line established by the Bissel-Smith survey and that the Secretary shall publish the boundary descriptions in the Federal Register. Use of the Bissel-Smith survey for purposes of defining the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation results in the addition of lands to the Yurok Reservation in the upper reaches of the extension near the junction of the Kalamath River with the Trinity River. The transition village known as "Peekta" Point, claimed by the Yurok Tribe, now apparently becomes part of the Yurok Reservation.

Subsection (e) provides for the management of the tribal lands of the Yurok Reservation by the Secretary until the organization of the tribe under section 9 and, thereafter, by the Yurok Tribe.

Subsection (f) provides that the State of California shall continue to have criminal and civil jurisdiction on the two reservations under Public Law 83-280 with authority to retrocede such jurisdiction to the United States.

SECTION 3—PRESERVATION OF SHORT CASES

Section 3 provides that nothing in this Act shall affect, in any way whatsoever, the individual entitlements already established in the various decisions of the Federal courts in the so-called Short cases nor any eventual entry of final judgment in those cases.

When final judgment is entered in the Short cases, the court will have determined which of the 3,800 intervening individual plaintiffs have met the standards of the court for qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation" and will have determined the amount of monetary damages to which each such individual plaintiff is entitled from the United States. Nothing in this legislation is intended to affect the right of such individuals to that final award under the law of the case. While the Committee does not believe that this legislation, as a prospective settlement of this dispute, is in any way in conflict with the law of the case in the Short cases, to the extent there is such a conflict, it is intended that this legislation will govern.

SECTION 4—HOOPA-YUROK SETTLEMENT FUND

Subsection (a), paragraph (1), establishes a Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund into which the Secretary is directed to deposit all Escrow funds, together with accrued income, derived from revenue of the reservation. The definition of the Escrow funds is intended to be a comprehensive list of the funds and accounts, in federal hands, derived from the lands or resources of the joint reservation. It is estimated that this amount now totals approximately $65,000,000.

Paragraph (2) permits the Secretary to continue to make payments to the Hoopa Valley Tribe, out of the interest or principal of the Settlement Fund, for tribal governmental and management purposes, excluding per capita payments, in an amount not to exceed $3,500,000 per fiscal year. These payments will be deducted from what would otherwise be the Hoopa Valley Tribe's share as apportioned by subsection (c).

Paragraph (3) as added by the Committee authorizes the Secretary to provide appropriated funds to the Yurok Transition Team, and also authorizes the Secretary to make payments to the Yurok Transition Team, out of the interest or principal of the Settlement Fund, for the purposes for which the Yurok Transition Team is established under section 9, in an amount not to exceed $500,000 per fiscal year. These payments will be deducted from what would otherwise be the Yurok Tribe's share as apportioned by subsection (d).

Subsection (b) provides that the Secretary shall make payments from the Settlement Fund as provided in this Act and, pending dissolution of the Fund, shall administer and invest such funds as Indian trust funds are administered.

Subsection (c) directs the Secretary, upon publication of the option election date pursuant to section 6(a)(4), to pay out of the Fund and to hold in trust for the Hoopa Valley Tribe an amount which shall be based upon the percentage arrived at by dividing the number of members of the Hoopa Tribe as of such date by the sum of the number of such members and the number of persons on the final roll prepared pursuant to section 5. After the elections pursuant to section 6 have been made, the payment to the Hoopa Valley Tribe shall be increased or decreased based on the persons who are enrolled in the Tribe pursuant to section 6. Under this formula, it is estimated that approximately $23 million will be paid to the Hoopa Tribe. This is roughly one-third of the entire Settlement Fund.

Subsection (d) directs the Secretary to make a similar payment for the Yurok Tribe with the amount being determined by dividing the number of persons on the Settlement Roll electing to be members of the Yurok Tribe by the sum of the number of members of the Hoopa Tribe, as determined under subsection (c), and the number of persons on such roll prepared under section 5. The amount allocated to the Yurok Tribe will be based on how many individuals meeting the Short case standards elect to become members of the Yurok Tribe. If only 25% of the adults eligible accept the Yurok membership option, approximately $6.7 million remaining in the Settlement account, for a total tribe share of $18.1 million. According to the pro-organization Yurok group the 25% membership estimate is extremely low. They estimate that the percentage accepting tribal membership will exceed 50%. If this is true the Yurok Tribe will receive in excess of $23.5 million. This is roughly one-third of the entire Settlement Fund.

Subsection (e) authorizes the appropriation of $10,000,000 for deposit in the Settlement Fund as the Federal share after Hoopa and Yurok tribal payments pursuant to section 4 and the payments to the Yurok member pursuant to section 6(c) are made. The Fund, with the Federal share and with any earned income, is to be available to make the payments authorized by section 6(d).

As noted elsewhere in this report, it is in large part due to the unjust, historical treatment of California Indians by the United States, to the enactment and promulgation of confusing and ambiguous laws, and to the vacillating and uncertain policies of U.S. officials that his unfortunate situation now exists. The Committee feels that $10,000,000 of Federal funds, added to the funds of the Indians, is a small price to pay to rectify this situation and permit implementation of the federal policy of government-to-government relations with the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes.

SECTION 5—HOOPA-YUROK SETTLEMENT ROLL

Subsection (a) directs the Secretary to prepare a roll of all persons who can meet the criteria established by the Federal courts in the Short case for qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation" and who also (1) were born on or prior to, and living on, the date of enactment; (2) are citizens of the United States; and (3) were not members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as of August 8, 1988. The Secretary's determination is final except that plaintiffs in the Short cases who have been found by the Federal court to meet the qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation" shall be included on the roll if they meet the other requirements and those who are found by the court not to meet such qualifications may not be included on the roll. Persons who are not plaintiffs in the Short cases may also be included on the roll if they timely apply and meet the criteria established. The Committee expects the Secretary to place on the roll the names of all living Indians of the Reservation held qualified in the Short cases whether or not an application is timely received from such persons, since address changes or other unforeseen event may prevent persons from receiving actual notice, and the qualifications of such persons are readily verified.

Subsection (b) requires the Secretary, within 30 days of enactment, to give notice of the right to apply for enrollment under this section. It requires actual notice by registered mail to Short plaintiffs, notice to their attorneys, and notice in local newspapers. Such notice is also to be published in the Federal Register.

Subsection (c) establishes the deadline for applications as 120 days after the Federal Register publication in subsection (b).

Subsection (d), paragraph (1), provides that the Secretary shall make his determinations of eligibility and publish a final roll in the Federal Register 180 days after the date established in subsection (c).

Paragraph (2) requires the Secretary to establish procedures for the consideration of appeals from applicants not included on the final roll. These appeals will not prevent the roll from being made final. Successful appellants are to be later added to the roll and any payments they become entitled to, as a result of the election of options, are to be paid from any funds remaining in the Settlement Fund before payment to the Yurok tribe as provided in section 7. The subsequent inclusion of such persons on the roll, and any election of option they may make, are not to affect any calculations made for the payments to the Hoopa and Yurok Tribe under section 4. However, deletion of persons found erroneously to have been included on the roll may lead to adjustment of the calculations and payments made under section 4.

Subsection (e) provides that anyone not included on the final Settlement Roll shall not have any interest in the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Yurok Reservation, or the Yurok Tribe or in the Settlement Fund unless they may be subsequently admitted to tribal membership by either of those tribes. The provisions of this subsection are not intended to imply an congressional determination that such persons do now have any such interest. Nor are these provisions intended to imply that the federal Indian status of any person would be lost by omission from the final Settlement Roll. These are not termination provisions, as explained under section 6(d).

SECTION 6—ELECTION OF SETTLEMENT OPTIONS.

As noted elsewhere, the court has determined that, while the lands and resources of the Hoopa Valley Reservation as now constituted are tribal or communal property, neither the Hoopa or Yurok Tribe nor any other tribe has a vested right in such property. Where the tribal property right is vested, if at all, is problematical and probably remains with the United States subject to disposition pursuant to the rationale of the Hynes v. Grimes Packing Co. case.

In any case, under the general theories of Federal-Indian law and under the law of the case of the Short cases, it is the Committee's conclusion that no individual, including persons meeting the qualifications of the court as an "Indian of the Reservation" or members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, separately or collectively, have any legally enforceable right in the lands and resources of the reservation.

Therefore, the settlement provisions of this section are not to be construed as a congressional recognition, directly or impliedly, that such individuals have any such right or that the payments or benefits conferred by this section are in payment for the taking of any such rights. The Committee is seeking to further the responsibility of the Congress and the United States as the trustee and guardian of Indian tribes and property to resolve the chaos and uncertainty now affecting these Indians, these tribes, and this property. The benefits made available to individuals under this section are a recognition that they may have an inchoate or expectancy interest in such property and that, as a matter of fairness, they should be given reasonable options for settlement.

It is also the Committee's intent that the election of an option under this section, together with all the valuable benefits which flow therefrom, shall constitute a waiver by the individual so electing of any claim such person may have against the United States arising out of this Act except those created by sections 5 and 6.

Subsection (a), paragraph (1), provides that, 60 days after publication of the Settlement Roll, the Secretary shall give notice by registered mail to all adult persons on the roll of their right to elect an option under the Act.

Paragraph (2) provides that the notice must be comprehensive with an objective analysis of advantages and disadvantages of each option, but couched in easily understood language. S. 2723, as introduced, would provide that the election of an eligible adult would bind minor children under their guardianship who are also on the roll. The Committee deleted this provision and amended paragraphs (2) and (3) provide that minor children will be deemed to have elected membership in the Yurok Tribe, with certain exceptions. In addition, the Committee added language specifying that the notice discuss counseling services that the Yurok Transition Team and the Secretary shall provide, and the affidavit requirement of section 6(d).

Paragraph (3) as amended by the Committee, automatically makes minors on the roll members of the Yurok Tribe unless the parent or guardian comes forward with proof, satisfactory to the Secretary, that the minor is enrolled in another tribe that prohibits members from enrolling elsewhere. Thus, in the case of a child who is already an enrolled member of another federally recognized tribe, such parent or guardian may elect the tribe in which such child will be enrolled. Therefore, with respect to minors on the roll who do not also have a parent or guardian on the roll, notice is to be given to the parent or guardian of such minor. The paragraph further directs that the minor's funds be invested and administered as Indian trust funds, like the Settlement Fund itself, until the age of majority is reached.

Paragraph (4) provides that the Secretary shall establish the deadline for making a choice as the date which is 120 days after the date of promulgation of the Settlement Roll as provided in section 5(d). Persons not making an election by the date established under this paragraph are deemed to have made an election under subsection (c). The Committee believes it is important that no person on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll lose benefits and privileges flowing from Yurok tribal membership and connection with the Yurok Reservation by virtue of inadvertence, failure to receive actual notice, accident or other unforeseeable events. Accordingly, persons failing to act timely will be deemed to have elected Yurok tribal membership if they accept and cash the check representing the payment authorized by subsection (c).

The Committee believes that acceptance of the payment also establishes the consensual release of rights that accompanies this election. On the other hand, one who fails or refuses to make an election, and refuses to accept the payment authorized by subsection (c) may not be deemed to have granted a release or to have granted a proxy to the Yurok Interim Tribal Council. Thus, refusing to accept the payment is one method by which persons who do not wish to join the Yurok Tribe may avoid becoming members. Persons already enrolled in another Indian tribe that prohibits dual enrollment may, for example, wish to decline Yurok tribal membership. In addition, a person who becomes a member of any Indian tribe is at liberty to terminate the tribal relationship whenever he or she so chooses. E.g., F. Cohen, Handbook of Federal Indian Law 22 (1982 Ed.).

Subsection (b), paragraph (1), provides that any person on the roll, 18 years or older, who can meet certain membership criteria of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as established by the U.S. Claims Court and who (1) maintains a residence on the reservation on the date of enactment; (2) had, within five years prior to enactment, maintained such residence; (3) owns an interest in real property on the reservation can elect to become a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Paragraph (2) provides that the Secretary shall cause such person to be so enrolled notwithstanding any laws of the Hoopa Valley Tribe to the contrary and, after being so enrolled, such person will be a full member of the tribe for all purposes.

Paragraph (3) provides that the Secretary will assign to such person the degree of Indian blood or Hoopa Indian blood, as appropriate, based upon the criteria established by the Federal Court in the Short case.

Paragraph (4) provides that any person making such an election shall no longer have any interest in the Yurok Reservation, the Yurok Tribe, or the Settlement Fund. This paragraph and paragraphs (c)(4) and (d)(2) do not contemplate that such persons now have any particular interest, but that, to the extent they do, it will be automatically relinquished upon an election of one of the options.

Subsection (c), paragraph (1), provides that any person on the final roll may elect to become a member of the Yurok Tribe and participate in the organization of the tribe pursuant to section 9.

Paragraph (2) provides that persons making such election shall form the base membership roll of the Yurok Tribe and the Secretary shall assign to a person making such an election the degree of Indian blood determined using the criteria of the Federal court.

Paragraph (3) directs the Secretary, to pay to each person under age 50 and making an election under this subsection $5,000 out of the Settlement Fund; $7,500 for those age 50 or older. These sums were established on the basis of the Committee's amendment. The distribution of such funds shall be subject to the provisions of Section 7 of the Act of October 19, 1973 (87 Stat. 466), as amended (25 U.S.C. § 1407).

Paragraph (4) provides that persons making an election under this subsection shall no longer have any interest in the Hoopa Valley Reservation or the Hoopa Valley Tribe or, except as provided in paragraph (3), in the Settlement Fund. As amended by the Committee, additional language is included to provide that the exercise of the option shall authorize the Yurok Interim Council to waive claims of the Yurok Tribe against the United States.

Subsection (d), paragraph (1), provides that any person on the final roll can make an election to receive a lump sum payment from the Settlement Fund and directs the Secretary to pay to each such person the amount of $15,000 out of the Settlement Fund. This sum was decreased from the $20,000 provided in S. 2723 as originally introduced. Election of this option, however, has been conditioned by the Committee upon completion of an affidavit concerning counseling regarding the effects of such an election. This subsection does not suggest, and the Committee does not intend that this Act change the federal Indian status of any person, regardless of the option elected, nor does this Act end federal trust restrictions that may exist as to any allotted or unallotted trust land, property resources or rights. The option provided by section 6(d) is not a termination provision; it merely offers a lump-sum payment to persons on the settlement roll who wish to have no future interests or rights in the tribal, communal, or unallotted land, property, resources, or rights in the tribal, communal, or unallotted land, property, resources, or rights of the Hoopa Valley Reservation or the Yurok Reservation or the Hoopa or Yurok tribes. By contract, the language of the Western Indians Termination Statute declared that the purpose of the Statute was, among other things, "for a termination of Federal services furnished such Indians because of their status as Indians." 25 U.S.C. 691. That termination Act provided that:

Thereafter individual members of the Tribe shall not be entitled to any services performed by the United States for Indians because of their status as Indians, all statutes of the United States which affect Indians because of their status as Indians * * * shall no longer be applicable to the members of the Tribe, and the laws of the several States shall apply to the tribe and its members in the same manner as they apply to other citizens or persons within their jurisdiction. 25 U.S.C. 703(a)(1982)

Neither section 6(d) nor any other provision of this Act is so intended. This Act does not represent a return to a national policy of termination or of encouraging tribal members to withdraw from their tribes. However, the circumstances concerning this reservation and the complex litigation which has prevented tribal self-determination justify the congressional role in restoration of tribal self-governance represented by this Act.

Paragraph (2) provides that any person making an election under this subsection shall no longer have any interest in the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Yurok Reservation, and the Yurok Tribe and, except as provided in paragraph (2), in the Settlement Fund.

SECTION 7—DIVISION OF SETTLEMENT FUND REMAINDER

Subsection (a) provides that any funds remaining in the Settlement Fund after payments made pursuant to section 6 and to successful appellants shall be held in trust by the Secretary for the Yurok Tribe.

Subsection (b) provides that funds apportioned to the two tribes by section 4 and 6 shall not be available for per capita distribution for a period of ten years after the date of division made under this section. Other tribal funds, or income of the apportioned funds, are not intended to be restricted by this subsection. As amended by the Committee this would allow the Hoopa Tribe to make one or more per capital payments to its members from such funds, totalling not more than $5,000, a sum similar to that provided for those electing to become members of the Yurok Tribe. There is no provision for a bonus payment to those 50 years or older since no election is involved and the Hoopa members have been receiving the full range of federal services over the years. Under the Act of August 1, 1983, the Committee understands that payments on behalf of minor tribal members shall be held in trust accounts and invested for the minors.

SECTION 8—HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE; CONFIRMATION OF STATUS

Section 8 preserves, ratifies, and confirms the existing status of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as a Federally-recognized tribe and reinstates full recognition of its governing documents and governing body as heretofore recognized by the Secretary.

In the record before the Committee and in the findings of the court in the Short cases, some significance is attached to the fact that some members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe had admixtures of the blood of the Yurok or other tribes or, in some cases, that such admixture was greater than their Hoopa blood. The Committee does not attach any significance to this fact by itself nor does it find that this admixture of tribal blood detracts from the integrity of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as a tribe of Indians. Most, if not all, Federally-recognized Indian tribes have members who are not of the full degree of blood of the ancestral tribe. Through inter-tribal marriages, most Indian tribes have a membership of mixed Indian blood. Indeed, most have a membership with mixed Indian and non-Indian blood. The Hoopa Valley Tribe clearly has and continues to function as an Indian tribe in the political sense.

SECTION 9—RECOGNITION AND ORGANIZATION OF THE YUROK TRIBE

This section provides for the development of a membership for a Yurok Tribe and for its organization. The Committee realizes that there may be some people on the Settlement Roll who will have little or no Yurok Indian blood who may wish to select this option. The discussion under section 8 above is relevant here.

Subsection (a), paragraph (1), provides that those persons electing the Yurok Membership option under section 6 shall form the base roll of the Yurok Tribe whose status as a Federally-recognized tribe, subject to the adoption of the Interim Council resolution required by subsection (c), is ratified and confirmed. The Committee substituted the term "Interim Council" for the term "General Council."

Paragraph (2) provides that the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 shall apply to the Yurok Tribe.

Paragraph (3) directs the Secretary promptly to consult with the Select Committee on Indian Affairs, the House Insular and Interior Affairs Committee and any other appropriate committee and, within 30 days of enactment, appoint five individuals to comprise the Yurok Transition Team. Since the Interim Council will not be nominated or elected until after preparation of the Settlement Roll and election of options, a process that will take over one year, a Transition Team to aid the Yurok Tribe's organizational process is essential.

A key function of the Yurok Transition Team is to provide counseling to persons who are or may be eligible for inclusion in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll with respect to inclusion in the Settlement Roll, the advantages and disadvantages of each of the settlement options available under section 6, and related issues. In particular, the Yurok Transition Team must counsel people concerning the current or potential benefits which will or may be derived by membership in the Yurok Tribe or the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and from connections with the Yurok or Hoopa Valley reservation. This must include discussion of any possible effect on the future tribal membership of children of individuals who may elect the option of sections 6(c) and 6(d). However, this paragraph does not suggest, and the Committee does not intend that any part of this Act change the federal Indian status of any person, for purposes of programs and benefits in which membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe is not a prerequisite, regardless of the option elected. Nor does this Act end federal restrictions that may exist as to any allotted or unallotted trust land or resources. As noted elsewhere, the option provided by section 6(d) is not a termination provision; and it should not be portrayed as such; the subsection merely offers a lump-sum payment to persons on the Settlement Roll who wish to have no future interest or right in the tribal, communal, or unallotted land, property, resources, or rights of the Hoopa Valley Reservation or the Yurok Reservation or the Hoopa or Yurok tribe.

Subsection (b) provides for the creation of an Interim Council for the Yurok Tribe of five members to represent the Yurok Tribe in the implementation of the Act and to act as the tribal governing body until a tribal council is elected under a constitution adopted pursuant to this section.

Subsection (c), paragraph (1), provides that the Secretary, within 30 days of the deadline for election of options, shall prepare a list of all adults on the Settlement Roll who elected the Yurok Membership option who will constitute the eligible voters of the tribe for organizational purposes. The Secretary must send them notice of date, time, purpose, and order of procedure of the general council meeting to be scheduled pursuant to paragraph (2).

Paragraph (2) provides that, within a set time after such notice, the Secretary shall convene a general council meeting of the Yurok Tribe on or near the Yurok Reservation. The business of such meeting is to nominate candidates for election to the Interim Council. Only persons on the list prepared under paragraph (1) are eligible for nomination. As amended by the Committee the resolution waiving claims against the United States may be executed by the Interim Council based upon the proxies received from persons electing tribal membership.

Paragraph (3) provides that, within 45 days after the general council meeting, the Secretary shall conduct an election for the Interim Council from among the persons nominated. Absentee balloting and write-in voting is to be permitted. The Secretary must give the eligible voters adequate notice of the election.

Paragraph (4) requires the Secretary to certify the results of the election and to convene an organizational meeting of the newly elected Interim Council.

Paragraph (5) provides that vacancies on the Council shall be filled by a vote of the other members.

Subsection (d), paragraph (1), provides that the Interim Council shall have no powers except those conferred by this Act.

Paragraph (2) provides that the Council shall have full authority to secure the benefits of Federal programs for the tribe and its members, including those administered by the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Health and Human Services and shall have authority to execute the necessary waiver of claims against the United States, and consent to allocation of the escrow funds to the Settlement Fund.

Paragraph (3) provides that the Council shall have such other powers as the Secretary normally recognizes in an Indian tribal governing body, except that it may not legally or contractually bind the tribe for a period in excess of two years from the date of their election. The Committee's amendment revised this language to provide that any contract of more than two years duration will be subject to disapproval by the Secretary of the Interior under limited circumstances.

Paragraph (4) provides that the Interim Council shall appoint a drafting committee which shall be responsible for the development of a draft constitution for submission to the Secretary.

Paragraph (5) provides that the Interim Council shall be dissolved upon election of the initial governing body under such constitution when adopted or at the end of two years after their installation, whichever occurs first.

Subsection (e) provides that the Secretary, upon the request of the Interim Council and the submission of the draft constitution, shall take all steps necessary under the provisions of the Indian Reorganization Act for the adoption of a tribal constitution and the election of the initial tribal council under such constitution when adopted. The Committee recognizes that the Yurok Tribe has a sovereign right to select tribal membership provisions for its constitution. The Tribe may prohibit the dual enrollment of Yurok tribal members in other Indian tribes, for example, as many other tribes do. Both because it is the Yurok Tribe's right to determine its membership criteria and because the Tribe will have to live with the consequences of its decision, the Committee is reluctant to require inclusion of specific membership provisions. Nevertheless, the Committee hopes and presumes that children born after the date of enactment of this Act (who of course are not included in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll) and who meet the applicable Indian blood requirement, if any, established by the Yurok Tribe, but whose parents may have elected the option of section 6(d) will nevertheless be favorably considered for enrollment in the Yurok Tribe although their parents may not be members of the Yurok Tribe. The Committee is concerned that an injustice will occur if the Yurok Tribe prohibits the enrollment of children born after the date of enactment of this Act who possess the necessary blood quantum required by the Yurok Tribe's constitution, but whose parents elected the lump-sum option instead of enrollment in the Yurok Tribe.

It is not intended by this section that the Indian Reorganization Act shall provide the only means by which the Yurok Tribe may be organized. Nor does the Committee intend that the Constitution prepared by the drafting committee pursuant to subsection (e) is the only one upon which the Secretary may conduct an election in the future.

SECTION 10—ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The amendment added a new Section 10 directing that a plan for economic self-sufficiency for the Yurok Tribe be developed and submitted to Congress by the Secretary of the Interior, in conjunction with the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe and the Yurok Transition Team, to determine the long-term needs of the Tribe. The Secretary is expected to seek the assistance and cooperation of the secretaries of Health and Human Services and other federal agencies. The Committee is aware that the Yurok Tribe has not received the majority of services provided to other federally recognized tribes. As a result, it lacks adequate housing and many of the facilities, utilities, roads and other infrastructure necessary for a developing community. In addition, the Committee is aware that many of the road, realty and fisheries management services on the "Addition" have been provided in the past by the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Committee is, therefore, concerned about how the Bureau of Indian Affairs plans to address these needs, and directs the Secretary to work with the Yurok Tribe to develop proposed solutions to these and other related problems. The Committee is specifically interested in the feasibility and cost of constructing a road from U.S. Highway 101 to California Highway 96. It is also concerned that the Department of the Interior does not currently have adequate land records and surveys of the "Addition". The Committee, therefore, expects that the Department will conduct all necessary surveys to ascertain the legal status of such lands. It also expects the plan to address such things as the number of additional federal employees required to service the Yurok Tribe and placement of the Tribe's facilities construction needs on the BIA, IHS, and other federal agency construction priority lists. The Committee wishes to clarify, however, that the development of this plan should in no way delay the provision of services to the Yurok Tribe and/or the construction of federal and tribal facilities.

SECTION 11—SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS

This section was designated Section 10 in S. 2723, as introduced.

Subsection (a) provides that the 20-acre land assignment on the Hoopa Valley Reservation made by the BIA in 1947 to the Smokers family shall continue in effect and may pass by descent or devise to relatives of one-fourth or more Indian blood of members domiciled on the assignment as of the date of enactment.

Subsection (b) provides that within 90 days after enactment, the Secretary shall conduct elections for the Resighini, Trinidad, and Big Lagoon, Rancherias concerning merger with the Yurok Tribe. If a majority of those voting approves, the Rancherias should fully merge their lands, assets and membership with the Yurok Tribe. The Secretary is to publish in the Federal Register notice of the effective date of any such merger. The Committee deleted reference to Blue Lake, Smith River, Elk Valley, and Tolowa Rancherias on the grounds that these rancherias are not historically of Yurok origin. A new subsection (c) was added to provide protection for existing property rights.

SECTION 12—KLAMATH RIVER BASIN FISHERIES TASK FORCE

Subsection (a) amends the Act of October 27, 1986, establishing the Klamath River Basin Fisheries Task Force, by providing for a representative of the Yurok and of the Karuk Tribes on such task force. The Secretary is to appoint the first Yurok representatives who will serve until the Yurok Tribe is organized and appoints its own representative.

Subsection (b) provides that the term of the initial Yurok and Karuk members appointed shall be for that time remaining on the terms of existing task force members and, thereafter, as provided by the provisions of the 1986 Act.

SECTION 13—TRIBAL TIMBER SALES PROCEEDS USE

Section 11 amends section 7 of the Act of June 25, 1910 (25 U.S.C. 407) by making clear that timber sales proceeds from Indian reservations shall be used only for the benefit of the tribe or tribes located on such reservations and their members.

In the Short case, the Circuit Court interpreted section 407, as applicable to the facts and circumstances of that case, in a manner which could cause mischief if applied to other Indian tribes and other facts and circumstances. The amendment simply makes clear that revenue from tribal timber resources are to be used solely for the tribes located on such reservation and, through such tribes, their members.

SECTION 14—LIMITATIONS OF ACTIONS; WAIVER OF CLAIMS

A statute of limitations is very necessary to avoid uncertainty about the possible applicability of 28 U.S.C. §§ 2501 (six years), 2409a (12 years) and County of Oneida v. Oneida Indian Nation, 470 U.S. 226 (1985) (no statute of limitation). The Committee finds that the periods provided in this section are reasonable under the circumstances. Further, the limitations here are rationally related to fulfillment of Congress' unique obligation to Indian tribes and individuals. E.g., Littlewolf v. Hodel, 681 F. Supp. 929 (D.D.C. 1988).

Subsection (a) provides that any claim challenging the constitutionality of this Act as a taking under the 5th Amendment of the Constitution shall be brought in the United States Claims Court under sections 1491 and 1505 of title 28, United States Code.

Subsection (b), paragraph (1), provides that any such suit by an individual, entity, or tribe other than the Hoopa Valley or Yurok Tribes, shall be barred unless brought within 210 days of the date of partition of the joint reservation or 120 days after the date for the election of options as established by section 6(a)(3), whichever is later.

Paragraph (2) provides that any such claim by the Hoopa Valley Tribe must be brought within 180 days of enactment or be barred.

Paragraph (3) provides that any such claim by the Yurok Tribe must be brought within 180 days of the date of the general council meeting under section 9(c)(2)(A) or be barred.

Again, the Committee reiterates its conclusion that no individual or tribe has a vested, constitutionally protected right in the lands and resources of the joint reservation. The statute of limitations in this subsection are simply included to bring about some certainty and out of an abundance of caution.

Subsection (c) provides that the Secretary shall make a report to the Congress on any final judgment in any litigation brought pursuant to this section together with any recommendations deemed necessary. New language was added by the Committee to provide for a stay of payment of any judgment that might be rendered against the United States, in order to provide time for the Department to provide Congress with a report.

SECTION 15—HEALTH ISSUES

A new Section 15 was added to provide for clean up of dump sites on the newly established Yurok Reservation. The Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of the Interior are directed to enter into a memorandum of understanding with Humboldt County for the clean up and maintenance of these sites. Costs are estimated at approximately $40,000 for the clean up and $8,000 per year for maintenance.

COST AND BUDGETARY CONSIDERATIONS

The authorization levels and purposes for which funds may be expended set forth in S. 2723 are identical to the companion bill, H.R. 4469, reported out of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs on August 10, 1988. The cost estimate for H.R. 4469, and thus S. 2723, are set forth below:

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

SEPTEMBER 9, 1988.

1. Bill number: H.R. 4469.
2. Bill title: Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.
3. Bill status: As amended and ordered reported by the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, August 10, 1988.

4. Bill purpose: This bill would, if certain conditions are met, partition specified joint Indian reservation lands in northern California into the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation. It would also establish the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund, and require the Secretary of the Interior to deposit into it escrow funds and interest earnings from designated trust accounts. The bill would require the Secretary to make distributions from the fund into trust accounts for the Hoopa Valley and Yurok tribes, and to make payments to eligible individuals electing certain tribal membership options. The bill authorizes the appropriation of $10 million to be deposited into the Settlement Fund for the purpose of making lump-sum payments to such individuals.

The bill would also require the Secretary of the Interior to administer the partitioning of the lands and the two tribes. This responsibility would include specifying the reservation lands and boundaries, preparing an eligibility roll and final Settlement Roll, providing for the election of a settlement option by those on the Settlement Roll and establishing them as tribal members, organizing a general council meeting of the Yurok Tribe, and providing for the election of an Interim Council for that tribe. The bill permits the Secretary to use up to $5 million of Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) funds to acquire lands or interest in lands for the Yurok Tribe or its members.

5. Estimated Cost to the Federal Government:

[By fiscal year, in millions of dollars]

Estimated authorization level	10	(¹)

Basis of Estimate

The estimated costs of this bill reflect the authorization and distribution of $10 million for lump-sum payments of $20,000 each to eligible individuals choosing not to become members of either the Hoopa Valley or Yurok Tribes. Based on information provided by the BIA, the number of individuals expected to choose this option is at least 500, the number that would exhaust $10 million authorization.

Additional lump-sum and other payments required under this bill would come out of the Settlement Fund, which would have a balance of more than $50 million. The Settlement Fund money is currently being held in escrow and, in the absence of legislation, would be available for distribution upon resolution of a pending court claims. The estimate assumes that the bill would not significantly affect the timing or amount of spending of the amounts currently held in escrow relative to current law.

The administrative task associated with partitioning the reservation and the tribes are estimated to result in additional costs of approximately $500,000 in the first two fiscal years after enactment. We estimate no additional costs for land acquisition, based on information provided by the BIA that the agency would not exercise the authority provided in the bill for such activity. Other provisions of the bill are not expected to result in significant additional cost.

6. Estimated cost to State and local governments: None.
7. Estimated comparison: None.
8. Previous CBO estimate: None.
9. Estimate prepared by: Carol Cohen.
10. Estimate approved by: C.G. Nuckols (for James L. Blum, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis).

REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

Paragraph 11(b) of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate requires each report accompanying a bill to evaluate the regulatory and paperwork impact that would be incurred in carrying out the bill. The Committee believes that S. 2723, as amended, will have a minimal impact on regulatory or paperwork requirements.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS

The Committee received the following statements from the Department of the Interior and the Department of Justice at its hearing on September 14, 1988:

STATEMENT OF ROSS O. SWIMMER, ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR INDIAN AFFAIRS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

Good morning Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I am pleased to be here today to discuss S. 2723, a bill "To partition certain reservation lands between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Indians, to clarify the use of tribal timber proceeds, and for other purposes."

We object to enactment of S. 2723 unless it is amended to meet our concerns, especially with regard to the deletion of an unjustified Federal contribution of $15 million, we would recommend that the President veto the bill.

Since the 1950's there has been a dispute among the Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation in Northern California as to who is entitled to share in the timber proceeds from the "Square" portion of that Reservation. (The Square is in Hoopa Valley, and the "Extension" follows the Klamath River to the Pacific.) Following a 1958 opinion of the Solicitor's Office that the Hoopa Valley Tribe was entitled to receive all the timber income, individual Indians, now numbering some 3800 of Yurok and other tribal groups, brought suit in 1963 for damages for their exclusion from shares in the income (Jessie Short, et al. v. United States, No. 102-63, United States Claims Court). The Yurok Tribe has never organized itself as a political or corporate entity, and thus has no spokesmen or official representatives.

At the time the litigation was begun, the Square was treated as a separate reservation from the Extension. In 1973, the Court of Claims held that there was but a single reservation. Subsequently, the Court ruled that all the "Indians of the Reservation" are entitled to participate in per capita distributions of the income from the timber on the unallotted (tribal) lands of the Square. From 1974-1978 efforts were made to determine the identity of the "Indians of the Reservation" and to mediate a settlement.

In 1979, the Government moved to substitute the Yurok Tribe for the 3800 individual plaintiffs, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe, as intervenor, moved to dismiss the case. In 1981, the Court of Claims denied the motions and ruled that successful plaintiffs would be determined on standards similar to the standards for membership in the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed. The petitions for certiorari filed by the Hoopa Valley Tribe and 1200 of the plaintiffs, the third unsuccessful effort to obtain certiorari in the case, were denied by the Supreme Court on June 19, 1984.

In 1980 another suit was filed (Lillian Blake Puz, et al. v. United States et al., No. C-80-2908 TEH, U.S.D.C., N.D. California) by six individuals claiming to be Indians of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation whose rights to participate in reservation administration and to benefit from the reservation's resources were allegedly denied by the Federal Government in violation of their constitutional rights to equal protection.

Plaintiffs' claims were initially premised on individual Indian ownership of the unallotted reservation resources, although they later also asserted that all "Indians of the Reservation" constituted one tribe, and that all individual Indians should have a vote in that tribe's government. The Government's position was that the reservation was created for Indian tribes, not individual Indians, and that the recognition of Indian tribes is a political question for determination by the Congress and the Executive Branch and such determinations are not reviewable by the courts.

On April 8, 1988, the court issued an order in which Judge Henderson agreed with the Government that the reservation was created for Indian tribes except that the Hoopa Valley Reservation was not created for a single tribe but for "all tribes which were living there and could be induced to live there." Order at p. 7. The court concluded that Federal recognition of the Hoopa Tribe did not give the tribe exclusive control over any reservation lands and resources.

The court also found that the individual plaintiffs have standing to litigate reservation management issues and that the 1864 statute authorizing the creation of the reservation imposed a trust responsibility on the U.S. Government extending to all the Indians of the Reservation.

Having addressed these issues the court ordered three specific actions:

1. The Federal defendants may lawfully allow the Hoopa Business Council (HBC) to participate in reservation administration, and the HBC may lawfully conduct business as a tribal body sovereign over its own members, and, as an advisory body, participate in reservation administration;

2. Federal defendants shall not dispense funds for any project or services that do not benefit all Indians of the reservation in a non-discriminatory manner. Federal defendants shall exercise supervisory power over reservation administration, resource management, and spending of reservation funds, to ensure that all Indians receive the use and benefits of the reservation on an equal basis. Specifically, Federal defendants shall not permit any reservation funds to be used for litigation among Indians or tribes of the reservation.

3. To fulfill the requirements of this Order, Federal defendants must develop and implement a process to receive and respond to the needs and views of non-Hoopa Valley tribal members as to the proper use of reservation resources and funds.

On June 7, 1988, we submitted to the court a plan of operation for the management of the Hoopa Valley Reservation resources, as required by the court's April 8, 1988 order. On September 2, 1988 the court denied plaintiffs' motion to strike the plan, although it emphasized that the issues raised in that motion would have to be addressed if this legislation is not enacted and the court is left with the task of approving a final long-term plan for the management of the reservation.

Obviously, the District Court's orders are changing the management of the reservation and its resources. However, we do not believe that they provide the appropriate vehicle for a satisfactory permanent resolution to all the problems on the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation. We believe that partitioning the communal reservation and encouraging the Yuroks to organize as a tribe would lead to more satisfactory results.

Now I would like to address our major concerns regarding S. 2723. I have attached our technical concerns to my written statement.

S. 2723 partitions the Hoopa Valley Reservation only if the Hoopa Valley tribe passes a resolution waiving any claims they may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Act. The resolution must be presented to the Secretary within 60 days of enactment of the Act. The Secretary then publishes the resolution in the Federal Register and the existing communal reservation becomes two reservations. The "square" would become the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the "extension" would become the Yurok Reservation. Additional forest service land would be added to the Yurok Reservation and an authorization of $5 million would be provided for the purchase of additional land for the Yurok Reservation.

We do not believe that expanding the reservation is necessary at this time and strongly oppose the addition of Federal money for this purpose. Currently, there are approximately 400 Yuroks living on the "Extension" which includes 5,373.9 acres (including tribal land and allotments). We recommend that this provision be deleted.

Upon enactment of the act, the existing $50 million communal escrow account is to become the basis of a settlement fund. An additional $10 million is authorized to be appropriated to add to the fund. We do not believe the settlement fund should be established until the communal reservation is partitioned. Further, we believe that the bill should not become effective (except for section 12) until the Hoopa Valley Tribe adopts and sends to the Secretary, the resolution called for in section 2(a).

We strongly oppose the addition of Federal money to this fund and believe that the distribution of the fund should be used for making the payments under section 6 and giving any remaining funds to the Yurok Tribe. The partition of the communal reservation and the communal escrow account should not require the addition of Federal funds. If the amount in the escrow fund is not sufficient, we believe the per capita amounts available to individuals under the bill should be changed so that the escrow funds cover those payments. We believe the bill should be amended to specify that if adequate funds are not available in the Settlement fund to make the payments, such payments shall be pro-rated accordingly. Any funds remaining in the Settlement Fund after all payments have been made or provided for, should be held in trust for the Yurok Tribe.

The Secretary is to prepare a settlement roll of all persons who can meet the criteria established by the Federal court in the Short case for qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation". The Secretary is to provide each eligible person the opportunity to choose one of the following options: 1) become a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe (if appropriate criteria are met); 2) become a member of the Yurok Tribe and receive a $3000 payment; or 3) elect to receive a payment of $20,000 and give up all rights to the reservation and all rights to membership in the Yurok Tribe.

Parents and guardians of children on the Settlement Roll under the age of 18 would choose an option for their child.

Although we do not object to the provision allowing parents or guardians making the choice for minor children, we believe that the children's payments should be held in trust until they reach age 18. The Settlement Fund could remain in effect and draw interest until each minor reaches age 18 and receives their payments.

We further recommend that the Settlement Roll be established as of the date of the partition of the communal reservation rather than as of the date of enactment of the Act. This could assure that the roll would include all persons having an appropriate interest at the time of the partition. Anyone born after the partition would of course, not have an interest in the previous single communal reservation.

Section 9 provides for the organization of the Yurok Tribe under the Indian Reorganization Act. Within 45 days of the official notice the Secretary shall convene a general council meeting of the eligible voters of the Yurok Tribe. The General Council would vote on the adoption of a resolution waiving any claim the Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this Act and to nominate candidates for an interim council. The general council would elect an Interim Council to represent the tribe until a constitution and tribal council are in place, or for 2 years, whichever is the shorter period. The Interim Council would appoint a drafting committee to draft a tribal constitution and request the Secretary to authorize an election to vote on the constitution.

The time required for the Secretary to provide notice, call general council meetings, and hold elections is unreasonable. The Bureau would not be able to meet such requirements. Amended requirements are included in our technical amendments attached to my written statement.

We would also commend that the tribe be required to have a constitution and an elected tribal council before they enter into contracts or receive grants from the Federal Government. Under the bill the Interim Council could enter into a contract and then after two years the council would be dissolved. We do not believe this is either good management or fair to the tribal members who receive services under the contract.

Section 13 provides for statute of limitations for any claim brought against the United States challenging the partition of the communal reservation under this act. We defer to the Department of Justice on these provision.

Mr. Chairman, we urge the Committee to amend the bill to meet our concerns, particularly with respect to the appropriation authorization of $15 million. I have attached a number of technical concerns to my written statement.

This concludes my prepared statement. I will be pleased to answer any questions the Committee may have.

RECOMMENDED AMENDMENTS TO S. 2723

Section 1(b)(7) defines Karuk Tribe as organized after a special election conducted by the United States Department of the Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs. The Bureau of Indian Affairs did not hold a special election. We recommend the following amendment:

Section 1(b)(7) line 16 (page 3) after "constitution" delete "after a special election conducted by the United States Department of the Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs" and change "April 18" to "April 6".

Section 2(c)(3)(A) provides authority for the Secretary to take additional land into trust status for the Yurok Tribe. We recommend that the provision clarify that the land would be part of the Yurok Reservation. We recommend the following amendment:

Section 2(c)(3)(A) line 8 (page 7) add at the end "and that such lands may be declared to be part of the Yurok Reservation".

Section 4(a) establishes a Settlement Fund upon enactment of this act. We believe the fund should be established upon the partition of the reservation. We recommend the following amendment.

Section 4(a) line 8 (page 9) delete "enactment of this Act" and insert "the partition of the Hoopa Valley Reservation under section 2 of this act".

Section 4(a)(2) permits the Hoopa Valley Tribe to use up to $3.5 million annually out of the income or principal of the Settlement Fund for tribal, non-per capita purposes. We believe the Yurok Tribe should also be able to draw this account. We recommend that Sec. 4(a)(2) line 12 (page 9) be amended as follows:

"(2) Until the distribution is made to the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes under subsection (c), the Secretary may distribute to both tribes an amount not to exceed income and interest earned less 10 per cent for the current operating year out of the Settlement Fund. These funds may be used for tribal purposes and may not be distributed as per capita payments."

Section 4(b) on page 9, line 23 should be amended by striking out "pending" and inserting in lieu thereof "pending payments under section 6 and".

Section 4(c) line 3 (page 10) and 4(d) line 13 refer to the wrong paragraph. Section 6(a)(3) should be changed to "6(a)(4)".

Subsections (c), (d), and (e) of section 4 on page 10, line 1 through page 11, line 6 should be deleted.

Section 5 provides for the Secretary to establish a Settlement Roll of eligible persons living on the date of enactment of this Act. We recommend that the roll be established as of the date of the partition of the reservation to avoid any possible problems regarding the status of a person born between the time of enactment of the Act and the partitioning of the reservation. We also recommend that the Secretary be given more time to complete the necessary procedures for establishing the roll. The following amendments are recommended:

Section 5(a)(A) line 20 (page 11) change "of enactment of this Act" to "of the partition under section 6(a)".

Section 5(b) line 24 (page 11) change "thirty" to "one hundred and twenty".

Section 5(d) line 22 (page 11) change "one hundred and eighty days" to "two hundred and forty days".

Section 6 requires the Secretary to notify all eligible persons of the options available to them under the act. We believe it should be clear that each individual must choose one option. We also recommend that notice be given by certified mail rather than by registered mail. We recommend the following amendments:

Section 6(a) line 23 (page 13) change "registered" to "certified".

Section 6(a)(3) (page 14) should be amended to designate paragraph "(3)" as "(3)(A)" and add a new subparagraph "(B)" as follows:

"(B) The funds entitled to such minors shall be held in trust by the Secretary until the minor reaches age 18. The Secretary shall notify and provide payment to such persons including all interest accrued."

Section 6(b) line 3 (page 15) "March 21" should be "March 31".

Section 6(b)(3) requires the Secretary to assign a blood quantum to persons electing to become enrolled members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. We recommend the following clarifying amendment:

Section 6(b)(3) line 23 (page 15) should be amended to read: "The Secretary shall determine the quantum of "Indian blood" or "Hoopa Indian blood", if any, of each person enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe under this subsection pursuant to the criteria established in the March 31, 1982 decision of the U.S. Court of Claims in the case of Jessie Short et al. v. United States, (Cl. Ct. No. 102-63)".

Section 6(c)(2) line 17 (page 16) should be amended for clarity and consistency with subsection (b)(3). After "shall" delete "assign each person that quantum of "Indian blood" as may be determined" and insert "determine the quantum of "Indian blood", if any,".

Section 6(c)(3) lines 22 and 23 (page 16) should be amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Secretary shall pay (subject to section 7 of the Act of October 19, 1973, as amended (25 U.S.C. 1407)) to each person".

Section 9 provides for a procedure for the organization of the Yurok Tribe. We believe an interim council should be elected for the primary purpose of drafting a constitution. The Secretary should provide services until the tribe has a constitution and an officially elected tribal council. We recommend the following amendments:

Section 9(c) line 10 (page 19) change "30" to "60".

Section 9(c)(3) line 12 (page 20) change "45" to "60".

Section 9(d)(2) line 6 (page 21) should be amended as follows:

"(2) The Interim Council shall represent the tribe to assist the Secretary in determining the needs and appropriate programs for the tribe. The Council shall be responsible for determining appropriate use of the funds available to the tribe under section 4(a) of this act."

Delete paragraph "(3)" and renumber "(4)" as "(3)".

Renumber paragraph "(5)" as "(4)" and on line 1 (page 22) delete the words "or at the end of two years after such installation, whichever occurs first".

Section 10 allows the merger of existing Rancherias with the Yurok Tribe. There is no Tolowa Rancheria so that reference should be deleted. We also recommend that since the names listed in this section are names of Rancherias and not names of Tribes that the section be amended to reflect that difference.

Section 10(b) line 23 (page 22) should be amended to add "any of the following Rancherias at" after "members of". Delete "the" after the word "of".

Section 10(b) line 24 (page 23) after "Elk Valley" delete "or Tolowa Rancherias".

Section 11 provides for the addition of a member of the Karok and Yurok Tribes to the Klamath River Basin Fisheries Task Force.

The Secretary is to appoint the member for the Yurok Tribe until the Tribe is recognized. Since the tribe is already Federally recognized we recommend this provision be changed to refer to the tribe's organization.

Section 11(b) line 23 (page 23) delete "established and federally recognized" and insert "organized".

Section 11(b) line 2 (page 24) change "recognized" to "organized".

Add a new section 14 at the end of the bill as follows:

"Sec. 14. This Act (except sections 2(a) and 12) shall be effective upon partitioning of the reservation as provided in section 2(a). Sections 2(a) and 12 shall be effective upon enactment."

STATEMENT OF RODNEY R. PARKER, ASSOCIATE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Committee, on behalf of the Department of Justice, I am pleased to have this opportunity to present our views on S. 2723, legislation to partition reservation lands between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Indians, as introduced by Senator Cranston. This bill, which is identical to the amended version of H.R. 4469 introduced by Congressman Bosco, satisfies our litigation concerns. However, because of budgetary and other policy concerns, we defer to the Department of the Interior for the Administration's position on the bill.

In 1876, a 12-mile square tract of land in Northern California (the Square), occupied mainly by Hoopa Indians, was set aside by President Grant as the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation. In 1891, President Harrison extended the boundaries of the Reservation to include the adjoining 1-mile wide strip of land on either side of the Klamath River (the Addition or Extension) which was occupied mostly by Yurok Indians.

Beginning in the 1950's, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, a federally recognized and organized tribe, began receiving proceeds from the harvesting of timber from the Square. Some of the proceeds from the timber harvests were distributed on a per capita basis to individual members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. This prompted suits by other Indians who were not members of the tribe and thus did not receive per capita payments. Short v. United States, No. 102-63, Cl.Ct.; Ackley v. United States, No. 460-78, Cl.Ct.; Aanstadt v. United States, No. 146-85L, Cl.Ct.; Giffen v. United States, No. 746-85L, Cl.Ct.

In these cases, the United States Claims Court held, contrary to the government's position, that the Square and the Extension were a single reservation and that all Indians of the Reservation were entitled to share in a money judgment based on past distributions of individualized monies, i.e. the per capita payments. Since the initial ruling in 1973, efforts have been made to identify the qualified plaintiffs, to settle the litigation and to mediate the dispute which is focused on the conflicting positions of the organized Hoopa Valley Tribe and the federally recognized but not organized Yurok Tribe.

S. 2723 would provide for the partition of the Hoopa Valley reservation into two separate reservations, to be held in trust by the United States for the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, respectively. The bill also provides for the establishment and distribution of a Settlement Fund for eligible individuals.

The Department of Justice has worked with Congressman Bosco's staff to draft legislation that satisfied our litigation concerns. S. 2723, which is identical to the amended version of H.R. 4469, would, in general, satisfy our litigation concerns.

We have, however, two remaining concerns with the bill. Our first concern is clarification that no Fifth Amendment taking is intended by the sections providing for the contribution of tribal monies to the Settlement Fund. The bill already provides for a waiver of claims by the Hoopa Tribe and, under certain circumstances, the Yurok Tribe. While we understand the waiver language as already evidencing tribal consent, we think a provision requiring express tribal consent could provide a clearer acknowledgment by the tribal government that no taking has occurred. We therefore suggest that section 2(a)(2)(A) be changed to read as follows:

(2)(A) The partition of the joint reservation as provided in this subsection shall not become effective unless, within 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Hoopa Valley Tribe shall adopt, and transmit to the Secretary, a tribal resolution:

- (i) waiving any claim such tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this Act, and
- (ii) affirming tribal consent to the contribution of Hoopa Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Yurok Tribe, and to individual Yuroks, as provided in this Act.

We likewise suggest that section 9(c)(2)(A) be changed to read as follows:

(A) the adoption of a resolution, by a vote of not less than two-thirds of the voters present and voting:

- (i) waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provision of this Act, and

(B) (ii) affirming tribal consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in this Act.

Our second concern involves section 13(c)(2) of the bill, which provides that, in the event of a judgment against the United States based on a Fifth Amendment taking, the Secretary of the Interior shall submit a report to Congress recommending possible Congressional modifications to the bill. Pursuant to this section, Congress could change the nature of the act that constituted a taking, and thus make payment for a permanent taking by the United States unnecessary. In order to ensure that payment is not made in the event that Congress takes action to make the payment unnecessary, we suggest that the following provisions be added to section 13(c)(2) of the Act:

Notwithstanding the provisions of 28 U.S.C. 2517, any judgment entered against the United States shall not be paid for 180 days after the entry of judgment; and, if the Secretary of the Interior submits a report to Congress pursuant to this section, then payment shall be made no earlier than 120 days after submission of the report.

The bill's remaining provisions largely involve budget and policy matters and we defer to the Department of the Interior on them. I would be pleased to answer any questions you might have.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

In compliance with subsection 12 of Rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the Committee notes that changes in existing law made by the bill are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italic, and existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

(3) Any such claim by the Yurok Tribe shall be barred 180 days after the general council meeting of the Yurok Tribe as provided in section 9 or such earlier date as may be established by the adoption of a resolution waiving such claims as provided in section 9(d)(2).

(c)(1) The Secretary shall prepare and submit to the Congress a report describing the final decision in any claim brought pursuant to subsection (b) against the United States or its officers, agencies, or instrumentalities.

(2) Such report shall be submitted no later than 180 days after the entry of final judgment in such litigation. The report shall include any recommendations of the Secretary for action by Congress, including, but not limited to, any supplemental funding proposals necessary to implement the terms of this Act and any modifications to the resource and management authorities established by this Act. Notwithstanding the provisions of 28 U.S.C. 2517, any judgment entered against the United States shall not be paid for 180 days after the entry of judgment; and, if the Secretary of the Interior submits a report to Congress pursuant to this section, then payment shall be made no earlier than 120 days after submission of the report.

In accordance with the Settlement Act, the resolution is to be published in the Federal Register. Effective with such publication the joint reservation shall be partitioned as provided in the Act.

DATE: The Settlement Act requires that the tribal resolution be published in the Federal Register within 60 days after the date of enactment of the Settlement Act.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Northern California Agency, Bureau of Indian Affairs, P.O. Box 494879, Redding, California, 96049-4879, telephone number: (916) 246-5141.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: This notice is published in exercise of the authority delegated by the Secretary of the Interior to the Assistant Secretary—Indian Affairs in the Departmental Manual at 209 DM 8.

Pursuant to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act of October 31, 1988 (102 Stat. 2924), Section 2(a)(2)(B), this is official notification that the Hoopa Valley Tribe has adopted a valid resolution which meets the requirements of section 2(a)(2)(A) of the Act, and said resolution reads as follows:

RESOLUTION OF THE HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE
RESERVATION
HOOPA VALLEY, CALIFORNIA

RESOLUTION NO: 88-115

DATE APPROVED: November 28, 1988

SUBJECT: WAIVER OF CERTAIN CLAIMS AND CONSENT TO USES OF TRIBAL FUNDS PURSUANT TO THE HOOPA-YUROK SETTLEMENT ACT

WHEREAS: The Hoopa Valley Business Council is the governing body of the Hoopa Valley Tribe under a Constitution and Bylaws approved by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs on August 18, 1972; and

WHEREAS: The Jessie Short case stated that the Hoopa Valley Reservation as extended is a single reservation in which tribes lack vested rights, and accordingly the court imposed liability on the United States for past per capita distributions of revenue from the Hoopa Square which went to Hoopa Valley tribal members only; and

WHEREAS: The Puzz case has interpreted Short and applicable law in a manner which prohibits the Hoopa Valley Tribe from exercising territorial management powers over the Hoopa Square and has crippled the power of the Hoopa Valley Business Council to exercise the authorities granted under the Tribe's Constitution to administer tribal property, to expend tribal funds, to protect tribal resources, to govern non-members and generally to safeguard and promote the peace, safety and general welfare of the Hoopa Valley Tribe; and

WHEREAS: The Hoopa people have petitioned the United States Congress to enact a law confirming the Hoopa Square as the property of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and reinforcing the governmental power of the Hoopa Valley Business Council pursuant to its Constitution; and

WHEREAS: On April 26, 1988, Representative Doug Bosco introduced H.R. 4469 which, after hearings, negotiations and introduction of substitute bills, was enacted as the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act on October 31, 1988; and

WHEREAS: Section 2(a)(2)(A) of the Act provides:

(A) The partition of the joint reservation as provided in this subparagraph, and the ratification and confirmation as provided by section 8, shall not become effective unless, within 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Hoopa Valley Tribe shall adopt, and transmit to the Secretary a tribal resolution:

(i) Waiving any claim such tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this Act, and

(ii) Affirming tribal consent to the contribution of Hoopa Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Yurok Tribe, and to individual Yuroks, as provided in this Act.

WHEREAS: The Senate Report accompanying the Act states that the waiver required by the Act does not prevent the Hoopa Valley Tribe "from enforcing rights or obligations created by this Act", S. Rep. 100-564 at 17; and

WHEREAS: The Hoopa Valley Business Council has fully considered the claims to be waived and the consent to be granted and has balanced them against the benefits offered to the Hoopa Valley Tribe under the Act including, under Section 2, the "partition of the joint reservation" so that "the unallotted trust lands and assets of the [new] Hoopa Valley Reservation shall thereafter be held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Hoopa Valley Tribe" and, under Section 8, a declaration that "the existing governing documents of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the governing body established and elected thereunder, as heretofore recognized by the Secretary, are hereby ratified and confirmed," and has concluded that the Tribe would best be served by complying with Section 2(a) of the Act; and

WHEREAS: The Hoopa Valley Business Council has consulted with the members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe in a duly-noticed General Meeting held on November 12, 1988, and in previous General Meetings, and has been reassured and directed by the membership to comply with the Act; and

WHEREAS: The Hoopa Valley Business Council has carefully considered the Tribe's Constitution and other tribal law and custom concerning the method by which the resolution called for by the Act should be enacted;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: That the Hoopa Valley Business Council has the power under the Constitution and Bylaws of the Hoopa Valley Tribe to approve and enact the resolution required by Section 2(a) of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That this resolution is not intended, and shall not be construed, so as to prevent the Hoopa Valley Tribe from enforcing rights and obligations created by the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, see S. Rep. 100-564 at 17; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the Hoopa Valley Tribe hereby waives any claim the Hoopa Valley Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the Hoopa Valley Tribe affirms tribal consent to the contribution of Hoopa Escrow moneys to the settlement fund and for their use as payments to the Yurok Tribe, and to individual Yuroks, as provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the Chairman and Secretary of the Hoopa Valley Business Council are hereby authorized, directed and empowered to sign the resolution for and on behalf of the Hoopa Valley Tribe as its act and deed.

SETTLEMENT OPTION NOTICE

To: All Persons included on the Settlement Roll
Prepared Under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

Re: Election of Settlement Options

SECTION I. INTRODUCTION.

On October 31, 1988, Congress enacted the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. This notice will refer to that legislation simply as "the Act".

Section 5 of the Act requires the Secretary of the Interior to prepare a roll of all eligible persons (a) who show their eligibility as an Indian of the Reservation; (b) who were living on October 31, 1988; (c) who are citizens of the United States; and (d) who were not, on August 8, 1988, enrolled members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Settlement Roll was published in the Federal Register on March 21, 1991. Your name, or the name of the child you sponsored, is included on the Settlement Roll.

The Act provides that each person 18 years or older whose name appears on the Settlement Roll must be notified by certified mail of the right to choose one of the settlement options provided for in Section 6 of the Act. This is your notice of your right to choose one of the settlement options.

Section II of this letter states a deadline which is the date by which you must choose a Settlement Act option. Section III summarizes the options. Section IV explains how you may get more information and advice on the options. Section V explains special rules for persons under 18 years of age, and Section VI explains other rules for plaintiffs in the Short cases. Section VII explains each option in detail and finally Section VIII summarizes the notice.

SECTION II. LAST DATE FOR MAKING YOUR ELECTION.

The last date for you to notify the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the option you have chosen is July 19, 1991. Your option election form must be postmarked no later than midnight, July 19, 1991.

If you fail to return a written statement of your selection by that date to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Northern California Agency, P.O. Box 494879, Redding, CA 96049-4879, you will be deemed to have chosen Option 2, Yurok membership. A form is enclosed for your convenience in making your selection. Please be sure to sign and date this form before returning it to the Bureau of Indian Affairs on or before the option election date noted above.

SECTION III. SUMMARY OF OPTIONS UNDER THE ACT.

- Option 1 (Act Sec. 6(b): Hoopa Tribal membership
- Option 2 (Act Sec. 6(c): Yurok Tribal membership
- Option 3 (Act Sec. 6(d): Lump Sum Payment - no Hoopa or Yurok tribal membership.

These three options and the pros and cons of selecting each option are explained in more detail in section VII of this letter. The Act requires that you must select only one of the three options. Any choice you make will be final and cannot be changed after July 19, 1991 which is the final date established by the Secretary for each person on the Settlement Roll to choose an option. Your failure to choose an option within this time limit will lead the Bureau of Indian Affairs to assume that you have chosen Option 2, membership in the Yurok Tribe.

Should you refuse to accept the payment and return it to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, you will not be deemed to have given up any claims you may have to the Hoopa Valley Tribe or Yurok Indian reservations, and you will have preserved your legal right to challenge any of the provisions of the Act. In addition, you will not be deemed to have given permission to the Interim Council to either give up legal claims of the Yurok Tribe arising under the Act or to consent to the payment of escrow monies into the Settlement Fund under the Act. However, in that event, the Act requires that you must file suite on any such claim no later than 120 days after the publication in the Federal Register of the option election date. Failure to file such a lawsuit within the required deadline will result in forfeiture of your legal claims.

SECTION IV. COUNSELING SERVICE AVAILABLE.

The Act provides that the Bureau of Indian Affairs must provide special counseling to you to inform you about the advantages and disadvantages associated with each option. If you wish counseling, please contact Dorson Zunie or Silas Ortley, Northern California Agency, at (916) 246-5141, or 1-800-BIA-HYSA. (this number will be available on April 19, 1991) In addition, you may contact the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council or the Yurok transition Team at the addresses listed below:

(916) 625-4211

If you elect Option 3 - Lump Sum Payment, you must complete and sign a sworn statement that you have been provided with complete information about the effects of choosing Option 3.

SECTION V. SPECIAL PROVISION FOR MINORS WHO WILL NOT BE 18 YEARS OF AGE BY THE DEADLINE DATE TO ELECT OPTIONS.

The Act provides special rules for minors (those persons under 18 years of age) on the Settlement Roll who will not receive this notice and who will not be able to make their own election unless their eighteenth (18th) birthday occurs on or before July 19, 1991. If you are a parent or guardian of a minor whose name is on the Settlement Roll and your name is not included on the Roll, this notice is sent to you on behalf of your minor child.

The Act provides that minors on the Settlement Roll will be deemed to have chosen Option 2, membership in the Yurok Tribe, unless (1) you do not wish the child enrolled in the Yurok Tribe, and (2) you furnish proof that is satisfactory to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, that your minor child is already a member of a Federally recognized Indian tribe, and that tribe prohibits its members from enrolling in another tribe. If those special conditions are met, you may choose Options 2 or 3 for the child. If you do not make a choice on behalf of your minor child before July 19, 1991, then the child will have been deemed to elect Option 2 - Yurok Tribal membership. In making an election for your minor child, you are entitled to the counseling services provided by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

If the minor child becomes a member of the Yurok Tribe under the options provided in the Act, the child will be deemed to be a child of a member of the (Yurok) Indian Tribe even though you yourself elect Option 3, Option - Lump Sum Payment. The money to which your child is entitled under the Act will be held in trust by the Bureau of Indian Affairs until the child reaches the age of 18. At that time the Secretary must notify and provide payment directly to your child including all interest earned.

SECTION VI. EFFECT ON SHORT PLAINTIFFS OF MAKING AN ELECTION.

Any payment for damages or other entitlements that a plaintiff may be due under a decision of the United States Claims Court in the Short Cases, meaning the Short, Ackley, Aanstadt, or Giffen litigation is not affected at all by the provisions of the Act or by your choice of any option described in the Act and this notice. Selection of any of the options will not in any way reduce your eligibility, entitlement or right to receive monies that may be due to you as a qualified plaintiff in the Short cases.

SECTION VII. EXPLANATION OF EACH OPTION.

A. Option 1 (Section 6(b)) - Hoopa membership option.

1. General Statement Regarding Option 1.

If you choose this option, it means that you wish to become an enrolled member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. In order to choose this option your name must be listed on the Settlement Roll and you must meet the enrollment requirements of the Hoopa Valley Tribe set out as Schedule A, Schedule B, or Schedule C in the Short Case. (No one born after October 1, 1949 meets those enrollment requirements) In addition you must have either (1) maintained a residence on the Hoopa Valley reservation at any time between October 31, 1983 and October 31, 1988; or (2) owned an interest in real property on the Hoopa Valley Reservation on October 31, 1988. If you provide satisfactory proof that you meet these requirements, you will be entitled to become an enrolled member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Secretary shall cause you to be so enrolled. The requirements for enrollment with the Hoopa Valley Tribe discussed above will be explained to you in detail at your request before you are required to make a decision.

2. ADVANTAGES TO CHOOSING OPTION 1 - HOOPA MEMBERSHIP

a. As a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, you will be able to share in tribal rights and interest of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, including any tribal rights in unallotted lands and water of the Hoopa Valley Reservation (as defined in the Act) and other property, resources, or rights within, or appertaining to, the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation or the Hoopa Valley Tribe. Your rights of membership in the Hoopa Valley Tribe will be exactly the same as the rights of other members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and you will be entitled to the same protections. In the past the tribe has made Per Capita payments and if they do, you may be eligible to share as a tribal member. As a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe you may be entitled to participate in the land assignment/lease program as defined under the Hoopa Valley Tribal Land Assignment/Lease Ordinance.

b. If you choose to become a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe under Option 1, you will be recognized as an enrolled member of a Federally recognized tribe and entitled to all of the benefits and services available to such members under federal and state programs, benefits, preferences, and services.

c. If you become a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe under this Option 1, the Secretary will determine your quantum of "Indian Blood" or "Hoopa Indian Blood", if any, under the requirements established in the March 31, 1982 court decision in Short.

3. DISADVANTAGES TO CHOOSING OPTION 1 - HOOPA MEMBERSHIP

a. By choosing the Hoopa membership option, you will not be eligible for or entitled to any payment from the Settlement Fund. Such payment can only be made under the Act to persons who choose either Option 2 or Option 3.

b. If you choose the Hoopa membership option, you will not have any rights or interests whatsoever in the tribal, communal, or unallotted lands, property, resources or rights within, or appertaining to, the Yurok Indian reservation or the Yurok Tribe. For example, you would be unable to fish, hunt or gather on the Yurok Reservation unless that tribe permitted you to do so. You also will not have any rights or interests in the Settlement Fund except to the extent the Hoopa Valley Tribe uses its portion of the Settlement Fund for your benefit.

c. The Hoopa Valley Tribal Council has enacted a resolution waiving any claim of the Hoopa Valley Tribe against the United States arising under the provisions of the Act. Further, the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council has enacted a resolution affirming the Tribe's consent to the contribution of the Hoopa Escrow monies to the Settlement fund and for payment from the fund to the Yurok Tribe and individual Yuroks as provided for in the Act. Since that resolution has already been enacted, choosing this option means that you will no longer have any voice in deciding whether the Hoopa Valley Tribe should challenge the Act or consent to the distribution of Hoopa Escrow monies and the use of the Settlement Fund.

d. If you choose Option 1, your choice becomes final and irrevocable on July 19, 1991. After that date you cannot change your mind and choose another option.

B. OPTION 2 (SECTION 6(c)) - YUROK MEMBERSHIP

1. General Statement regarding Option 2.

Choosing this option means that you wish to become a member of the Yurok Tribe. Under the Act, the Yurok Tribe may adopt a tribal constitution that will establish, among other things, future membership requirements for the Yurok Tribe. If you choose this option you are automatically listed as a base member enrollee of the Yurok Tribe.

As a result, if you are 18 years of age or older you will be eligible to vote in tribal elections or hold office on the tribal council. Any person on the Settlement Roll, regardless of age, may choose Option 2, membership in the Yurok Tribe. As discussed above, persons who fail to make an election by the deadline date for selecting an option will be deemed to have elected the Yurok membership option. Also, as discussed above, persons under 18 years of age whose names are on the Settlement Roll will be deemed to have chosen the Yurok Option unless the minor's parent or guardian can establish to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the minor is already enrolled in another Indian tribe that prohibits dual enrollment. In that case, the parent or guardian may choose option 2 or 3 on behalf of the minor child. Dual enrollment is when a person is enrolled in more than one tribe at a time. Many Indian tribes prohibit dual enrollment and require that you give up your enrollment with the other tribe before you can become a member of the tribe in which you seek membership. Whether or not the Yurok Tribe will prohibit dual enrollment may be decided when the constitution is drafted and accepted by the membership.

2. ADVANTAGES TO CHOOSING OPTION 2 - YUROK MEMBERSHIP

a. As a member of the Yurok Tribe, you will share in the rights and interests of the Yurok Tribe, including any tribal rights in the unallotted lands and waters of the Yurok Reservation and other property, resources or rights within, or appertaining to, the Yurok Indian Reservation or the Yurok Tribe. Your rights of membership in the Yurok Tribe will be exactly the same as the rights of other members of the Yurok Tribe and you will be entitled to the same protections.

b. If you choose to become a member of the Yurok Tribe under Option 2, the Act provides that you will be paid $5,000 if you are under the age of 50 years on July 19, 1991, the last day established under this notice to elect an option. If you are 50 years or older on July 19, 1991, you will be paid $7,500. These payments will be exempt from all federal and state income taxation. Also these payments cannot be used to affect your eligibility for federal social security Act programs such as SSI, AFDC, etc. However, amounts over $2,000 may be considered by other Federal or Federally assisted state programs in determining eligibility or level of benefits. State and private programs can consider the entire amount in determining eligibility for services or benefits.

c. By choosing Yurok membership, you will be included on the base membership roll of the Yurok Tribe and be eligible to vote for the Interim Council, seek office on the Yurok Interim Tribal Council, assist in preparing a new constitution, election ordinance and membership ordinance for the Yurok Tribe, and vote for or against the new Yurok Tribal Constitution. Any individual listed on the base roll of the Yurok Tribe cannot be removed from it. The Act provides, however, that only persons 18 years of age or older who have elected Yurok Tribal membership under this option 2 will be eligible to participate in the formation of the new tribal government.

d. If you choose to become a member of the Yurok Tribe under Option 2, you will be recognized as an enrolled member of a Federally recognized tribe and entitled to all of the benefits and services available to such members under Federal and State programs, benefits, preferences, and services. Some of these entitlements through the Bureau of Indian Affairs may include educational grants, adult vocational training, direct employment assistance, home improvements, and hiring preferences. Health care and hiring preference are also available through Indian Health Service. If you become a member of the Yurok Tribe, the Secretary will determine your quantum of "Indian blood" under the requirements established in a March 31, 1982 decision in Short. This method of determining your quantum of blood was used in determining your blood for the Settlement Roll.

3. DISADVANTAGES TO CHOOSING OPTION 2 - YUROK MEMBERSHIP

a. If you choose the Yurok Tribe membership option, you will no longer have any rights or interests whatsoever in the tribal, communal or unallotted lands, property, resources, or rights within, or appertaining to, the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation as defined by the Act (commonly called the Hoopa Square), or the Hoopa Valley Tribe, or except for the payment described above in Section 2 (d), the Settlement Fund. By choosing Option 2, you give up any such rights and interests.

b. By choosing Option 2, Yurok Membership, you will not be eligible for or entitled to Option 3 Lump Sum Payment. Such payment can only be made to those who choose Option 3. In addition, by choosing Option 2 - Yurok Membership and becoming an enrolled member of the Yurok Tribe, you will not be eligible to receive any per capita payment from the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

c. If you are now a member of an Indian tribe that prohibits membership in another tribe, choosing Option 2, Yurok Membership may require that you give up your membership in the other tribe under that tribe's membership rules or sharing as a member in the assets of another tribe.

d. Under the Act, the selection of Option 2, membership in the Yurok Tribe, also gives the Yurok Interim Council the right to approve a resolution (1) waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the Act and (2) granting Yurok tribal consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund and for use of some of these monies as payment to the Hoopa Tribe and to individual Hoopa members as provided for in the Act. (Section 9 (d) (2) (i)). This means that the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe could vote to accept or reject certain monies and legal powers offered by the Act, to give up legal claims or to keep them, and to consent to the use of the Yurok Escrow monies or to refuse to consent to use of the Yurok Escrow monies, without any further permission or authority from you as a member of the Yurok Tribe. If you choose this option, you will not only grant your proxy or authority to the Interim Council, but also you cannot take back or change this grant of authority to the Interim Council. Of course, how the Interim Council will vote on these matters is unknown at this time.

e. If you choose this option, your choice becomes final and irrevocable on July 19, 1991. That is, once you make your election, you cannot change your mind or choose another option after that date.

f. If you elect Option 1, 2 or 3, you will have given up any claim you may have against the United States arising out of the Act.

C. OPTION 3 (SECTION 6(D) - LUMP SUM PAYMENT OPTION.

1. General Statement Regarding Option 3.

As a person whose name is included on the Settlement Roll, you may elect to receive a Lump Sum Payment Option from the Settlement Fund of $15,000. The Act requires that if you choose this option, you must complete under oath, a written statement that you have been given the opportunity to receive counseling provided by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. The Bureau of Indian Affairs is required to consult with the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council and the Yurok Transition Team in providing you with this counseling. Counseling will provide you with a complete explanation of the effects of Option 3 on your tribal enrollment rights and the enrollment rights of your children and descendants who may otherwise be eligible for membership in either the Hoopa Valley Tribe or the Yurok Tribe.

If you choose Option 3, Lump Sum Payment you will be giving up all of the rights and interest you may have in the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe and the Yurok Reservation.

This Option 3 is not a termination provision. It has no effect on any ties you may have to Indian tribes other than Hoopa and Yurok. It does not change the Indian status of any person on the Settlement Roll. If you choose this option, it does not end the Federal trust status or restrictions that may exist as to any allotted or restricted lands or resources to which you may hold a beneficial interest.

2. ADVANTAGES TO CHOOSING OPTION 3 - LUMP SUM PAYMENT

a. If you choose this option, you will receive a $15,000 cash settlement from the Settlement Fund in exchange for giving up any rights or interests you may have in the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe or the Yurok Reservation. This is a one-time-only payment.

3. DISADVANTAGES TO CHOOSING OPTION 3 - LUMP SUM PAYMENT.

a. If you choose this option and accept the $15,000 Lump sum Payment, you will have given up any rights or interests whatsoever in the tribal, communal, or unallotted lands, property, resources, or rights within, or appertaining to, the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Yurok Reservation, or the Yurok Tribe. Also, except for the $15,000 payment, you will have given up any rights or interests you may have in the Settlement Fund.

b. By accepting the $15,000 Lump Sum Payment, you will not be eligible under the Act for enrollment as a matter of right in either the Hoopa Valley Tribe or the Yurok Tribe. Future eligibility for enrollment in either tribe will depend upon each tribe's enrollment requirements as they may exist at the time you may wish to seek enrollment in the future.

c. If you are not eligible for membership in any other Federally recognized Indian tribe and if you elect this option, you may not be able to become an enrolled member of a Federally recognized Indian tribe. Of course, even if you are not now eligible, you may become eligible in the future if a tribe decides to amend its eligibility standards. As a result of choosing Option 3, you may be giving up all of the benefits that could come from such status. This includes benefits that come from the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes, and could also eliminate your eligibility for Federal and State programs, services, preferences and other advantages for which membership or eligibility for membership in a recognized tribe is required. As an additional result, your children and their descendants may also not be eligible for membership in an Indian tribe unless they are also on the Settlement Roll and choose a different option. By way of example, at this time Indian Health Service in California does not require tribal enrollment as proof to receive services. However, there has been talk of imposing that requirement in the future, and Congress could establish that requirement. Also, the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 defines "Indian child" by referring to tribal membership and eligibility for membership. Benefits provided by these programs could be affected by choosing Option 3.

d. If you elect this option, your choice becomes final and irrevocable on July 19, 1991; that is, once you make your election, you cannot change your mind or choose another option after that date.

e. If you elect Option 1, 2 or 3, you will have given up any claim you may have against the United States arising out of the Act.

f. If you elect the lump sum payment option, the $15,000 is taxable and will be treated as income or financial resource by many Federal, state, or service oriented programs.

SECTION VIII. SUMMARY.

Your name is included on the Settlement Roll prepared by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. Thus, you are entitled to select one of the options described above no later than July 19, 1991. If you wish to choose Option 1, 2 or 3, you must make your selection to the BIA no later than July 19, 1991. If you choose not to select any of those options you will be considered to have elected Option 2, Yurok Membership. Should you refuse to accept the payment and return it to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, you will not be deemed to have granted a release or to have granted a proxy to the Yurok Interim Council. The Act provides that you are entitled to counseling conducted by the Bureau of Indian Affairs on the advantages and disadvantages of the options described above. In addition, if you choose Option 3, Lump Sum Payment, you will be required to sign a sworn statement that such counseling was made available to you.

As you can see, each of the options have certain advantages and disadvantages to you. The purpose of this notice is to provide you with an unbiased explanation of the options available to you under the Act. If you have any further questions or wish to receive counseling regarding this matter, you may contact the persons at the addresses and telephone numbers indicated in Section IV of this letter.

Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll

AGENCY: Bureau of Indian Affairs, Interior.

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: The Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) is giving notice of the deadline for electing a settlement option under the provisions of section 6 of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Settlement Act) of October 31, 1988, Public Law 100-580, as amended. Under section 6 of the Settlement Act, individuals 18 years of age or older who are determined finally eligible to be on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll prepared under section 5 will be given the opportunity to elect a settlement option from among three options. The three options are: (1) Membership in the Hoopa Valley Tribe if they meet the membership requirements specified in the Settlement Act; (2) membership in the Yurok Tribe; or (3) a lump sum payment in lieu of membership in either tribe. Minors finally determined eligible to be on the Settlement Roll will be deemed to have elected the Yurok membership option unless the parent or guardian of such a minor furnishes proof that the minor is an enrolled member of a tribe that prohibits members from enrolling in other tribes. In that case the parent or legal guardian of the minor may elect another settlement option.

DATES: July 19, 1991, is the deadline for electing a settlement option under section 6 of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: This notice is published in exercise of authority delegated by the Secretary of the Interior to the Assistant Secretary—Indian Affairs in the Department Manual at 209 DM 8.

Section 5 of the Settlement Act directed the Secretary of the Interior to prepare a Settlement Roll to identify Yurok and other Indians of the Reservation eligible to participate in the settlement. The deadline for filing applications for inclusion on the Settlement Roll was April 10, 1989.

Under section 5(d) of the Settlement Act, once initial determinations of eligibility were made on all applicants, the Secretary was to publish the Settlement Roll in the Federal Register. All initial determinations of eligibility were made and on Thursday, March 21, 1991, the BIA published the names of persons included on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll in the Federal Register (56 FR 12062).

The Settlement Act further directed the Secretary to develop such procedures and times as may be necessary for the consideration of appeals from applicants who were initially determined ineligible for the Settlement Roll and, as a result of the amendment of the Settlement Act, of appeals by the Hoopa Valley Business Council or the Yurok Transition Team from the initial omission or inclusion of names on the Settlement Roll.

The names of applicants not initially on the Settlement Roll who are finally determined eligible on appeal will be added to the Settlement Roll and those individuals will be given the opportunity to elect a settlement option. Applicants who were initially determined eligible, but who are finally determined ineligible on appeal will not be eligible to participate in the settlement and their names will be removed from the Settlement Roll.

Section 6 of the Settlement Act directs the Secretary to give notice within sixty days of the publication in the Federal Register of the Settlement Roll by certified mail to each person 18 years or older named on the Settlement Roll of their right to elect a settlement option and the deadline for making that election. With respect to minors on the Settlement Roll the notice is to state that minors shall be deemed to have elected the Yurok-membership option unless the parent or guardian furnishes satisfactory proof to the Secretary that the minor is an enrolled member of a tribe that prohibits members from enrolling in other tribes. In that case the parent or guardian may elect another settlement option on behalf of the minor. The required notices were mailed to individuals by the Superintendent, Northern California Agency, BIA, on April 12, 1991.

Under section 6 of the Settlement Act, the Secretary is directed to establish a date by which time the election of an option must be made. Section 6 further directs that the date be 120 days from date of publication of the Settlement Roll in the Federal Register.

The Settlement Roll was published in the Federal Register on March 21, 1991. Consequently, the deadline for electing a settlement option is July 19, 1991.

Assistant Secretary—Indian Affairs.

Memorandum

To: Area Director, Sacramento Area Office
From: Director, Office of Trust Funds Management
Subject: Distribution of funds awarded the Hoopas and Yuroks under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

Effective April 12, 1991, the distribution of the subject funds was made in accordance with Public Law 101-277 and in accordance with your request dated April 4, 1991.

The total value of the fund on April 12, 1991 was $85,979,348.37 derived in the following manner:

Fair Market Value of Investment Securities (Refer to Attachment I and II.)	$74,339,997.14
Cash-Unallotted Balance	139,351.23
Add Back: Hoopa Drawdowns	10,000,000.00
Yurok Drawdowns	1,500,000.00
Total:	$85,979,348.37 =====

Hoopa's share of the fund was calculated using 39.55% as provided in you letter dated April 4, 1991.

Total Value of Fund	$85,979,348.37
Hoopa's Share	$34,006,551.87
Less Hoopa's Drawdowns	10,000,000.00
Less April 15, 1991 Drawdown	9,880,000.00
Balance Due Hoopa Tribe:	$14,126,551.87 =====

The balance due was distributed using a percentage of 21.8679479 derived as follows:

Total Value of Fund	$85,979,348.37
Less Hoopa's Drawdowns	19,880,000.00
Less Yurok's Drawdowns	1,500,000.00
Balance of Fund to be Distributed:	$64,599,348.37

Hoopa's Share of Fund	$14,126,551.87	= 0.218679479
Value of Undistributed Fund	64,599,348.37

The 21.867947% was applied to each outstanding investment and recorded to Hoopa's appropriation account 7194.

The balance of the fund is Yurok's share which remained in appropriation account 7193.

Subsequent to the above distributions, an internal transfer was done effective August 1, 1991, to transfer $3,000,000.00 into an escrow account to compensate any potential appeal cases. The amounts contributed are $1,186,560.00 and $1,813,440.00 for the Hoopas and the Yuroks respectively. It is our understanding that both tribes agreed to this arrangement. A separate appropriation (J50 A64 7197) was established for this escrow account.

Trust Funds records in the BIA's Finance System are maintained on a cash basis, therefore, income earned but not yet collected by the BIA is not recorded. Only the actual cash transfers and the cost bases of respective investments are shown in the Summary of Trust Funds reports for the Hoopa Tribe.

If you have any questions, please contact Sarah Yepa at FTS 474-3875 or Commercial (505) 766-3875. If you have questions on the valuation of the securities, please contact Fred Kellerup at FTS 474-2975 or Commercial (505) 766-2975.

Memorandum

To: Superintendent, Northern California Agency

Through: Sacramento Area Director

From: Acting Director, Office of Tribal Services

Subject: Issuance of Per Capita Checks from the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act Funds

Judge Royce C. Lamberth, in the case of Heller, Ehrman, White & McAuliffe, et al. v. Hon. Manuel Lujan, Jr., Civil Action No. 91-2012 signed an order on October 2, 1991, staying his order of payment of attorneys' fees pending consideration for appeal and pending appeal. This order permits the Secretary to withhold the contested amounts from per capita payments to be made under the Hoopa - Yurok Settlement Act. The amount withheld will be maintained in the Settlement Fund as ordered by the Court on October 2, 1991. The withheld funds will continue to be invested in accordance with 25 U.S.C. §162(a) with interest earned for the benefit of the ultimate payee.

The Superintendent, Northern California Agency is instructed to proceed to reprocess the per capita payment to the eligible recipients using the following categories:

1. Jessie Short plaintiffs involved in Jessie Short, et al. v. United States (Cl. Ct. No. 102-63) are to have 6.5 percent withheld from the amount due them. Determination of who are Jessie Short plaintiffs is to be made from the list supplied by the attorneys in the Jessie Short case. (see attached)
2. Eligible recipients who are not represented in Cl. Ct. No 102-63 and who are represented in cases Charlene Ackley v. United States (Cl. Ct. No. 460-78); Bret Aanstadt v. United States, (Cl. Ct. No. 146-85L); and Norman Giffen v. United States, (Cl. Ct. No. 746-85L) are not to have any amounts withheld as the Jessie Short attorneys make no claims against them.

3. All other eligible recipients are to have 25 percent withheld from their amount due.

Since the Jessie Short attorneys realize that the Settlement Fund included funds that their firms are not entitled to assess, a joint motion to modify the final judgment was filed and in response the judge has ordered certain funds excluded. Only those funds in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i (b) (1) (A) and (B) and a portion of one of the funds, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i (b) (1) (F) is to be assessed. Therefore, before the 6.5 percent or 25 percent is calculated for each eligible individual, the proportional amounts from the accounts identified in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i (b) (1) (C), (D), (E), and (G) and that portion of 25 U.S.C. § 1300i (b) (1) (F) that is agreed to by the Department of Justice and the Jessie Short attorneys are to be excluded and not used in the calculation of the amount which is to be withheld from each eligible recipient.

The procedure is first to determine the total amount of the escrow funds at the date of the creation of the Settlement Act Fund account. (see attachment) Based on the information provided by your office this amount was $66,625,800.39. Then the total amount of the excluded moneys is to be determined. These moneys include the following: Proceeds of Klamath River Reservation, J52-562-7056, $75,616.41; Proceeds of Labor -Yurok Indians of Lower Klamath River, J52-562-7153, $16,626.36; Proceeds of Labor-Yurok Indians of Upper Klamath River, J52-562-7154, $218,837.02; and Klamath River Fisheries, No. 5628000001/Fish, $458,705.18.

Funds in Proceeds of Labor-Hoopa Reservation for Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes, Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act designation I.b.I.F, J52-575-7256, $14,344,254.75, are derived from both Hoopa as well as Yurok resources. It is necessary to determine the Yurok share of this account. The total amount in this fund is to be multiplied by one half of one percent, the figure which your office determined as the appropriate Yurok share.

The excluded funds are then totaled and equal, $841,505.97. The percentage of these funds is then calculated by dividing the total amount included in the Settlement Act and this amounts to 1.26303 percent. This amount is not subject to the 6.5 percent or 25 percent lien.

Using this percentage the amount to be excluded from the assessment is to be calculated for the $5000, $7500, or $15,000 that was to be paid to the qualified individuals on the Settlement Roll and, pursuant to §1300i3(d) of the Settlement Act, to the Yurok Tribe.

Subject: Issues raised at organizational meeting of the Yurok Interim Council held November 25, 26, 1991

This is in response to your informal request for an opinion on a number of issues relating to the interpretation of certain provisions of the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act, Pub. L. 100-580, 102 Stat. 2924, 25 U.S.C. §§ 1300i et seq. These issues were raised at the organizational meeting of the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe held in Arcata, California, November 25 and 26, 1991. They are as follows: 1) When does the dissolution of the Interim Council occur under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(5). 2) Whether 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2) requires a single resolution waiving claims against the United States, affirming tribal consent to contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and authorizing the Interim Council to receive grants and enter into contracts for Federal programs. 3) What are the consequences of refusing to enact a resolution waiving claims against the United States and/or filing a claim under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a) on the Yurok Tribe's ability to organize or form a government. 4) Whether a tribal resolution waiving claims against the United States is required for purposes of conferring the benefits specified in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) notwithstanding the expiration of the statute of limitations in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(b)(3). 5) Whether individuals who receive and cash the payment authorized under the Yurok tribal membership option in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-5(c) are precluded from filing claims against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Settlement Act. We address these issues seriatim.

1. Dissolution of the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe

Section 9(d)(5) of the Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(5) provides as follows:

The Interim Council shall be dissolved effective with the election and installation of the initial tribe governing body elected pursuant to the constitution adopted under subsection (e) of this section or at the end of two years after such installation, whichever occurs first.

The structure of this subsection is confusing because the words "such installation" would normally be construed to refer to the installation of the initial tribe governing body. However, to so construe this subsection makes the words "whichever occurs first" meaningless. It is clear from the legislative history that Congress intended the Interim Council to be dissolved with the installation of the initial tribal governing body, or at the end of two years after the installation of the Interim Council, whichever occurs first. As stated in the Senate Report accompanying the legislation:

Paragraph (5) provides that the Interim Council shall be dissolved upon election of the initial governing body under such constitution when adopted or at the end of two years after their installation, whichever occurs first. S. Rep. 100-564, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (September 30, 1988) at 27-28.

Therefore, it is clear that the Interim Council's lifespan is two years from the date of its installation on November 25, 1991, unless a tribal governing body is elected before the expiration of the two-year period, whereupon the Interim Council would be dissolved following such election. If a tribal governing body is not elected within this two-year period, the Interim Council would still be dissolved at the end of the two-year period.

2. Number of Tribal Resolutions Required or Permitted under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2)

Section 9(d)(2) of the Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2) provides as follows:

The Interim Council shall have full authority to adopt a resolution:

(i) waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provision of this subchapter, and

(ii) affirming tribal consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in this subchapter, and

(iii) to receive grants from, and enter into contracts for, Federal programs, including those administered by the Secretary and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, with respect to Federal services and benefits for the tribe and its members.

It is our understanding that at the organizational meeting held November 25 and 26, 1991, the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) indicated that it did not want to restrict the Interim Council by requiring a single resolution addressing all three concerns, and preferred a more permissive interpretation of this subsection if possible. The section-by-section analysis of the Senate Report, S. Rep. 100-564, states the following with respect to this subsection:

Paragraph (2) provides that the Council shall have full authority to secure the benefits of Federal programs for the tribe and its members, including those administered by the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Health and Human Services and shall have authority to execute the necessary waiver of claims against the United States, and consent to allocation of the escrow funds to the Settlement Fund. Id. at 27.

We believe that the Senate Report language indicates that it is unlikely that Congress intended to tie the award of federal contracts and grants to either the waiver of claims or the contribution of escrow funds. Therefore, we conclude that the statutory language does not preclude the BIA from construing this subsection to permit the Interim Council to enact three separate resolutions at different times.¹

3. Consequences of Refusing to Pass a Resolution Waiving Claims Against the United States and/or Filing a Claim under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a) on the Yurok Tribe's Ability to Organize

Section 2(c)(4) of the Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) provides as follows:

The --

- (A) apportionment of funds to the Yurok Tribe as provided in sections 1300i-3 and 1300i-6 of this title;
- (B) the land transfers pursuant to paragraph (2);
- (C) the land acquisition authorities in paragraph (3); and
- (D) the organizational authorities of section 1300i-8 of this title shall not be effective unless and until the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe has adopted a resolution waiving any claim such tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this subchapter.

¹Although the statutory language could conceivably be interpreted so as to reach the opposite conclusion, the courts have consistently resolved statutory ambiguities in favor of the Indians, following a traditional canon of construction applicable in Indian law. See Montana v. Blackfoot Tribe, 471 U.S. 759, 766 (1985).

It is clear that should the Interim Council file a claim in the U.S. Claims Court on behalf of the Yurok Tribe pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a), the same consequences would follow as if it fails to enact a resolution waiving claims under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4).

We do not believe that the Settlement Act precludes the Yurok Tribe from having a government if it refuses to waive claims against the United States. The Yurok Tribe's failure to waive claims only affects its authority to organize under the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 (IRA), 48 Stat. 984, 25 U.S.C. § 461 et seq., pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8. Such an option would be foreclosed without the Settlement Act's specific authorization. Indian tribes, however, are free to form tribal governments independently of the IRA which only provides a certain mechanism for organization, and there are numerous federally recognized Indian tribes presently organized outside of the IRA. See Kerr-McGee Corp. v. Navajo Tribe of Indians, 471 U.S. 195 (1985). The legislative history supports our interpretation of this provision of the Settlement Act. The Senate Report states the following with respect to the Yurok Tribe's decision to organize under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8:

It is not intended by this section that the Indian Reorganization Act shall provide the only means by which the Yurok Tribe may be organized. Nor does the Committee intend that the Constitution prepared by the drafting committee pursuant to subsection (e) is the only one upon which the Secretary may conduct an election in the future. S. Rep. 100-564, supra, at 28.

Therefore, it is our conclusion that the Yurok Tribe's failure to enact a resolution waiving claims against the United States does not prevent the tribe from having a tribal government. Clearly, the Settlement Act neither limits the Yurok Tribe to a single organizational method, nor does it compel the Yurok Tribe to organize under its authority.

4. The Requirement for a Tribal Resolution Waiving Claims against the United States Independently of the Statute of Limitations in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(b)(3)

The Interim Council asked whether it would still be required to pass a tribal resolution waiving claims against the United States to obtain the benefits of §§ 2, 4, and 7 of the Settlement Act notwithstanding their failure to file a Fifth Amendment taking claim in the U.S. Claims Court before expiration of the statute of limitations. Their argument is that such a resolution would have become moot since any claim would be time-barred and no longer valid.

Although it is true that the Yurok Tribe's failure to file a timely claim against the United States in the U.S. Claims Court under the provisions of 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11 may bar such a claim, the statutory requirement for a tribal resolution waiving claims against the United States in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) is independent of the running of the statute of limitations. The statute simply does not authorize the Interim Council to dispense with the resolution requirement in order to be afforded the benefits conferred under specified sections of the Settlement Act for any reason, including the expiration of the statute of limitations in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(b)(3). In addition, courts have held that a statute of limitations is subject to waiver, estoppel and equitable tolling under certain circumstances. See Jarrell v. United States Postal Service, 753 F.2d 1088, 1091 (D.C. Cir. 1985). Therefore, it is conceivable that the Yurok Tribe could file a claim against the United States in the U.S. Claims Court after the expiration of the § 1300i-11(b)(3) period on March 12, 1992, and argue that the court should allow the claim to be litigated notwithstanding the running of the limitations period. Under these circumstances, it would be imprudent to permit the fund transfers, land transfers, land acquisition authorities, and organizational authorities to become effective without securing a waiver resolution from the Interim Council.

5. Effect of Cashing the Payment Authorized under the Yurok Tribal Membership Option on an Individual's Ability to File a Claim under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a)

It is our position that those individuals who affirmatively elected the Yurok tribal membership option, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-5(c), effectively waived their right to file a claim under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a). Thus, their cashing the check they received for the payment authorized under the Yurok tribal membership option has no significance with respect to their right to file a claim under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a). This conclusion is derived from the statutory language itself. Subsection 25 U.S.C.

§ 1300i-5(c)(4) provides as follows:

Any person making an election under this subsection shall no longer have any right or interest whatsoever in the tribal, communal, or unallotted land, property, resources, or rights within, appertaining to, the Hoopa Valley Reservation or the Hoopa Valley Tribe or, except to the extent authorized by paragraph (3), in the Settlement Fund. Any such person shall also be deemed to have granted to members of the Interim Council established under section 1300i-8 of this title an irrevocable proxy directing them to approve a proposed resolution waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this subchapter, and granting tribal consent as provided in section 1300i-8(d)(2) of this title.

As stated in the Senate Report, S. Rep. 100-564, "[this paragraph ... [does] not contemplate that such persons now have any interest, but that, to the extent that they do, it will be automatically relinquished upon an election of one of the options." Id at 23-24.

However, any individual who did not choose an option within the authorized time limit, and who subsequently refuses to accept the payment by refusing to cash the check for it, will not be deemed to have given up any claim he or she may have as a result of the partition, and will have preserved his or her legal right to challenge the provisions of the Act. This interpretation of the Settlement Act is bolstered by the Senate Report language addressing this issue:

The Committee believes it is important that no person on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll lose benefits and privileges flowing from Yurok tribal membership and connection with the Yurok Reservation by virtue of inadvertence, failure to receive actual notice, accident or other unforeseeable events. Accordingly, persons failing to act timely will be deemed to have elected Yurok tribal membership if they accept and cash the check representing the payment authorized by subsection (c).

The Committee believes that acceptance of the payment also establishes the consensual release of rights that accompanies the election. On the other hand, one who fails or refuses to make an election and refuses to accept the payment authorized by subsection (c) may not be deemed to have granted a release or to have granted a proxy to the Yurok Interim Council. Thus, refusing to accept the payment is one method by which persons who do not wish to join the Yurok Tribe may avoid becoming members. S. Rep. 100-564, supra, at 23.

Thus, in order for a Yurok enrollee who made no election to avoid the preclusion of claims effect of the Yurok tribal membership option by default, refusal to accept the payment is critical.²

In a Notice published on May 17, 1991, in the Federal Register, 56 F.R. 22998, the BIA notified all potential claimants except the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe that claims under Section 14 of the Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a), must be filed by September 16, 1991. As of that date, there were two claims filed in the U.S. Claims Court. The first one was filed by the Karuk Tribe in Karuk Tribe of California v. U.S., No. 90-3993-L, U.S. Cl. Ct; and the second one was filed by 32 individuals as "members of, and on behalf of, an identifiable group of American Indians," in Ammon v. U.S., No. 91-1432 L, ² Mere receipt of the check is not enough to trigger the waiver of claims or grant a release or grant a proxy to the Yurok Interim Council. The check must be both accepted and cashed.

U.S. Cl. Ct. It follows from our interpretation of the relevant statutory provisions that any individual who accepts and cashes the check representing the payment authorized under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-5(c) would be precluded from recovering under Ammon.³

Duward R. Barnes

Duward R. Barnes

³Under our analysis, those individuals who affirmatively selected the Yurok membership option are automatically barred from recovering under Ammon. Therefore, recovery under Ammon, if any, is limited to those individuals for whom the Yurok membership option was selected by default and who subsequently refuse to cash the authorized payment.

Testimony of Richard Haberman, Chairman
Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe
Eureka, California
March 5, 1992

The Yurok Tribe thanks the Committee for the support it has shown Yurok people over the past several years. As you are aware the so-called Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (P.L. 100-580), divided the former Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation between the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. This division provided Hoopa Tribe with approximately 95% of of the communal trust lands and economic assets of the former Hoopa Valley Reservation. The new Hoopa Reservation has approximately 80,000 acres of tribally held trust land containing approximately $850 million dollars of timber. The Yurok Reservation, upon waiver of tribal rights would have approximately 3000 acres of tribal trust lands containing approximately $45 million dollars worth of timber.

Although the Yurok Tribe has been and is a federally recognized Tribe, we have not been an organized Tribe. P.L. 100-580 provided a process for the organization of the Yurok Tribe. The Act established the now defunct Yurok Transition Team, made up of individuals who were appointed by Department of the Interior, who have appeared previously before this Committee.

Today, we are appearing as the first popularly elected entity that has the right to speak on behalf of the Yurok Tribe. The first thing that we must say is that the Yurok Tribe did not consent to the P.L. 100-580 and we do not believe that our Tribe was treated in an equitable and fair manner.

Although our area has suffered through almost thirty years of non-stop litigation, we are faced with having to decide by 3/12/92 whether to challenge the partition of the former reservation by filing suit in the U.S. Claims Court asserting an unconstitutional taking. Litigation is not our option of choice, but P.L.100-580 only provided a six month statute of limitations after the publication of the Settlement Roll, and three of the months had already run when our Council was installed.

We either have to waive our rights to any damages claim against the United States or file suit. Our preference would be for Congress to amend the Settlement Act extending the statute of limitations, and to begin the process of ameliorating the impact of P.L. 100-580 by providing significant funding for land acquisition and economic self-sufficiency. P.L. 100-580 provided an open ended authorization of not less than five million for land acquisition and directed the development of plan for economic self-sufficiency. A long term commitment to providing equity to the Yurok People is what we seek.

All of appropriations requests relate the results of P.L. 100-580, they include: (1) $10,000,000 (Miscellaneous Payments to Indians) for land acquisition pursuant to P.L. 100-580; (2) $1,100,000 adjustment (Aid to Tribal Government) for Yurok programs; (3) $500,000 add-on for undertaking the Plan for Economic Self-Sufficiency; (4) $350,000 (Real Estate Services) for the continuation of the Yurok Reservation Survey; (5) $250,000 add-on (Indian Services - New Tribes) for the Interim Council's budget; and (6) $563,000 add-on (Wildlife & Parks - Tribal Management) for Yurok Tribal Fisheries.

acquisition pursuant to P.L. 100-580. As noted above P.L.100-580 resulted in a totally lopsided division of the former Hoopa Valley Reservation without our consent. Under an unbroken string of federal court cases, the former Hoopa Valley Reservation was single unified reservation in which none of the various Tribes located there had a vested right to particular land/and assets and all communal land/and assets was held for the benefit of all the Indians of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation. P.L. 100-580 divided the Reservation between the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. The Yurok Tribe whose statutorily imposed organizing membership criteria includes bloodlines of various reservation related Indian groups has become the successor-in-interest to Indians of the Reservation.

The Yurok Tribe is now faced with either providing technical consent to P.L. 100-580 in order to receive the residual balance of the Settlement Fund and title to some 3000 acres of Tribe Trust lands or suing the United States in the Court of Claims for damages arising out of the partition.

We know that justice and equity is on our side. We know that in extreme cases such as ours, the Claims Court may look beyond a Congressional assertion of fairness and hold the United States liable upon the bare facts. But, we also know that the prospect of decades of continuing litigation, on the heels of the three decades of Short litigation, is not a desirable prospect for our community. We have other important issues such as the restoration of our fishery, and the development of our organic governing documents which require our energy. There needs to be additional alternative.

We have proposed to our congressional delegation and the authorizing Committees that a better alternative is for the United States to make a clear commitment to providing an appropriate land and economic base for the Yurok Tribe, and we will execute appropriate consent (called waivers in the Act) and end the litigation. We do not know exactly what that "clear commitment" will entail over the next several decades. What we recommend is a beginning $10,000,000 for land purchase beginning for FY 1993, which would be held available until expended; funding of the statutorily authorized Economic Self-Sufficiency Plan; the eventual amendment of P.L. 100-580 to incorporate the Economic Self-Sufficiency Plan once developed and agreed to with the United States; and a 20-25 year funding cycle to make the plan a reality.

The Budget Report of Committee on Interior & Insular Affairs includes $10,000,000 for land purchase for the Yurok Tribe. We are aware that Chairman Yates voted against P.L. 100-580 and has supported the limited efforts to date to help our Tribe and we applaud his sense of justice and commitment.

2.$1,100,000 (Aid to Tribal Government) for Yurok programs. In this Committee's report on the FY 1992 Appropriations the Bureau of Indian Affairs was instructed to readjust funding for the Yurok Tribe when its membership numbers became known. The membership base number has been known six months now; it is 2820 persons; making the Yuroks the largest Tribe in California. No readjustment in Bureau funding occurred. This year's Budget request reflects the Bureau's failure to readjust its FY 1992 figures. Approximately $1,700,000 is identified in the Budget Request under Aid to Tribal Government. It is our understanding that under the standard BIA formula for New Tribes this number should be $2,800,000; hence our request for an adjustment.

3. $500,000 add-on for undertaking the Plan for Economic Self-Sufficiency. As noted in the discussion accompanying item No. 1, this study which is called for in P.L. 100-580 is a critical ingredient in determining what the long term needs of the Yurok Tribe are in order to provide some semblance of congressionally determined fairness with respect to the partition of the former Hoopa-Valley reservation. The Department's FY 1993 Budget request does not contain any funds for this purpose. Inquiries to Agency and Area levels of the BIA in California indicated that $500,000 is a realistic amount for FY 1993.

4. $350,000 (Real Estate Services) for the continuation of the Yurok Reservation Survey. In FY 1991 and FY 1992 Congress funded our request to begin the process of Surveying the Reservation. As you know, the Senate Report accompanying P.L. 100-580 indicated "concern that Department does not have adequate survey(s)" for the Yurok Reservation and "therefore expects the Department to conduct all necessary surveys... ." Although the funding technically is a BIA budget item, the actual work is being done by the Bureau of Land Management. The amount that we are requesting --$350,000-- is the amount that the local BLM staff predicts is necessary to keep the work on the surveying at the same level in FY 1993 as it is ongoing in FY 1992.

5. $250,000 add-on (Indian Services - New Tribes) for the Interim Council's budget. In FY 1992, the budget for the Interim Council is approximately $500,000; $250,000 was requested in the Department's budget and an additional $250,000 was added on by the Appropriations Committees. This funding as we understand it is to enable the Council to proceed with the organizing process for the Tribe as well as address the myriad of legal/policy questions such as the Waiver Issues, that must be resolved before the Tribe takes its place as an equal among the other federally recognized and organized Tribes. We have two distinct problems: (1) the Department has again only requested $250,000 for the Council; and (2) local BIA officials treat us as if we were incompetent two year olds with respect to funding and the use of funding. At one point they maintained that the $250,000 add-on was the only funding available; and at another point they maintained that we could not hire counsel with appropriated funds earmarked for the Interim Council to advise us concerning any of the issues faced -- arguing in effect that we had to execute a waiver of our rights in order to access our Trust funds in order to hire counsel to advise us on the rights that we had to waive to get counsel in the first place. Although we eventually prevailed, at least in principle, we still do not have in hand FY 1992 funds for the Interim Council or an approved Attorney contract.

The full $500,000 is essential for the operation of the Interim Council. We also request report language that will give some appropriate guidance to the BIA: "The Yurok Interim Council may expend such funds to accomplish its responsibilities including the retention of counsel and other experts." "The authority of Yurok Interim Council, whether or not it institutes litigation or executes waivers relative to claims under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, to enter into contracts and expend appropriated funds is to be recognized by the Bureau of Indian Affairs."

(6) $563,000 add-on (Wildlife & Parks - Tribal Management) for Yurok Tribal Fisheries. As the Committee is well aware, the Klamath River fisheries were identified in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act as a key resource of the Yurok Tribe. In fact the fisheries are key resources of both the Yurok Tribe and the Hoopa Tribe whose fishery is up river from ours. The reality of the fishery is that in the last four years, only two years provided a Yurok Tribal commercial fishery income and that income averaged only $185,000 for each of the 2 years. Some of the problems relate to Ocean fishery and the allocation of the resources by the Regulating agencies. Other problems are related to the quality and quantity of water resources on the Trinity/Klamath River system, and the damage to the system resulting from forest practices. Critical to addressing these and other issues is a Tribal Fisheries Department. We appreciate the limited funds that the Congress has been able to make available to us to start-up the Yurok Fisheries Department. This year our request includes a one time cost of $150,000 and annual operating costs of $372,000.

Attached to our testimony is a fact sheet that provides more details concerning the gross inequities that resulted from the partition of the former Hoopa Valley Reservation.

At this point in time it appears unlikely that we will be to have the Act amended before March 12, 1992 to provide a longer statute of limitations period. We therefore will file a protective law suit in the U.S. Claims Court, a law suit which we will withdraw when a new statute of limitations period is provided. This will enable us all to work for the solutions that we have recommended.

IN THE UNITED STATES CLAIMS COURT

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

No. 92-173 L

JURISDICTION

1. The Claims Court has jurisdiction of this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§1491 and/or 1505, in that plaintiff, a federally-recognized Indian Tribe, asserts claims for just compensation under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States for the taking of compensable property and property rights of the Yurok Tribe by the United States under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act of 1988, 102 Stat. 2924, Pub. Law No. 100-580, 25 U.S.C. §1300i, et seq. (hereinafter, "the Act").

PLAINTIFF

2. Plaintiff is the Yurok Indian Tribe, an American Indian Tribe recognized by the United States of America, located in the State of California and having a governing body duly recognized by the Secretary of the Interior. The Yurok Tribe sues on its own behalf, and upon behalf of its members.

FACTS

3. By the Act of April 8, 1864, 13 Stat. 39, Congress authorized the President, inter alia, to set apart not exceeding four tracts of land within the State of California for the purposes of Indian reservations, at least one of which was to be in the State's northern district, of such extent as deemed suitable for the accommodation of all of the Indians of the State.

4. On February 18, 1865, the authorized representative of the Secretary of the Interior, the Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the State of California, located an Indian Reservation on a tract of land twelve miles square, described in general terms as beginning at a point where the Trinity River flows into Hoopa Valley and following down said stream, extending six miles on each side thereof, to its junction with the Klamath River. This tract, comprising approximately 89,572 acres, is known and will be referred to herein as "the Square."

5. By an Executive Order dated June 23, 1876, President Grant withdrew the Square from public sale and set it apart for Indian purposes as one of the permanent Indian Reservations authorized by the Act of April 8, 1864, 13 Stats. 39. The Yurok Tribe was one of the Tribes which the President intended should benefit from the establishment of the Square as a Reservation.

6. The setting apart of the Square as a Reservation reserved to the Indian beneficiaries thereof not only beneficial title to the lands, but also the right to hunt, fish, gather and otherwise use and benefit from all of the natural resources and other assets of the Reservation.

7. From its location in 1865 until the present, the Square has been recognized by the federal government as an existing Indian Reservation; its original boundaries were defined by metes and bounds in President Grant's June 23, 1876 Executive Order.

8. By an Executive Order issued on October 16, 1891, President Harrison extended the boundaries of the Reservation comprising the Square to encompass, "... a tract of country one mile in width on each side of the Klamath River, and extending from the present limits of the said Hoopa Valley reservation to the Pacific Ocean; Provided, however, That any tract or tracts included within the above described boundaries to which valid rights have attached under the laws of the United States are hereby excluded from the reservation as hereby extended."

9. The purpose of the October 16, 1891 Executive Order described in Paragraph 8 above was to create an enlarged, single, integrated reservation incorporating without distinction the added and original tracts upon which the Indians populating the newly-added lands should reside on an equal footing with the Indians theretofore resident upon it. Yurok Indians predominated in the lands added to the Reservation by the above-described Executive Order; however, a substantial number of Yurok Indians have resided and continue to reside on the Square itself, and the Indians of the Yurok Tribe have been recognized as being entitled to rights on the Reservation at least equal to those of the Indians of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

10. The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, P.L. 100-580, 25 U.S.C. §1300i, et seq. (hereinafter, "the Act"), authorized the partition of the Hoopa Valley Reservation and its resources into separate Yurok and Hoopa Reservations solely upon the consent of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. As partitioned under the Act, the Hoopa Valley Reservation was to consist of the Hoopa Square, the approximately 87,000 acres of unallotted trust land within the Square which would be held in trust by the United States for the exclusive use and benefit of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. As partitioned under the Act, the Yurok Reservation was to consist of the Extension, the approximately 3,500 acres of unallotted trust lands within the Extension which would be held in trust by the United States for the exclusive use and benefit of the Yurok Tribe.

11. The Act created a "Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund" consisting of money derived from several different sources, including timber sales on the Square. The money in this fund was to be distributed to the Hoopa Valley Tribe, to persons choosing to join the Yurok Tribe, to persons choosing to join neither the Hoopa Valley nor the Yurok Tribe, and to the Yurok Tribe.

12. Partition of the Reservation under the Act was to extinguish all rights in the unallotted trust lands and other assets of the Square possessed by individual Indians of the Reservation who were not enrolled members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

13. The Act conditioned the Yurok Tribe's receipt of financial and other benefits under the Act upon the Yurok Tribe's disclaimer of any rights in the unallotted lands, resources and other assets of the Square, as well as a waiver of any claims against the United States arising out of the Act.

14. The Hoopa Valley Tribe consented to the partition of the Reservation as contemplated by the Act, and the Reservation was partitioned in the manner authorized by the Act. By reason of that partition, the United States now recognizes the Hoopa Valley Tribe as the exclusive beneficiary of the unallotted trust lands and other assets and natural resources of the Square, and has excluded the Yurok Tribe, the members of the Yurok Tribe and all other Indians of the Reservation who are not enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe from participating in the benefits of such assets and resources.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

Uncompensated Taking of Property Rights in the Square

15. Plaintiff hereby realleges each of the allegations contained in paragraphs 1-14 above, and by this reference incorporates each such allegation as if set forth in full.

16. Prior to the partition of the Reservation pursuant to the Act, the Yurok Tribe had no fewer or less valuable compensable property rights in the unallotted trust lands and the natural resources of the Square than did the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

17. By reason of its compensable property rights in the unallotted trust land and natural resources of the Square, the Yurok Tribe was and is entitled to just compensation for the diminishment or extinguishment of those rights.

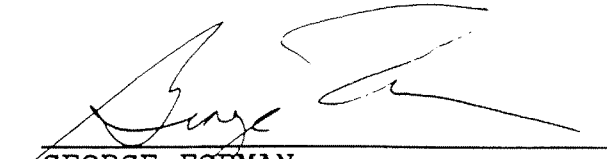

18. The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act extinguished or diminished the Yurok Tribe's compensable property rights in the unallotted trust land and natural resources of the Square without payment of just compensation.

19. The United States is liable to the Yurok Tribe in an amount equal to the value of the Yurok Tribe's compensable property rights in the unallotted trust land and natural resources of the Square which were diminished or extinguished by the Act and for which just compensation has not been paid, plus interest from the date of taking, said amount to be proven at trial.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays that the Court enter judgment awarding the Yurok Tribe just compensation for the taking of its compensable property rights in the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation in an amount corresponding to proof, plus interest from the date of taking, and that the Court grant such other relief, including an award of reasonable attorneys' fees, expenses and costs, as it may deem just and appropriate.

APR 18 1992

Honorable Dale Risling, Sr.
Chairman, Hoopa Valley
Tribal Council
P.O. Box 1348
Hoopa, California 95546

Dear Chairman Risling:

Thank you for your letter of March 12, 1992, concerning the Yurok Interim Council's decision to file Yurok Tribe v. United States in the U.S. Claims Court.

The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2)(i), authorizes the Interim Council to adopt a resolution waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Settlement Act. Section 2(c)(4) of the Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4), spells out the consequences to the Yurok Tribe of refusing to adopt such a resolution. It provides as follows:

The --

- (A) apportionment of funds to the Yurok Tribe as provided in sections 1300i-3 and 1300i-6 of this title;
 - (B) the land transfers pursuant to paragraph (2);
 - (C) the land acquisition authorities in paragraph (3); and
 - (D) the organizational authorities of section 1300i-8 of this title
- shall not be effective unless and until the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe has adopted a resolution waiving any claim such tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this subchapter.

It is clear that the Interim Council's decision to file the above-referenced claim in the U.S. Claims Court means that the same consequences follow as if it fails to enact a resolution waiving claims against the United States. Therefore, unless and until the Interim Council waives the Tribe's claims and dismisses its case against the United States, it will neither have access to its portion of the Settlement Fund, nor will title to all national forest system lands within the Yurok Reservation, and to the portion of the Yurok Experimental Forest described in the Settlement Act, be taken in trust for the Yurok Tribe. In addition, the Secretary will be unable to proceed with acquisition of any lands or interests in land for the Yurok Tribe, or with spending any appropriated funds for this purpose.

At this time, we cannot grant your request to establish Hoopa tribal access to the funds that remain in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund as a result of the filing of Yurok Tribe v. United States. We have not made a final determination concerning the legal status of these funds in the absence of a Yurok tribal resolution waiving claims against the United States, and this issue will be referred to the Solicitor's Office for an opinion. We will advise you of our determination once the legal evaluation is completed.

Please let us know if we can be of any further assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs

APR 15 1992

Honorable Richard Haberman
Chairman, Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe
517 Third, Suite 21
Eureka, California 95501

Dear Chairman Haberman:

Thank you for your letter of March 16, 1992, enclosing your submitted testimony before the Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies of the Appropriations Committee, the complaint in Yurok Indian Tribe v. United States, and a proposed amendment extending the statute of limitations in Section 14 of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(b)(3).

Although we fully understand your reasons for filing a claim in the U.S. Claims Court and for seeking to amend the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act to extend the limitations period in Section 14 of the Settlement Act, as you are well aware, the Department of the Interior cannot commit the Administration to support any legislative proposal which has yet to be formally introduced.

We agree with your statement that it is inappropriate for any tribal entity other than the Yurok Interim Council to involve itself in the internal affairs of the Yurok Tribe, and assure you that the Bureau of Indian Affairs will not tolerate any pressure to foster outside interests at the expense of those of the Yurok Tribe.

We also agree with your assessment of the consequences to the Yurok Tribe of failing to pass an ordinance waiving claims against the United States, and filing a claim in the U.S. Claims Court. Unless and until the Interim Council waives the Tribe's claims and dismisses its case against the United States, it will neither have access to its portion of the Settlement Fund, nor will title to all national forest system lands within the Yurok Reservation, and to the portion of the Yurok Experimental Forest described in the Settlement Act, be taken in trust for the Yurok Tribe. In addition, the Secretary will be unable to proceed with acquisition of any lands or interests in land for the Yurok Tribe, or with spending any appropriated funds for this purpose. Finally, the Yurok Tribe will be unable to organize under the Indian Reorganization Act (IRA). However, we agree with you that your decision to file a claim in the U.S. Claims Court does not affect your access to appropriated funds which may be provided for the Interim Council's operations, grants and contracts, and the economic planning activity.¹ In addition, as stated in the Assistant Solicitor's opinion dated February 3, 1992, the Settlement Act does not restrict the Tribe to organizing under the IRA, and you may therefore organize outside of its provisions.

Finally, we have not made any final determination concerning the legal status of the funds that remain in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund, and what will happen to them in the absence of a Yurok tribal resolution waiving claims against the United States. We certainly have not agreed to allow the Hoopa Valley Tribe to access these funds. This issue will be referred to the Solicitor's Office for an opinion, and we will advise you of our determination once the legal evaluation is completed.

Please let us know if we can be of any further assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

(sgd) William D. Eastman
Acting Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs

¹The Settlement Act does require the adoption of a resolution "to receive grants from, and enter into contracts for, Federal programs including those administered by the Secretary and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, with respect to Federal services and benefits for the tribe and its members." 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8 (d)(2)(iii). As stated in the Assistant Solicitor's opinion of February 3, 1992, such a resolution may be adopted independently of the resolution waiving claims against the United States.

Honorable Ada Deer
Assistant Secretary- Indian Affairs
Department of the Interior
18th and C Sts., N.W.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Secretary Deer,

The Yurok Tribe is pleased to congratulate you on your recent confirmation and swearing-in as our primary trustee. We are aware of your many accomplishments and strong advocacy for tribal rights and are confident you will have a beneficial and historic tenure.

As you may be aware, the Yurok tribe has been struggling through the Courts, Congress and the Administration to put in place a viable and permanent Tribal government. As you also may be aware, we believe that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act was extremely one-sided and particularly unfair to the Yurok tribe, who at the time of the Act was unorganized. We have filed a fifth amendment claim in the United States Claims Court, as provided for in the Act, to press our views. We have not and will not make any claim against the current Hoopa Valley Reservation or the Hoopa Valley Tribe; our claim is against the United States.

In spite of concerns about the Act, the Yurok people have vigorously pursued organizing the Tribe. The Interim Council appointed a constitutional drafting committee, hired Charles Wilkinson and Paul Alexander to assist us with constitution drafting, and we have held numerous community meetings to solicit input. We had obtained Dr. Brown's commitment to hold an expedited election to approve the constitution under the Secretary's general authority.

Unfortunately, four members of the eight member Constitution drafting committee prematurely submitted to the BIA a draft constitution under the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act for an IRA review and election. The Settlement Act's IRA provisions are not activated unless and until the Tribe provides "waivers" under the Act. We have not provided such waivers, we will not provide such waivers during our term, and our draft constitution requires a referendum of the Yurok people in order to provide such waivers. Simply put, the BIA has no authority to hold an election on the premature submission.

In any event, the constitution drafting committee, having completed its task, has been disbanded. The Council, by Resolution 93-33 on July 1, 1993 approved a draft Constitution and submitted it to the Northern California Agency on July 12, 1993. The Tribally submitted constitution is similar to that submitted to us by the drafting committee; however it was modified in several important aspects before it was approved by the council.

We hereby withdraw the prematurely submitted draft constitution and request that the BIA return it to the Council. We reiterate our request that the process for initiating a ratification election for the Council submitted Constitution be expedited. We expect the voters to consider only one constitution draft at the ratification election. To do otherwise would engender confusion and would constitute an undue interference with tribal powers of self-government.

We look forward to visiting with you soon and exploring the many important issues facing our Tribe. Your counsel and experience will no doubt be beneficial to our efforts.

Sincerely Yours,

Susie L. Long, Vice-Chair

Ms. Susie L. Long
Vice Chairman, Yurok Interim Council
517 Third, Suite 18
Eureka, California 95501

Dear Ms. Long:

Thank you for your letter of October 26, 1993, informing us of the decision of the Yurok Tribe (Tribe) to contract with an independent C.P.A. firm to conduct and certify the ratification election for the proposed Constitution of the Yurok Tribe, and forwarding us a copy of the draft constitution, dated October 22, 1993.

Please be assured of our support in your transition to a fully operational self-governing Tribe. We are prepared to recognize the proposed Constitution of the Yurok Tribe as the Tribe's governing document if such document is duly ratified by the membership of the Tribe in an election after adequate notice and a fair opportunity for all tribal members to participate. In addition, following ratification of the proposed constitution by the Yurok membership, and pursuant to Article XIV of the proposed Constitution of the Yurok Tribe, we will continue to recognize the current members of the Yurok Interim Council as the lawful representatives of the Tribe pending the election and installation of the Yurok Tribal Council.

However, it should be clearly understood that after November 25, 1993, the current members of the Yurok Interim Council will no longer derive their authority to represent the Tribe from powers vested in the Interim Council by the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act, but from the newly adopted Constitution of the Yurok Tribe. Under section 9(d) of the Act, the Interim Council created under the authority of the Act will be dissolved on November 25, 1993. In that respect, the authority vested in the Interim Council by section 2(c)(4) of the Act to waive claims against the United States will expire on November 25, 1993. Any subsequent waiver of claims by the Tribe will be legally insufficient to effectuate the apportionment of funds to the Tribe as provided in sections 4 and 7 of the Act, the land transfers and land acquisition authorities under section 2 of the Act, or the organizational authorities of section 9 of the Act.

We look forward to working with you and offer our assistance in helping the Tribe organize and exercise its powers of self-government through the establishment of a tribal governmental structure for the Tribe.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susie L. Long
Chair, Interim Tribal Council
Yurok Tribe
517 Third, Suite 18
Eureka, California 95501

Dear Ms. Long:

Thank you for your letter of November 24, 1993, transmitting Resolution No. 93-61, approved November 24, 1993, by the Yurok Tribe Interim Council, regarding the waiver of claims against the United States by the Yurok Tribe arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i et seq. For the following reasons, we conclude that Resolution No. 93-61 is not a resolution "waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act," within the meaning of 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) or 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2).

Three provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act are relevant. Section 9(d)(2), 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2), provides in part:

- (2) The Interim Council shall have full authority to adopt a resolution -
- (i) waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this Act, and
 - (ii) affirming tribal consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in this Act ...

Substantially identical language appears in Section 2(c)(4), 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4). In addition, Section 14, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11, provides in part:

- (a) Any claim challenging the partition of the joint reservation pursuant to Section 2 or any other provision of this Act as having effected a taking under the fifth amendment of the United States Constitution or as otherwise having provided inadequate compensation shall be brought, pursuant 1 to section 1491 or 1505 of Title 28, in the United States Court of Federal Claims ...

(3) Any such claim by the Yurok Tribe shall be barred 180 days after the general council meeting of the Yurok Tribe as provided in section 9 or such earlier date as may be established by the adoption of a resolution waiving such claims as provided in section 9(d)(2).

It is clear to us that the waiver referred to in the above-referenced provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is a waiver of claims that would challenge the partition of the Joint Reservation or another provision of the Settlement Act as having effected a taking or as otherwise having provided inadequate compensation.

Among other things, Resolution No. 93-61 recites that:

[T]he Interim Council believes that the Act's purported partition of the tribal, communal or unallotted land, property, resources, or rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation as between the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes was effected without any good-faith attempt to define, quantify or value the respective rights therein of the Indians of the Reservation or the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes, and so grossly and disproportionately favored the interest of the Hoopa Tribe over those of the Yurok Tribe as to constitute an act of confiscation rather than guardianship; and

[T]he Interim Council does not believe that the Constitution of the United States would allow the federal government simply to confiscate vested Tribal or individual property rights in Reservation lands, resources or other assets without just compensation, or to condition participation in or receipt of federal benefits or programs and enjoyment of tribal property, assets and resources upon acquiescence in an unconstitutional statute.

Following the recitals, the Yurok Interim Council resolved as follows:

1. To the extent [to] which the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is not violative of the rights of the Yurok Tribe or its members under the Constitution of the United States, or has not effected a taking without just compensation of vested Tribal or individual resources, or rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe hereby waives any claim which said Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act;

2. To the extent [to] which the determination of the Yurok Tribe's share of the Escrow monies defined in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act has not deprived the Tribe or its members of rights secured under the Constitution of the United States, the Yurok [Tribe] hereby affirms its consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

It is quite clear that Resolution No. 93-61 specifically preserves, rather than waives, the Yurok tribe's taking claim against the United States. Indeed, the Yurok Tribe has filed a claim in the U.S. Court of Federal Claims asserting that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act effected a taking under the Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution. See Yurok Indian Tribe v. United States, No. 92-173-L. On February 3, 1992, the Assistant Solicitor, Branch of General Indian Legal Activities, issued a memorandum to the Area Director, Sacramento Area Office, regarding issues raised at the organizational meeting of the Yurok Interim Council held November 25, 26, 1991. That memorandum discussed several aspects of the claim waiver resolution issue. The Assistant Solicitor stated:

It is clear that should the Interim Council file a claim in the U.S. Claims Court on behalf of the Yurok Tribe pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a), the same consequences would follow as if it fails to enact a resolution waiving claims under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4).

Accordingly, it follows that Resolution No. 93-61 is not a resolution "waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this Act," within the meaning of 25 U.S.C. § 1300-1(c)(4) or 25 U.S.C. § 1300-8(d)(2). Our conclusion is consistent with your statement to the Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs, in a letter dated August 20, 1993, that the Interim Council would not provide any such waiver during its term.

Our determination that Resolution No. 93-61 fails to meet the requirements of 25 U.S.C. § 1300-1(c)(4) means that the Yurok Tribe will be unable to enjoy the benefits conferred under Section 2 and 9 of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act upon the passage of a legally sufficient waiver of claims, including the Yurok Tribe's share of the Settlement Fund under Sections 4 and 7 of the Act, the

$5 million appropriated under the Snyder Act for the purpose of acquiring lands within or outside the Yurok Reservation, ownership of all Six Rivers National Forest lands within the boundaries of the old Klamath River Reservation or the Connecting Strip, and ownership of and reservation status for the Yurok Experimental Forest lands and buildings.

Eureka, California 95501

Dear Chairperson Long:

This is in response to the Yurok Tribal Council's letter of August 30, 1994, requesting reconsideration and clarification of certain aspects of our decision of April 4, 1994, that Resolution 93-61, adopted November 24, 1993, by the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe (Tribe), is not a resolution "waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Act)," within the meaning of 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) or 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2).

Having considered the arguments presented in your August 30, 1994, letter, we reaffirm our decision of April 4, 1994. In our opinion, there can be no question that the waiver of claims against the United States required under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) and 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2) must necessarily include a waiver of any taking claim the Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Act. In fact, as the legislative history of the Act indicates, potential taking claims against the United States were precisely the type of claims Congress was most concerned about. That is why, in our opinion, Congress made the waiver of such taking claims by both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Indian Tribes the essential elements to triggering key provisions of the Act.

In your August 30, 1994, letter, you argue that construing the Act's requirement of a Yurok tribal waiver of claims as extending even to claims for lack of adequate compensation clearly would violate the doctrine of unconstitutional conditions. As a matter of law, we do not believe that the statutory scheme in the Act, requiring a waiver of claims including any taking claim, against the United States in exchange for valuable property rights, triggers the doctrine of unconstitutional conditions. However, even assuming, for the sake of argument, that this doctrine could be invoked, we would not be in a position to cure this potential defect by ignoring what we believe to be the clear requirements of the Act.

In addition, it is our opinion that the statutorily required waiver of taking claims against the United States in exchange for valuable property benefits is rationally tied to the Act's purpose to resolve long standing litigation between the United States and various Indian interests and to promote effective management of the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Indian reservations by their respective tribal governments. As such, the statutory requirements in the Act meet the tied rationally test used by the courts in reviewing the constitutionality of Indian legislation. See e.g., Delaware Tribal Business Comm. v. Weeks, 430 U.S. 73 (1977).

You also seek clarification of our April 4, 1994, letter with respect to the Tribe's option to cure the perceived deficiencies in Resolution 93-61 by subsequent tribal action or the final resolution of the Tribe's lawsuit in the U.S. Court of Federal Claims. It is our position that the Yurok Tribal Council could cure the deficiencies in the Resolution if it is so desired. As you point out in your letter, under tribal law the authority of the former Interim Council was transferred to the Tribal Council, and with that transfer goes the authority to amend Resolution 93-61, albeit subject to a referendum of the Yurok membership. The exercise of this authority by the Tribal Council is consistent with the provisions of the Act.

An amendment to Resolution 93-61 to cure the deficiencies relating to the waiver of claims against the United States, however, must be accompanied by a dismissal with prejudice of the Tribe's taking claim currently being litigated before the U.S. Court of Federal Claims in Yurok Tribe v. United States. In our opinion, the Tribe's decision to prosecute its claim in this litigation is inconsistent with the waiver of claims required under the Act. Were there to be a settlement of the lawsuit, it would have to be accomplished before the case has proceeded to a determination on the merits. This is necessary both to save time, energy and money on costly legal proceedings and because a settlement will not be possible if the Court has ruled on any portion of the merits.

Therefore, I propose that you immediately seek a stay of proceedings in Yurok Tribe v. United States for at least one hundred and twenty days in order to conduct your referendum of the Yurok membership, undertake settlement negotiations and to permit you to amend Resolution 93-61 to cure existing deficiencies. In this regard, members of the Bureau of Indian Affairs staff and the Office of the Solicitor staff will be made available to you and your attorneys for purposes of providing technical assistance with respect to what the Government believes must be included in the tribal resolution in order for the Tribe to obtain the benefits available under Sections 2 and 9 of the Act.

Finally, as requested in your letter, please find enclosed a copy of the February 3, 1992, memorandum from the Assistant Solicitor, Branch of General Indian Legal Activities, to the Bureau of Indian Affairs' Sacramento Area Director. It is our sincere hope that we can resolve this matter to our mutual satisfaction.

Sincerely,

Ada E. Deer

The Honorable J. Dennis Hastert
Speaker of the House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Speaker:

Pursuant to Section 14(c) of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, Public Law 100-580, I respectfully submit the attached report. The Report includes a general history of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, and recommendations of the Department in this regard.

The Act requires that a "Report to Congress" be submitted, following the resolution of any claims brought against the United States which would challenge the constitutionality of the Act. After nearly a decade of litigation on the matter, claims filed by the Yurok Tribe of California, were decided earlier this year in favor of the United States. The conclusion of this litigation now triggers the requirement of the Act that this "report" be submitted to Congress. These matters are discussed more fully within the enclosed "report."

Should you have further questions on this matter, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs

Introduction

This report is submitted pursuant to Section 14(c) of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act of 1988 (Public Law 100-580, October 31, 1988) ("Act"). The major purpose of the Act was to establish definitive boundaries for the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation. Section 14(c) of the Act directs the Secretary of the Interior to prepare and submit to Congress a report describing the final decision in any claim brought pursuant to subsection Section 14(b) against the United States, its officers, agencies, or instrumentalities. The Act further directs the Secretary to include within the report any recommendations of the Secretary for action by Congress. The Act provides that the Secretary shall submit the report to Congress within 180 days of the final judgment of any claim brought pursuant to the Act. Subsequent to the passage of the Act, the Yurok Tribe filed a "takings claim" against the United States. The Yurok claim was initially denied by the United States Court of Federal Claims, and was later denied a Petition for Writ of Certiorari by the U.S. Supreme Court on March 26, 2001.

History

In August of 1988, Senator Cranston introduced S. 2723, a bill to partition certain reservation lands between the Hoopa Valley Indian Tribe and the Yurok Tribe in the northern California. Introduction of the legislation followed a long history of contention and confusion surrounding the establishment and boundaries of the Hoopa Valley Reservation, created in 1891 by an executive order of President Harrison ("1891 Reservation"). The 1891 Reservation included areas of land inhabited primarily by Yuroks, areas of land inhabited primarily by Hoopas, and a 25-mile strip of land that connected the two areas. The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act was enacted with the primary objective of providing finality and clarity to the contested boundary issue.

The Act concluded that no constitutionally protected rights had vested in any tribe or individual, to the communal lands and other resources of the 1891 Reservation, and provided for a fair and equitable resolution of disputes relating to ownership and management of the 1891 Reservation. Pursuant to and in accordance with the Act the 1891 Reservation was partitioned between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. The section of the 1891 Reservation known as "the Square" was established as the Hoopa Valley Reservation, and the section known as "the Extension" was established as the Yurok Reservation. The Act also created a Settlement Fund initially comprised of funds derived from economic activity occurring on the 1891 Hoopa Valley Reservation and supplemented by additional funds appropriated by Congress. Particular benefits of the Act, i.e., the provisions related to the partitioning of the Reservation, potential expansion of the newly formed reservations, and participation in the Settlement Fund, were conditioned upon the tribes adopting individual tribal resolution's granting their consent to the partition of the 1891 Reservation and waiving potential claims the tribes may have against the United States.

Subsequent to enactment of the Act, the Hoopa Valley Tribe executed and adopted such a resolution. The Yurok Tribe executed what they have described as a "conditional waiver" which they adopted by resolution.

Yurok "Conditional Waiver"

In November of 1994, the Yurok Tribe submitted documentation to the Department concerning the claims waiver requirement of the Act. This material included Tribal Resolution No. 93-61, which purported to waive claims of the Tribe pursuant to and in accordance with the Act. The Resolution states in relevant part, "[T]o the extent which the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is not violative of the rights of the Yurok Tribe or its members under the Constitution of the United States, or has not effected a taking without just compensation of vested Tribal or individual resources, or rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe hereby waives any claim which said Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act." In a letter dated April 4, 1994, it was communicated to the Yurok Tribe by Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, Ada E. Deer, that Resolution No. 93-61 did not effectively waive any Tribal claims as required by the Act, but in fact acted to preserve any such claims.

Entitlement to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund/Benefits of the Act

In 1988 the Hoopa Valley Tribe executed a waiver of claims, pursuant to the Act, and as a result, received their portion of the benefits as enumerated within the Act. Accordingly, it is the position of the Department that the Hoopa Valley Tribe is not entitled any further portion of funds or benefits under the existing Act.

In 1993, the Yurok Tribe submitted to the Secretary a tribal resolution which according to the tribe, purports to waive potential claims against the United States as required within the Act. As previously stated, the Department responded to Yurok submission with a letter stating that the Department could and would not accept the resolution as a valid waiver within the confines of the Act. The Yurok Tribe subsequently filed a "takings" claim, Yurok Indian Tribe v. United States, No. 92-CV-173 (Fed. Cl.), Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, 28 Fed. Cl. 694 (1993), Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, 41 Fed. Cl. 468 (Aug. 6, 1998), and Karuk Tribe of California v. Ammon, 209 F. 3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000), that lasted nearly a decade. In briefings before the U.S. Supreme Court, the Yurok claimed that this was, "the most important Indian-lands takings case to come before the courts in this generation". Possible exposure to the U.S. Treasury was estimated close to $2 billion. The question for the Court was whether the Yuroks had a compensable interest in the 1891 Reservation under the 5th Amendment. In 1864, Congress had authorized the President, "at his discretion", to set apart land, "to be retained by the United States for purposes of Indian Reservations" (Act of 1864, 13 Stat. 39). Both trial and appellate courts held, in two-to-one decisions, that the executive order that created the reservation allowed permissive, not permanent, occupation. The U.S. Supreme Court denied certiorari. Accordingly, it is the position of the Department that the Yurok Tribe did not meet the waiver conditions of the Act and is therefore not entitled to the benefits enumerated within the Act.

Following a request from the Department, each of the interested tribes submitted their written position regarding future actions of the Department with respect to the Settlement Fund, and the Section 14(c) "Report to Congress", required under the Act. The Department has consulted tribes on this report and reviewed information describing both the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes submitted as appendices to this report. Also, attached as appendices to this report, is the historical account information and supplemental present earning potential of the fund.

Recommendations of the Department

Notwithstanding the factual legal standing regarding tribal entitlement to the settlement fund under the existing Act, the Department recognizes that a financial and economic need currently exists within both Tribes and their associated reservations. The presence and extent of this need, combined with the historical difficulties in the administration of the provisions of the Act, make predominant the necessity to take further measures to accomplish the original intent of the Act. Further, it is the opinion of the Department that to withhold funds/benefits of the Act in their entirety, or to allow any accrued funds to revert to the Treasury, would not be an effective administration of the overall intent of Act and would, in effect be in direct opposition to the spirit of the Act. In this regard, it is the opinion of the Department that in addition to partitioning the 1891 Reservation, Congress intended the Act to provide the respective tribes and their reservations with the means to acquire a degree of financial and economic benefit and independence which would allow each tribe to prosper in the years to come.

Therefore, it is the recommendation of the Department that:

- I. No additional funds be added to the current HYSA Settlement Fund;
- II. Funds comprising the current HYSA Settlement Fund would not revert to the general fund of the Treasury, but would be retained in trust account status by the Department pending future developments;
- III. There would be no general "distribution" of the HYSA Settlement Fund dollars to any particular tribe, tribal entity, or individual. But rather, the Fund dollars would be administered for the mutual benefit of both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok tribes, and their respective reservations, taking into consideration benefits either tribe may have heretofore received from the HYSA Settlement Fund;

- IV. That Congress in coordination with the Department, and following consultation with the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes, fashion a mechanism for the future administration of the HYSA Settlement Fund;

- V. That Congress, in order to accomplish the underlying objective of the HYSA, resolving any future issue of entitlement, give serious consideration to the establishment of one or more new Act(s) that provide the Secretary with all necessary authority to establish two separate permanent Fund(s) with the balance of the current HYSA Fund, for the benefit of the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes in such a manner as to fulfill the intent of the original Act in full measure.

FINANCIAL INFORMATIONAL SHEET – “HYSA” FUND

The Hoopa/Yurok Settlement Fund was established in 1988, pursuant to Public Law 100-580, the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

The Act was intended to partition certain reservation lands between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, and to clarify the use of timber proceeds from the Hoopa Valley Reservation established originally in 1864.

Recognizing the Federal role in the creating of the problems then associated with the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Act authorized the appropriation of $10,000,000 in federal funds, to be added to the corpus of the HYSA Fund.

The remainder of the settlement fund was made up of funds held as “Escrow funds” by the federal government, which were derived from the use/resources of the “joint reservation”. These funds were held by the Secretary in accounts benefiting both the Hoopa and Yurok tribes, individually.

The Act was intended to settle any dispute over any/all such “Escrow funds”.

The original principal balance of the fund was $66,978,335.93 -

Memorandum

To: Area Director, Sacramento Area Office
From: Director, Office of Trust Funds Management
Subject: Distribution of funds awarded the Hoopas and Yuroks under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

Effective April 12, 1991, the distribution of the subject funds was made in accordance with Public Law 101-277 and in accordance with your request dated April 4, 1991.

The total value of the fund on April 12, 1991 was $85,979,348.37 derived in the following manner:

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Rows include Fair Market Value of Investment Securities ($74,339,997.14), Cash-Unallotted Balance (139,351.23), Add Back: Hoopa Drawdowns (10,000,000.00), Yurok Drawdowns (1,500,000.00), and Total ($85,979,348.37).

Hoopa's share of the fund was calculated using 39.55% as provided in you letter dated April 4, 1991.

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Rows include Total Value of Fund ($85,979,348.37), Hoopa's Share ($34,006,551.87), Less Hoopa's Drawdowns (10,000,000.00), Less April 15, 1991 Drawdown (9,880,000.00), and Balance Due Hoopa Tribe ($14,126,551.87).

The balance due was distributed using a percentage of 21.8679479 derived as follows:

Total Value of Fund	$85,979,348.37
Less Hoopa's Drawdowns	19,880,000.00
Less Yurok's Drawdowns	1,500,000.00
Balance of Fund to be Distributed:	$64,599,348.37

Hoopa's Share of Fund	$14,126,551.87 = 0.218679479
Value of Undistributed Fund	64,599,348.37

The 21.8679479% was applied to each outstanding investment and recorded to Hoopa's appropriation account 7194.

The balance of the fund is Yurok's share which remained in appropriation account 7193.

Subsequent to the above distributions, an internal transfer was done effective August 1, 1991, to transfer $3,000,000.00 into an escrow account to compensate any potential appeal cases. The amounts contributed are $1,186,560.00 and $1,813,440.00 for the Hoopas and the Yuroks respectively. It is our understanding that both tribes agreed to this arrangement. A separate appropriation (J50 A64 7197) was established for this escrow account.

Trust Funds records in the BIA's Finance System are maintained on a cash basis, therefore, income earned but not yet collected by the BIA is not recorded. Only the actual cash transfers and the cost bases of respective investments are shown in the Summary of Trust Funds reports for the Hoopa Tribe.

BACKGROUND

Yurok Waiver Now Effective for Distribution of Settlement Fund and Acreage Pursuant to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

In 1988 Congress passed the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. 1301i et seq. ("HYSA"). The HYSA partitioned the former joint Reservation into two separate Reservations. According to the federal courts, prior to partition of the former Hoopa Valley Reservation under the HYSA, there was one single Reservation, and the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes enjoyed communal ownership of the lands and resources of the 90,000 acre joint Reservation.

The HYSA gave the Hoopa Tribe exclusive use and benefit of the 87,000 acres of unallotted trust lands, assets and timber resources of the valley area of the Reservation. The HYSA relegated the much larger Yurok Tribe to the Klamath river area of the Reservation, which contains only a few thousand acres of trust land and a fishery inadequate to provide even for the minimal subsistence needs of Yurok Tribal members.

The HYSA also a Settlement Fund to be paid the Yurok Tribe, and provided for the government's purchase of additional acreage for the Yurok Tribe. This Fund and acreage were to be delivered to the Yurok Tribe upon the Tribe's waiver of its Fifth Amendment claim for an unconstitutional taking without just compensation, which claim Congress anticipated. 25 U.S.C. 1301i-1(c). Upon the waiver, the Tribe is to receive:

- * Distribution of the Settlement Fund; and
- * All right, title, and interest to all national forest system lands within the Yurok Reservation, (approximately 3,000 acres) and
- * Specified portions of the Yurok Experimental Forest, part of which shall be held in trust by the United States as part of the Reservation; and
- * Federal expenditure of not less than $5 million to acquire land, interests in land, and rights-of-way for the Tribe or its members, to be declared part of the Reservation. Such lands must be within or contiguous with and adjacent to the Reservation, or if outside the Reservation must be purchased in order to exchange for lands within the Reservation.

Final Disposition of Claim for Taking Without Just Compensation

Due to the HYSA's lopsided division of tribal lands and resources, Congress expressly contemplated that the Yurok Tribe might sue the United States for an unconstitutional taking without just compensation. 25 U.S.C. § 1301i-11. The Yurok Tribe in fact brought such a suit, along with another Tribe and individual plaintiffs. As of March 26, 2001, the takings claim was finally resolved against the Yurok Tribe when the United States Supreme Court denied without comment the Tribe's Petition for Writ of Certiorari to the Federal Circuit. This denial let stand the Federal Circuit's sharply divided 2-1 ruling last year denying the Tribe's takings claim.

The Yurok Tribe's Conditional Waiver

As required by the HYSA, the Tribe by Resolution 93-61 timely executed a waiver of claims on November 24, 1993. In light of Congress' express contemplation of litigation, the waiver was conditioned on exhaustion of legal appeals challenging the constitutionality of the HYSA. It reads as follows:

1. To the extent which the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is not violative of the rights of the Yurok Tribe or its members under the Constitution of the United States, or has not effected a taking without just compensation of vested Tribal or individual resources, or rights within or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe hereby waives any claim which said Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

2. To the extent which the determination of the Yurok Tribe's share of the Escrow monies defined in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act has not deprived the Tribe or its members of rights secured under the Constitution of the United States, the Yurok hereby affirm its consent to the contribution of the Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

By contrast, the Hoopa Valley Tribe in 1993 unconditionally waived any claims or rights it might have had, and has fully received all monies and lands to which it was entitled under the HYSA. The Hoopa Tribe has no remaining interest in the balance of the Settlement Fund or the acreage promised the Yurok Tribe.

The Conditional Waiver Is Now Effective By Operation of Law

As of March 26, 2001, the United States Supreme Court effectively removed the sole condition of the Yurok Tribe's 1993 Conditional Waiver. The Fifth Amendment takings claim has been finally and fully resolved by the courts against the Yurok Tribe. As a legal matter, there has been no unconstitutional taking of Yurok lands and resources. No further legal appeals are available. The Yurok Tribe's waiver, by its terms, is now in full force and effect.

Because the sole condition to the Tribe's 1993 waiver has been removed, the expressed intent of Congress -- to allow litigation of the takings claim and to allow distribution of the Settlement Fund and acreage to the Yurok Tribe upon the final waiver of such claim - has now been satisfied. The Yurok Tribe is now entitled to receive the Settlement Fund and acreage specified by the HYSA.

Proposed Technical Amendment to the HYSA to Confirm and Secure the Waiver

The Yurok waiver is now effective by its own terms and by operation of law. However, should any further certainty be desired, a technical amendment to the HYSA would confirm and secure the waiver and distribution of funds and acreage to the Yurok Tribe.

[FIRST OPTION]

Eliminate the entirety of Section 1300i-1(c)(4)(D).

[SECOND OPTION]

After the word "waiving" in Section 1300i-1(c)(4)(D), add the words "or conditionally waiving".

[THIRD OPTION]

An additional clause may be added to the end of Section 1300i-1(c)(4)(D), as follows:

, or when any claim contemplated by section 1300i-11 has been finally adjudicated against the Yurok Tribe thereby removing the condition of a conditional waiver adopted by the Tribe.

Such an amendment would be encompassed by the provision of the HYSA that requires the Secretary of the Interior to submit a report to Congress after the litigation ends, including recommendations for supplemental funding necessary to implement the Act and for "any modifications to the resource and management authorities" established by the Act. 25 U.S.C.1300i-11(c).

REPORT TO CONGRESS ON THE HOOPA-YUOK SETTLEMENT ACT

Introduction

The 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act divided the joint Hoopa Valley Reservation into separate and unequal parts for the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. In the Act, Congress overturned 25 years of litigation that established that all Indians of the Hoopa Valley Reservation, whether or not enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe, have equal rights to share in the resources of the Reservation. The Act disrupted and cut short the orderly and fair administration of the federal courts' judgments in Short v. United States and Puzz v. United States that had for the first time in history recognized the equal and permanent rights of the Yurok people in the joint Hoopa Valley Reservation, part of the aboriginal home of the Yurok people. The Act deprived the Yurok Tribe and its members of rights and resources that the courts had determined belonged to them as a lawful and constitutional mandate.

Congress contemplated that claims would be brought challenging the constitutionality under the 5th Amendment of the partitioning of the former Joint Hoopa Valley Reservation. 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11. The Yurok Tribe, along with the Karuk Tribe and a group of individuals known as the Ammon plaintiffs, filed such a claim in 1992, alleging that the partitioning of the Reservation was a taking of the Tribe's property without just compensation in violation of the 5th Amendment. This litigation was concluded on March 26, 2001, when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review lower court decisions dismissing the Tribe's claim on the ground that no tribe or Indian individuals had a property interest in the joint reservation that was a property interest protected by the Constitution.

The conclusion of this litigation triggers the requirement of the Act that the Secretary of the Interior prepare and submit to Congress a report describing "the final decision in any claim" brought against the United States which challenged the constitutionality of the Act. 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c)(1). The report must include "recommendations of the Secretary for action by Congress, including but not limited to, any supplemental funding proposals necessary to implement the terms of [the Act] and any modifications to the resource and management authorities established by [the Act]." 25 U.S.C. 1300i-11(c)(2). The report is due 180 days after the entry of "final judgment," or September 22, 2001.

This report contains the recommendations of the Department for legislative proposals which in our view are required to correct inequities in the Act that Congress either overlooked or have come to light since the enactment of the Act. The report first provides the factual and legal background leading to the Act, the structure and intent of the Act, the takings claims filed by the Yurok Tribe, Karuk Tribe and Ammon plaintiffs, the disposition by the courts, and finally our recommendations for legislative action.

Background

The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is best understood in the context of a long and complex dispute, which, despite the best intentions of Congress, is not yet finally resolved. The Yurok people were aboriginal residents of the area that later became the joint Hoopa Valley Reservation. In the early 1850s, the federal government adopted a reservation policy as the principal means to reduce recurrent warfare between whites and Indians caused by the California gold rush. In 1855, the President established the Klamath River Reservation, a strip of land a mile in width on either side of the Klamath River from the Pacific Ocean to a point about 20 miles upstream, as a permanent home for the Yurok people who then resided along that River. In 1864, Congress clarified the authority of the President to create reservations in California by authorizing four such reserves for Indians residing there. The 1864 Act evinced Congress' intent that reservations created under the Act were to be occupied and owned by more than one tribe at the President's discretion.

In 1876, the President exercised this authority by issuing a trust patent for the Hoopa Valley Reservation, a 12-mile square bisected by the Trinity River (the "Hoopa Square"). The Hoopa Square was home to several groups of Indians, including the Yurok Tribe. In 1891, the then Hoopa Valley Reservation was extended to encompass what had been known as the Klamath River Reservation (the "Lower 20"), as well as the strip of land a mile in width on either side of the Klamath River from the upper limit of the Klamath River Reservation to the confluence of the Klamath and Trinity Rivers at Weitchpec (the "Connecting Strip"); together these lands became known as the "Extension." These actions of the federal government established this area as a single, unified reservation. The U.S. Supreme Court in Mattz v. Arnett, referred to the entire joint reservation as "recognized," explaining that the enlargement was made under the President's authority pursuant to the 1864 Act. 412 U.S. 481 (1973). Since time immemorial, the Yuroks and other Indians of the joint reservation have centered their lives and cultures on the land within the reservation's boundaries.

In the decades following the consolidation of the Hoopa Valley and Klamath River Reservations, the policies of the Bureau of Indian Affairs concerning the beneficiaries of the Hoopa Valley Reservation varied; for some purposes, and at some times, the B.I.A. treated the Reservation and the Indians thereof as a consolidated whole; at other times, and for other purposes, the B.I.A. regarded the Hoopa Square as separate and distinct from the Extension, and only the individuals enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe were recognized as possessing rights in the Hoopa Square.

In 1892, Congress opened the Klamath River portion of the Hoopa Valley Reservation to non-Indian settlement and homesteading through the allotment process. Act of June 17, 1892, 27 Stat. 52. The allotment of this portion of the Reservation affected the Yurok people, who were the dominant population in the lower 20 and connecting strip. By the time the allotment process had run its course, and taking into account land lost through tax sales after the trust period expired and other means, the number of trust acres left to Yurok people was only about 3,500. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled, however, that despite this tremendous loss of land, the reservation status was not terminated by the 1892 Act. Mattz v. Arnett, 412 U.S. 481 (1973).

In the 1950's, the B.I.A. began authorizing the harvesting of timber from lands within the Hoopa Square portion of the joint Reservation. The B.I.A. distributed the revenues from those harvests; some of the revenues were paid to the B.I.A.-recognized Hoopa Tribal Council; other revenues were distributed per capita to individuals, but only to persons on the roll of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Hoopa Valley Tribe came into existence in 1950 with membership limited to those with allotted land on the Reservation, non-landholders voted in by the Tribe, and long-time residents of the Square with a prescribed degree of native Hoopa parentage. Kanuk Tribe of California v. Ammon, 209 F.2d 1366, 1372 (Fed. Cir. 2000). The B.I.A. made no payments of timber revenues to the Yurok Tribe, nor to any individual Yuroks or other Indians of the Reservation who were not enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe, on the theory that the Hoopa Square was a separate Reservation from the Extension, and thus that only members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe were entitled to share in the revenues.

In 1963, several thousand individuals, primary Yuroks, filed suit in what then was the U.S. Court of Claims seeking damages for the failure to distribute the revenues from the joint Reservation equally to all Indians of the joint Reservation. Specifically, the plaintiffs in Jessie Short, et al. v. United States alleged that the Hoopa Square and the Extension were part of the same Reservation, that all Indians of that Reservation had equal rights to the Reservation's resources, and thus that the exclusion of Yuroks from the distribution of revenues derived from the harvest of timber on the Hoopa Square was an arbitrary and discriminatory breach of federal fiduciary duties for which the United States was liable in money damages.

In 1973, the Court of Claims granted summary judgment in favor of the Short plaintiffs' claims that the United States had breached its trust obligations by arbitrarily excluding from per capita distributions of timber revenues persons who were not enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe. Short v. United States, 486 F.2d 561 (Ct.Cls. 1973). The court's judgment followed and applied established precedent with regard to the nature of the Government's trust obligations and the right of Indians of permanent reservations to share equally in the resources there. The court made a number of rulings that are relevant to Congress' determination of modifications to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. These rulings include: The Yurok people were aboriginal residents of the Hoopa Square (486 F.2d at 565); the Yuroks were beneficiaries of an unratified 1864 treaty that called for the creation of a Reservation (486 F.2d at 565); Congress established the Hoopa Valley Reservation in part for the Yuroks (486 F.2d at 565); the 1891 Executive Order adding the 1855 Klamath River Reservation to the Hoopa Valley Reservation created an enlarged single Reservation (486 F.2d at 567-68); the expansion put the Yurok Indians of the Klamath River Reservation on an equal footing with the Hoopa Indians of the Square, such that the Hoopas did not enjoy exclusive rights to the Square (486 F.2d at 567-68); and the Hoopas obtained no preferential rights to the Square by virtue of their early residence on the Reservation (486 F.2d at 562-63).

The court also ruled that no single tribe or group had vested rights as against any other tribe or group of individuals. The court did not, however, address whether any tribe or group had vested rights enforceable against the United States. (486 F.2d at 564: "Any exercise of the President's discretion in favor of the Hoopas, in approving their residence on the reservation gave the Hoopas no vested rights as against such other tribe as might be the beneficiary of a simultaneous or subsequent exercise of the President's discretion"). The next 20 years were spent litigating the questions of the criteria for qualification as an "Indian of the Reservation," evaluating the qualifications of individual claimants, and quantifying damages.

Following the 1973 liability judgment in Short, the B.I.A. began setting aside a portion of the Hoopa Square timber revenues into an escrow account for distribution to the beneficiaries of the Reservation pending identification of Indians of the Reservation eligible to share in the judgment. The Hoopa Valley Tribe and members of that Tribe continued to receive distributions of timber revenues, but no distributions were made to the Yurok Tribe or to Indians of the Reservation who were not enrolled in the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

The Short case did not address the question of how the joint reservation should be governed in light of the finding that all Indians of the Reservation shared equally in the resources found there. A separate case was brought by a group of Yuroks to answer this question, alleging that they were entitled to an equal voice in governing reservation affairs. This suit was also successful. Puzz v. United States, No C 80 2908 TEH (D. N. Cal. 1980). In line with established legal precedent, the Puzz court made the following findings and rulings:

1. Congress and the Executive "never intended one specific tribe, the Hoopas, to have exclusive property or political rights" over the Joint Reservation. Id. at 5.
2. "[T]he 1864 Act did not grant any territorial rights to the Hoopa tribe alone." Id. at 7.
3. The federal government must oversee the governance of the Reservation "for the use and benefit of all, not for the benefit of some to the clear detriment of others." Id. at 20. Federal supervision over Reservation administration, resource management, and spending of Reservation funds must "ensure that all Indians [of the Reservation] receive the use and benefit of the reservation on an equal basis." Id. at 23.

As an example of both unfair and improper expenditure of Reservation resources, the court cited the use of reservation funds to pay for the Hoopa defendants' litigation costs in Puzz. Id. at 18. With regard to the federal approval of this allocation of Reservation resources, the court opined that "[i]t is an obvious violation of trust to allow the dissipation of reservation income to arm one faction of the Indians of the reservation against another." Id.

4. The federal government "must develop and implement a process to receive and take account of the opinions of non-Hoopas on the proper use of reservation funds." Id. at 18.
5. The federal recognition of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the federal approval of the Hoopa Valley Tribe's constitution and bylaws was affirmed. Id. at 21. Further, the court recognized the right of the Hoopa Business Council to "lawfully conduct business as a tribal body sovereign over its own members. . . ." Id. at 23.

Accordingly, the result of the Puzz case was an order for the federal government to develop a fair and orderly process for the resources of the Reservation to be equitably used and managed for the benefit of all the Indians of the Reservation. However, before the federal government could develop and implement a process, at the request of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and despite the concerns of Assistant Secretary Swimmer, Congress cut short these efforts and in 1988 enacted the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act ("HYSA"), P.L. 100-580, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i et seq. The Yurok Tribe, who at the time was neither organized nor had legal representation, did not participate in the legislative process that led to the HYSA.

Provisions of the Act

Under the HYSA, the former Hoopa Valley Reservation was partitioned into separate Hoopa Valley and Yurok Reservations upon the concurrence of the Hoopa Valley Tribe; the Hoopa Valley Tribe upon execution of its waiver, received its statutorily designated portion (based on its percentage of enrolled population against the enrolled population of the Yurok Tribe) of the escrowed and other funds that Congress had converted into a "Settlement Fund;" the recognition of both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes was to be confirmed; a Settlement Roll was to be prepared of "Indians of the Reservation" not already included as enrolled members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe; persons on the Settlement Roll were to choose from among Hoopa Tribal membership, Yurok Tribal membership and non-Tribal membership options, each of which included payment of varying amounts of compensation; the Yurok Tribe was to receive the remainder of the Settlement Fund after payment of the Hoopa Valley Tribe's proportional share and deduction of sums paid to individuals; and upon the enactment of a resolution waiving claims that the Yurok Tribe might have against the United States arising out of the HYSA, the Yurok Tribe was to become eligible for various benefits, including land acquisition authority, appropriations, governmental organization and other federal benefits and programs provided to Indian Tribes.

When the Hoopa Valley Tribe voted in late 1988 to waive its claims against the United States and approve partition of the Reservation, the Hoopa Square included about 89,000 acres of trust land and billions of board feet of timber. By operation of the Act, the Hoopa Valley Tribe received slightly over 40 percent of the Settlement Fund, after having received a previous 30 percentage from timber revenues before escrow. The Hoopa Valley Tribe also became the exclusive beneficial or vested owner under federal law of these lands and resources. At this same time, the Yurok Reservation included only about 3,500 acres of unallotted trust land and no other significant natural resources except rapidly-dwindling runs of salmon that had been inadequate to support even a minimal subsistence fishery for many years. The Act vested the Yurok Tribe with exclusive beneficial ownership of these lands and resources. The Yurok Reservation boundaries also included approximately 55,000 acres held in private ownership by non-Indians.

In developing the HYSA, Congress did not attempt to quantify the relative value of the Hoopa Square and the Extension. Rather, Congress acted on the assumption that neither the Yurok Tribe nor its members had a vested property right in the Reservation, and thus were not entitled to just compensation for the extinguishment of their claims to share in the unallotted lands and resources of the Square (the same would have been true for the right of the Hoopa Tribe and its members to share in the unallotted lands and resources of what would become the Yurok Reservation). However, the legislative history suggests that Congress assumed that the primary value of the Hoopa Square was in its trust land, water and timber resources, while the primary value of the Yurok Reservation was in the right of the Tribe and its members to access and exploit the Klamath River's anadromous fishery resources. Senate Report at 14.

This assumption turned out to be true for the Hoopa Valley Tribe but regrettably not true for the Yurok Tribe. The Yurok Tribe's fishery rarely produces sufficient income to sustain the economy of the Tribe or the livelihoods of its members. The fishery is in decline due to water diversions of the Klamath Irrigation Project and other factors beyond the Tribe's control. The Tribe's commercial fishery is modest by any measurement and produces only periodic income in small amounts for the Tribe. In no year since the Act's passage have tribal earnings in the fishery exceeded the $1 million estimated by the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs at the time of the Act's passage. Id. at 14-15. The principal contribution of the fishery to the economy of the Tribe is as subsistence food for the daily diets of tribal members. A comparison of tribal income for the period is striking. In the first ten years after the Act, the timber income for the Hoopa Valley Tribe has been approximately $80 million, while the fisheries income for the Yurok Tribe has less than $1 million.

The HYSA established procedures for the organization of the Yurok Tribe, for the development of the Settlement Roll and for the distribution of the Settlement Fund. As part of the Tribal organizational process, the HYSA provided for the election of an "Interim Council" having limited powers, including the adoption of a resolution,

(i) waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provision of this subchapter[.]

(ii) affirming tribal consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the settlement fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in this Act[.]

Among the specific benefits that the HYSA purportedly conferred upon the Yurok Tribe were the transfer to the Yurok Tribe to be held in trust certain federal lands in the Six Rivers National Forest within the boundaries of the old Klamath River Reservation and connecting strip; addition of lands to the Yurok Reservation through consensual acquisitions, the expenditure of not less than $5,000,000 for the purpose of acquiring lands or interests in lands for the Tribe, and apportionment to the Yurok Tribe of the remainder of the Settlement fund after distribution to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and individuals on the Settlement Roll. However, receipt of these benefits, as well as the organizational authorities under the Act, were not to be effective "unless and until the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe has adopted a resolution waiving any claim such tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of [the Act]." 25 U.S.C. 1300i-1(c)(4).

On November 24, 1993, the Yurok Tribe Interim Council adopted Resolution No. 93-61, which resolved as follows:

1. To the extent which the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is not violative of the rights of the Yurok Tribe or its members under the Constitution of the United States, or has not effecting a taking without just compensation of vested Tribal or individual resources, or rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe hereby waives any claim which said Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act;
2. To the extent which the determination of the Yurok Tribe's share of the escrow monies defined in the [HYSA] has not deprived the Tribe or its members of rights secured under the Constitution of the United States, the Yurok [Tribe] hereby affirms its consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

While the Department of the Interior initially determined that Resolution 93-61 did not meet the HYSA's requirement that the Tribe adopt "a resolution waiving any claim" against the U.S. under the HYSA, the Yurok Tribe has consistently maintained that its waiver was sufficient to meet the HYSA requirements. Considering the Tribe's waiver in light of both the historical circumstances surrounding the passage of the HYSA and the clear purpose of the HYSA to inter alia establish an adequate land base for the Yurok Tribe as well as to partially compensate it for the loss of its rights to the Square, the Department agrees with the Yurok Tribe as a matter of equity that the language of the tribal resolution should not bar it from receiving Settlement Fund money and an adequate land base under the HYSA. The Department reaches this conclusion based, in part, on the strong legal arguments that exist to support this reading of the HYSA.

The HYSA can fairly be read to allow the Yurok Tribe to pursue a constitutional takings claim and to simultaneously obtain its benefits under the HYSA. Although the HYSA's requirement to waive "any claim" does appear broad, other sections of the Act do indicate that Congress did not intend that the Yurok Tribe give up its constitutional right to sue in order to obtain the benefits to which it is entitled. For example, section 1300i-11 of the HYSA, titled "Limitations of actions; waiver of claims," specifically anticipates and authorizes fifth amendment takings litigation by the Tribe against the United States. Subsection (a) provides that any claim challenging the HYSA "as having effected a taking under the fifth amendment of the United States Constitution or as otherwise having provided inadequate compensation shall be brought . . . in the United States Court of Claims." 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a). Subsection (b) also affirmatively acknowledges the Tribe's right to file a takings claim under the HYSA and establishes a limitations period. 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(b).

In addition, interpreting the HYSA as forcing the Tribe to choose between either accepting its benefits under the HYSA or protecting its constitutional rights by asserting a takings claim would appear to frustrate Congress' intent of establishing an adequate land base for the Yurok Tribe and distributing to the Yurok Tribe a portion of the Settlement Fund. Such a narrow reading would necessitate the view that Congress intended to force such a choice, even in light of the uncertainties of federal takings litigation and the fact that such a scheme would conflict with fundamental principles of fairness. As the Yurok Tribe reasonably maintains, it would be an entirely unfair result if, in addition to divesting the Tribe of its long-standing and legitimate interest in the Square, the HYSA also serves to deny the Tribe its portion of the Settlement Fund and the much-needed land within the Extension simply because the Tribe challenged the underlying constitutionality of the HYSA.

Consistent with this reasoning, the basic legal principle that United States laws must be constitutional and are subject to judicial review for constitutional defects is relevant. Congress should not be imputed with the intent of circumventing the Constitution by forcing parties directly affected by a law to waive their constitutional rights in exchange for obtaining specific federal benefits. This position is supported by the judicial doctrine of unconstitutional conditions, under which the United States may not condition receipt of a government benefit upon the waiver of constitutionally-protected rights, thereby indirectly accomplishing a restriction on constitutional rights. Consistent with these principles, it can fairly be reasoned that Congress, though it demanded a broad waiver under the HYSA, stopped short of requiring the Tribe to forsake its fundamental right to judicial review of the underlying constitutional takings question. The establishment of a statute of limitations for takings claims is evidence of Congress' intent in this regard.

Further, the view that Congress did not intend to present the Yurok Tribe with the unfair choice between receiving the benefits of the HYSA and challenging the Act's underlying constitutionality is also supported by Congress' finding contemporaneous with the passage of the HYSA that the Act does not effectuate a taking. S. Rep. supra, at 30. Given this finding, Congress' allocation of part of the Settlement Fund to the Yurok Tribe could not have been intended as compensation for a taking, but instead as funding to facilitate Yurok self-government and to partially off-set the Tribe's lost interest in the Square. Id. at 22.

Finally in applying the HYSA, the Department has allowed the Yurok Tribe to receive the benefits of the Act and to simultaneously challenge the constitutionality of the Act even though the Yurok Tribe filed a takings claim in 1992. The United States continues to treat the Yurok Tribe in all procedural and substantive respects as a federally-recognized Indian tribe precisely because Congress reconfirmed the federal recognition of the Yurok Tribe and the Tribe's Reservation through enactment of the HYSA. The Secretary's recognition of the Yurok Tribe's Constitution and election results, as well as its treatment of the Yurok Tribe as a federally-recognized tribe for all purposes, is evidence that the Yurok Tribe's 1993 waiver was at least partially effective.

Because the Yurok Tribe did pass a timely waiver resolution in 1993 and given the existence of credible legal arguments that the Yurok Tribe's waiver was sufficient under the HYSA, the Department recommends that the language in the Tribe's waiver resolution not serve as a basis to deny the Yurok Tr

Litigation

The first suit challenging the legality of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act was filed by a group of Yurok individuals led by Lillian Shermoen. The suit was filed in federal district court in San Francisco, California on August 28, 1990. Shermoen v. United States, No. 90-CV-2460 (N.D. Cal.). The suit sought to invalidate the Act on constitutional grounds, alleging that the Act deprived Yurok people of settled and vested rights in land and resources as adjudged by the courts in Short and Puzz. The principal theories of the suit were unconstitutional taking of land contrary to the Fifth Amendment, and unconstitutional imposition of conditions on the enjoyment of statutory benefits in that the Act sought to force the Yurok Tribe to waive its claims against the United States in order to obtain the organizational benefits of the Act, to access its share of the Settlement Fund and to obtain other benefits of the Act. The district court did not address the merits of these claims because the suit was dismissed on the procedural point that the Hoopa Valley Tribe could not be forced to join the lawsuit as a defendant against its will, and the Tribe refused to consent to have these issues litigated. The Plaintiffs efforts to amend the complaint to assert claims against Hoopa tribal officers were rejected by the court on the ground that the suit in legal effect was against the Hoopa Valley Tribe itself, which enjoyed immunity from unconsented suit. The Court of Appeals affirmed this ruling, Shermoen v. United States, 982 F.2d 1312 (9th Cir. 1992), and the plaintiffs declined to seek review in the Supreme Court.

Following Shermoen, tribes and individuals aggrieved by the Act sought relief in the form of monetary compensation in the federal claims court. The first claim was filed by the Karuk Tribe in 1990, followed by a similar claim in 1991 by a group of Yurok plaintiffs led by Carol Ammon. The Yurok Tribe filed a takings claim under the Fifth Amendment in 1992. These cases were consolidated for decision by the Court of Federal Claims.

The Yurok complaint asserted a single cause of action alleging that the Yurok Tribe had a compensable interest in the joint Hoopa Valley Reservation, and that the Act took that interest without due process and just compensation as required by the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. Alternatively, the complaint alleged that the Yurok Tribe had compensable rights based on its 125 years of continuous occupation and use of the joint reservation. Although the complaint sought no relief against the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Tribe voluntarily intervened in order to protect a perceived threat to the benefits it received under the Act. A successful suit under the Fifth Amendment takings theory advanced by the Yurok Tribe would not have affected the interests of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, inasmuch as the only relief would have been monetary compensation from the United States to the Yurok Tribe for the loss of its rights in the joint reservation.

Judge Margolis ruled that none of the plaintiff tribes or groups had an interest in the joint reservation that was "compensable" under the Constitution. As a result, the court held that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act did not take any property interest of the plaintiffs that was protected by the Constitution. Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, 41 Fed.Cl. 468 (Fed.Cl. 1998).

On April 18, 2000, a sharply divided Federal Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed by a 2-1 vote the decision of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims dismissing the Yurok Tribe's claim. Kanuk Tribe of California v. Ammon, 209 F.3d 1366 (Fed.Cir. 2000). The majority ruled that the 1864 Act of Congress that created the Reservation did not give any Indians constitutionally compensable rights in the Hoopa Square. They held that the Square could be terminated or abolished without compensation to the Indian tribes that resided there. Relying on a case from the Termination era of federal Indian law and policy, the court ruled that Indian occupancy may be extinguished by the government "without compensation, unless an Act of Congress has specifically recognized the Indians' ownership rights." Id. at 1380.

The majority accepted the Yurok Tribe's argument that the 1864 Act was designed to secure a permanent peace, but concluded that this was to be accomplished by the President's total discretion to change and abolish the reservations. The court concluded: "Because plaintiffs have not shown possession of compensable property rights, this court need not examine whether the 1988 Settlement Act took or extinguished any rights." Id.

Judge Newman dissented from the decision and wrote an opinion characterizing the majority's reasoning as "incorrect as well as unjust." She particularly faulted the majority for its disregard of the fact that the Yurok Tribe has been in "unchallenged possession" of the Joint Reservation for "over a century." Id. at 1381. She also disagreed with the majority's definition of compensable property rights, finding that "[o]n any definition of the property rights and interests cognizable under the Fifth Amendment, those of the Indian plaintiffs constitute an interest subject to just compensation." Id. at 1382-83.

On March 26, 2001, the U.S. Supreme Court declined to review the decision, and the judgment dismissing the case became final. 121 S.Ct. 1402 (2001).

Settlement Negotiations

In 1996, the Yurok tribe and the Department of the Interior engaged in settlement negotiations. These negotiations were at the behest of the Yurok Tribe and were based on Assistant Secretary Deer's determination that although the Yurok Tribe's conditional waiver, was not yet effective in her view, it was filed in a timely basis and could be amended if negotiations were successful and Yurok Tribe v. United States was then dismissed. Secretary Babbitt appointed a special negotiator and extensive settlement discussions were held that focused on the demonstrated inequity caused by the HYSA in the relative, land, resource, and income base of the two separated and newly created Reservations. The Yurok Tribe was able to demonstrate that the annually the timber resource was economically at least 80 times more lucrative than commercial fishery resource. As noted the Yurok land base was a mere 3500 acres compared to the 89,000 acres of the Hoopa Valley Reservation. The Yurok Tribe asked for a coherent land base, including reacquiring all or most of the lands within the current Reservation boundaries, a sufficient forestry landbase within the Reservation and from nearby lands (however, not from the Hoopa Valley Reservation), significant money damages, the establishment of a cultural district (pristine wilderness) in an area adjacent to the Reservation necessary to protect the religious and cultural identity of the Yurok people, and a commitment of designated federal program dollars to provide for the necessary infra-structure for the Reservation (roads, bridges, telephone service, electrification), and restoration and enhancement of the Klamath River and its tributaries. Although progress was made in these negotiations, the Department, in concert with the Department of Justice decided to suspend settlement negotiations until the legal issues could be fully litigated.

Recommendations for Legislation

The Department's recommendations for legislation are based on premise that Congress' assumption about fairness of the Act and the relative value of benefits provided to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe have turned out to be erroneous. In fact, Congress provided for this eventuality in section 1300i-11(c), which directs the Department to submit a report to Congress with recommendations for supplemental funding and any "modifications" to the Act required to correct inequities that have arisen. The value of Yurok land received under the Act and the value of the land and resources received by the Hoopa Valley Tribe were grossly disproportionate in favor of the Hoopa Tribe. Congress' apparent reliance on the value of the Yurok fishery was based on the mistaken assumption of its value. The fishery is in steep decline and rarely provides any income to the Tribe. Coho salmon were recently listed as endangered by the National Marine Fisheries Service under the Endangered Species Act, which prohibits the Tribe from harvesting these fish. The listing indicates that other salmon species are in trouble as well.

Under these circumstances, the Department recommends that as a matter of history, fairness and equity, the Yurok Tribe is entitled an enhanced asset base.

- a. The Settlement Fund. As noted, the Settlement Fund was made up of escrowed timber revenues from the joint assets of the Reservation, after the decisions in the Short cases, but before the Reservation was divided pursuant to HYSA. These escrow accounts were set up after providing the Hoopa Valley Tribe with 30% of the timber proceeds. At the time of the development of the escrow accounts, it was contemplated that the remaining 70% would go the remaining 70% of the population of the joint Reservation. Instead HYSA transformed these escrowed funds into the Settlement Account. The Hoopa Valley Tribe received 30% off the top from the timber revenues and then under the HYSA another 40% of the balance of the revenues at the time on the distribution to it based on its waiver and relative population. This means that of the 100% of the timber revenues post Short but before the HYSA,, the Hoopa Valley Tribe received approximately 60% of the funds. While the balance of the Fund, intended for the Yurok Tribe has grown to $70 million through accumulated interest/investment, no new post HYSA timber revenues or federal appropriations have been added to the Account. Since the HYSA, the more than $80 million in timber revenues from the Square has belonged to the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Department believes there is no further legal or equitable basis for allocating these funds between the two Tribes and that the balance of the fund should be transferred to the Yurok Tribe. The waiver executed by the Hoopa Valley Tribe in 1988, should preclude any claims it may assert on the balance of the funds

- b. Clarify that the other benefits provided for in section 2 (c) of the HYSA be transferred to the Yurok Tribe.
- c. Congress, should, in cooperation with the Administration and the Yurok Tribe, develop legislation authorizing equitable relief for the Yurok Tribe. Such legislation should be modeled upon the Settlement Negotiations efforts made in 1996 and should include: a land acquisition fund and authority to reacquire the lands within the Reservation boundary; acquisition of adjacent federal lands (not Hoopa lands) to provide an adequate timber resource; the establishment of cultural district adjacent to the Reservation to preserve in a pristine manner the high country used for religious observances; dedicated federal programs to address infra-structure needs(e.g., roads, electrification, telephone service, bridges, etc.); a financial settlement; and enhancement of the Klamath River system (restoration of the vitality of the fishery).

Re: Secretarial Report to Congress Required by Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act § 14(c)

Dear Secretary Norton:

Litigation anticipated by the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act has been completed. Although the United States and the Hoopa Valley Tribe prevailed in that litigation, and the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act was upheld in every respect, the Act requires the Secretary to prepare and submit to Congress a report by September 24, 2001 (180 days after denial of certiorari in Karuk Tribe of California v. Ammon, 121 S. Ct. 1402 (2001)).

Section 14(c) of the Act requires:

The Secretary shall prepare and submit to the Congress a report describing the final decision in any claim brought pursuant to subsection (b) of this section against the United States or its officers, agencies, or instrumentalities no later than 180 days after the entry of final judgment in such litigation. The report shall include any recommendations of the Secretary for action by Congress, including, but not limited to, any supplemental funding proposals necessary to implement the terms of this subchapter and any modifications to the resource and management authorities established by this subchapter.

25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c).

Attached is our recommendation for that report. Please contact me or our tribal attorney, Tom Schlosser ((206) 386-5200), as issues arise in the preparation of that report.

Sincerely yours,

HOOPA VALLEY TRIBAL COUNCIL

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR PURSUANT TO SECTION 14(c) OF PUB. L. 100-580

1. Introduction.

The landmark Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act adopted by the 100th Congress was intended to partition certain reservation lands between two tribes in Northern California, the Hoopa Valley Indian Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, to resolve lengthy litigation between the United States, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and a large number of individual claimants, and to remove the legal impediments to Hoopa Valley Tribe and Yurok Tribe self-governance. Congress accurately foresaw that the Settlement Act would be tested in court. Now that such litigation is completed, this is the report required by § 14(c) of the Act, codified at 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c).¹

(1) The Secretary shall prepare and submit to the Congress a report describing the final decision in any claim brought pursuant to subsection (b) of this section against the United States or its officers, agencies, or instrumentalities.

(2) Such report shall be submitted no later than 180 days after the entry of final judgment in such litigation. The report shall include any recommendations of the Secretary for action by Congress, including, but not limited to, any supplemental funding proposals necessary to implement the terms of this subchapter and any modifications to the resource and management authorities established by this subchapter. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 2517 of Title 28, any judgment entered against the United States shall not be paid for 180 days after the entry of judgment; and, if the Secretary of the Interior submits a report to Congress pursuant to this section, then payment shall be made no earlier than 120 days after submission of the report.

This report will summarize the Settlement Act, the litigation concerning it, the final decision and claims regarding it, and the recommendations of the Secretary for action by Congress. As set forth below, the Secretary recommends that funding be provided for preparation of the plan for economic self-sufficiency of the Yurok Indian Tribe; that Bureau of Land Management parcels adjacent to the reservations be conveyed to the tribes; and that consideration be given to legislation to address the consequences of the Yurok Tribe's refusal to enact the claim waiver required by § 2 of the Settlement Act to obtain certain benefits and to clarify the resource and management authorities approved through ratification of the Hoopa Valley Tribe's Constitution in § 8 of the Act.

2. Reasons for the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

The lengthy and complex crisis that led to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act grew from a single source: federal actions construed in the Short case. The Hoopa Valley Reservation, as it existed from 1891-1988,² consisted of three parcels, of which the "Square" was the largest. The first parcel, the Klamath River Reservation was reserved by Executive Order in 1855. In 1864 Congress passed a statute authorizing only four reservations for the Indians in California and later that year the Square was identified as one of them. An Executive Order in 1876 formally defined the boundaries of the Square. The third parcel, a thirty-five mile strip along the Klamath River between the two reservations, gained reservation status in 1891 by an Executive Order that joined the Klamath River and Hoopa parcels. Thus after 1891, the three parcels were enclosed within continuous boundaries.

² The reservation consisting of the Square, the former Klamath River Reservation, and the Connecting Strip has been referred to variously as the "Hoopa Valley Reservation," "former Reservation" and "Joint Reservation." For clarity, this Report uses the term "1891 Reservation" to refer to the three-parcel reservation as it existed between 1891 and 1988.

As connected by the Executive Orders, the 1891 Reservation spanned traditional tribal areas of two tribes, the Hoopas and the Yuroks. Although their traditional areas were connected by Executive Orders, the social structure and political organization of the groups remained separate. The Hoopas on the Square and the Yuroks on the "Extension" (the Klamath River Reservation plus the "Connecting Strip") both rejected the 1934 Indian Reorganization Act. Strong tribal government developed and flourished on the Square, starting just after the turn of the century. Yurok organization splintered, and in the 1950s the Bureau of Indian Affairs declined to approve Yurok constitutions.

The Yurok parcels were largely allotted in the 1890s, including valuable timber land, but most of the timbered areas of the Hoopa Square were reserved from allotment. By 1955 little unallotted land and timber remained on the Extension. In 1955, at the request of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Bureau of Indian Affairs began to sell timber from the unallotted lands of the Square. The Bureau distributed the proceeds as directed by the constitutionally-established Hoopa Valley Business Council, primarily in per capita payments to Hoopa tribal members. The Interior Department Solicitor approved this. 65 I.D. 59, 2 Op. Sol. Int. 1814 (1958). Nonmembers of the Hoopa Valley Tribe sued the United States in 1963, claiming that, although they were not enrolled in any tribe, they too should receive per capita payments. Jessie Short, et al. v. United States, No. 102-63 (Ct. Cl.).³

³ Short v. United States includes seven reported opinions, 202 Ct. Cl. 870 (1973); 661 F.2d 150 (Ct. Cl. 1981); 719 F.2d 1133 (Fed. Cir. 1983); 12 Cl. Ct. 36 (1987); 25 Cl. Ct. 722 (1992); 28 Fed. Cl. 590 (1993); and 50 F.3d 994 (Fed. Cir. 1995), and hundreds of unreported

In 1973 the Short court ruled that from 1891 onward the three reservation parcels were a single unified reservation and that the Bureau had violated statutory trust duties to non-Hoopa "Indians of the Reservation" when it excluded them from tribal per capita payments. 202 Ct. Cl. 870 (1973) (per curiam), cert. denied, 416 U.S. 961 (1974). In 1981 the Court of Claims rejected arguments that it was improperly determining tribal membership for the plaintiffs, but it nevertheless directed the trial judge to fashion standards for determining which of the 3,851 plaintiffs were "Indians of the Reservation." The standards were created by adapting five separate membership standards used by the Hoopa Valley Tribe in preparing its roll in 1949-72. 661 F.2d 150 (Ct. Cl. 1981) (en banc), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 1034 (1982).

On remand in 1982, the Short trial judge defined Standards A, B, C, D and E based on the Hoopa standards and suggested that other plaintiffs could qualify as needed to avoid a "manifest injustice." On appeal, the new court of appeals upheld those standards. It also ruled that 25 U.S.C. § 407, the general tribal timber statute applicable to all reservations (which requires that timber proceeds should be used for the benefit of Indians who are "members of the tribe or tribes concerned"), does not restrict proceeds to federally-recognized tribes, or organized tribes, but instead includes all the individual Indians who were "communally concerned with the proceeds." 719 F.2d 1133, 1136 (Fed. Cir. 1983), cert. denied, 467 U.S. 1256 (1984).

While the Short judge worked on the entitlement claims of thousands of individual plaintiffs, six of the Short claimants filed a new suit in the federal district court for the Northern District of California. Puzz v. Department of the Interior and the Hoopa Valley Business Council, orders. Short, still pending after 38 years, also spawned many related lawsuits. Short is a "breach of trust" case against the United States, filed in the Court of Claims in 1963 because of Bureau of Indian Affairs' handling of timber monies generated from the "Hoopa Square."

No. C 80 2908 TEH (N.D. Cal.). The Puzz group sought an order withdrawing federal recognition from the Hoopa Valley Tribe as the governing body of the Square and compelling creation of a tribal government for the entire 1891 Reservation, which would govern both Hoopas and plaintiffs.

In an unreported order dated April 8, 1988, Judge Henderson refused the relief the Puzz plaintiffs had requested, but he ruled that the Bureau had a trust obligation to administer the 1891 Reservation for the benefit of all persons who trace their ancestry to Indians connected with any of the three parcels comprising the 1891 Reservation, either now or any time in the past. Judge Henderson prohibited the Bureau from permitting use of tribal timber funds for any purpose that did not equally benefit all “Indians of the Reservation” (a term that he did not define), and he ruled that the Bureau must run the 1891 Reservation for the benefit of the “Indians of the Reservation” and could not permit the Hoopa Valley Business Council to exercise sovereignty over the Hoopa Square as provided in the Hoopa Valley Tribe's constitution.

Settlement efforts in Short in the 1970s and 1980s were frustrated by the thousands of individuals involved. No agreement could be reached that suited every claimant. Finally, Judge Henderson's April 8, 1988, order created such a morass that the California congressional delegation acted. On April 24, 1988, the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act was introduced by Congressman Bosco as H.R. 4469. Two House and two Senate hearings were held in June and September 1988. The Senate version of the bill, S. 2723, was signed into law on October 31, 1988, as Public Law 100-580, 102 Stat. 2924.⁴

⁴ The Settlement Act mooted the April 8 Puzz order, and Judge Henderson vacated it on December 17, 1988.

3. Provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

The Settlement Act was tailored to the unique legal situation and problems created by Short, Puzz, and the related cases. The cases frustrated territorial management by the Hoopa Valley Tribe, made it impossible for the Yurok Tribe to organize, and for either Tribe to effectively define its members. Those cases also held that neither Indian tribes nor individual Indians held vested (Fifth Amendment-protected) rights in the lands of the 1891 Reservation. Instead, 1891 Reservation rights remained subject to alteration and divestment, as did such rights in Hopi and Navajo lands for some time. Basically, therefore, the Settlement Act established a method to divide the 1891 Reservation lands into two reservations, to expedite the completion of the litigation, and to enable the Yurok Tribe to organize a tribal government so that each tribe could exercise sovereignty over its reservation.⁵

Section 2 of the Settlement Act authorized splitting the 1891 Reservation into the new Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation, conditioned upon the Hoopa Valley Tribe enacting a resolution waiving certain claims. Yurok reservation land benefits were similarly conditioned upon a claims waiver. Section 2 provided the permanent vested legal rights in the new reservations that the Short case found lacking.⁶

The Hoopa Valley Business Council adopted the required resolution waiving certain claims. As a result, the 1891 Reservation was partitioned into the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation on December 7, 1988. 53 Fed. Reg. 49,361. The Hoopa Valley Reservation comprised approximately 89,000 acres (mostly in trust status) and the Yurok Reservation, approximately 58,000 acres (mostly in nontrust status). S. Rep. at 6. As required by § 2(d)(2) of the Act, a description of the boundaries of the two new reservations appeared in the Federal Register. 54 Fed. Reg. 19,465 (May 5, 1989). Later in the year the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs withdrew all pre-Settlement Act policy statements on management of resources of the 1891 Reservation or the Hoopa Valley Tribe. This withdrawal mooted old controversies about the Gerard Plan, the Issue-by-Issue Process, and other Short-based restrictions on tribal sovereignty.

Section 4 of the Settlement Act established a Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund comprising all Hoopa or Yurok trust funds in existence on the date of the Act (about $65 million). Until the fund was divided in 1991, both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Transition Team took advances from it; the Hoopa budget advances were later deducted from the Tribe's shares. Under § 2(c), the Tribes' portions of the Settlement Fund were to be the percentage of the fund determined by dividing the number of enrolled members by the sum of those enrolled tribal members and the persons on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll, established pursuant to § 5.

Section 5 directed the Bureau to establish the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll in a manner that closely followed eligibility criteria established for Indians of the Reservation in the Short case. With respect to Short plaintiffs, the Bureau was directed to follow the court's decisions on eligibility. Non-Short plaintiffs qualified, if at all, by meeting the court's Standards A, B, C, D, E, or MI (manifest injustice). In Pub. L. 101-301, 104 Stat. 210 (May 24, 1990), the Act was amended to make the criteria for the Settlement Roll more closely conform to rulings in Short. See Making Miscellaneous Amendments to Indian Laws, and for Other Purposes, S. Rep. 226, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989). The Settlement Roll was completed and published on March 21, 1991. 56 Fed. Reg. 12062.

Section 6 established three choices that were available to persons on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll: Hoopa tribal membership, Yurok tribal membership, or receipt of a lump sum payment. No person chose Hoopa tribal membership. Approximately 2,955 persons selected the Yurok tribal membership option, together with a $5,000 payment ($7,500 for persons over age 50). The lump sum payment option, selected by approximately 708 persons, provided $15,000 in lieu of membership in the Hoopa Valley or Yurok Tribes and rights in those tribes' reservations. Opting for the lump sum payment had no effect on membership in other tribes, however. Most of the persons selecting Yurok tribal membership (about 1,800) were plaintiffs held qualified in the Short case. In addition to the Settlement Act payments made to those members, qualified Short plaintiffs ultimately received damage awards of approximately $25,000, depending upon the plaintiff's age. The Short damages award included principal, interest, cost reimbursement, and attorney fees under the Equal Access to Justice Act.

Sections 8 and 9 addressed tribal governance problems. Section 8 ratified and confirmed the 1972 Constitution of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. Section 9 established a Yurok Transition Team, appointed by the Secretary. After option selections were made by persons on the Settlement Roll, an Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe was elected in November 1991 to adopt a constitution and perform certain other functions, including consideration of a resolution waiving claims in order to obtain certain benefits offered in the Settlement Act.

By memorandum to the Area Director, Sacramento Area Office, the Assistant Solicitor, Branch of General Indian Legal Activities, decided certain issues raised by the Yurok Interim Council (Feb. 3, 1992):

1. The Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe automatically dissolved two years after November 25, 1991;
2. The Settlement Act permits three separate Yurok Interim Council resolutions, if necessary, to address claim waiver, contribution of escrow monies, and receipt of grants and contracts;
3. Refusal to pass a resolution waiving claims against the United States and/or filing a claim would prevent the Yurok Tribe from receiving the apportionment of funds, the land transfers, and the land acquisition authorities provided by various sections of the Settlement Act, but would not completely preclude the Yurok Tribe from organizing a tribal government;
4. A tribal resolution waiving claims as required by the Settlement Act is necessary to receipt of specified benefits regardless of the statute of limitations provisions of the Act; and
5. Those individuals electing the Yurok tribal membership option waive certain claims against the United States, but persons who did not choose an option within the authorized time limit and who refused to cash the check issued to them would be free to pursue litigation.

The Yurok Tribe completed a constitution on October 22, 1993, which was adopted by vote of the membership later that year. As a result, a Yurok Tribal Council was elected to govern the Tribe by the time the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe was dissolved.

Under § 10, the Bureau, the Yurok Transition Team, and the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe were to prepare a plan for economic self-sufficiency for presentation to Congress. However, as noted below, the plan was not actually prepared.

The Secretary was required by § 11(b) to conduct secretarial elections on three Yurok rancherias within 90 days after enactment to determine whether those tribes and rancherias would merge with the Yurok Tribe. All three rancherias rejected merger.

Sections 12-14 addressed Indian participation in the Klamath River Basin Fisheries Task Force, amendment of the general timber statute, 25 U.S.C. § 407, and a series of statutes of limitations, which set deadlines for individuals or entities wishing to challenge the legislation dividing the 1891 Reservation. All the statutes of limitation have now expired.

4. Litigation Challenging the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

On August 28, 1990, 70 individual Indians and the Coast Indian Community of the Resighini Rancheria challenged the constitutionality of the Settlement Act on a variety of grounds. Shermoen v. United States, No. 90-CV-2460 (N.D. Cal.). Plaintiffs asserted that, by extinguishing their interest in the Square and conferring vested rights to the Square on the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Act effected a taking of property for a nonpublic purpose. They also alleged a violation of their First Amendment right of freedom of association in that Indians of diverse tribal affiliations could elect membership in the tribes. Plaintiffs also contended that Congress exceeded its authority over tribes and denied them equal protect of the law.

On May 23, 1991, District Judge Orrick dismissed the action with prejudice pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(b), ruling that the absent Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes were indispensable parties and immune from suit. Plaintiffs' proposed amended complaint was also rejected. The court of appeals affirmed, noting that plaintiffs' remedy, if any, "must be sought in the forum envisioned by Congress—namely the Court of Claims. See 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11." Shermoen v.

United States, 982 F.2d 1312, 1321 (9th Cir. 1992), cert. denied, 509 U.S. 903 (1993). The Shermoen plaintiffs and others had already initiated precisely such a suit.

On December 7, 1990, the Karuk Tribe of California filed the first taking claim in the United States Claims Court. Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, No. 90-3993L (Fed. Cl.). The Karuk Tribe alleged that the Act's partition of the 1891 Reservation extinguished Karuk rights in the 1891 Reservation and effected a taking of Karuk property without just compensation. The Karuk Tribe alleged that Karuk possessed real property rights in the 1891 Reservation, in addition to hunting, gathering, fishing, timber, water, mineral, and other unenumerated rights.

The second taking claim was filed on September 16, 1991, by 13 individual plaintiffs and an "identifiable Indian group," defined much as was the plaintiff group in Short v. United States. Ammon v. United States, No. 91-1432L (Fed. Cl.). Ammon plaintiffs also claimed that the land partition authorized in the Settlement Act extinguished or diminished their rights in the 1891 Reservation and effected a taking of their property without just compensation.

The Yurok Tribe filed the third and last taking claim on March 11, 1992. Yurok Indian Tribe v. United States, No. 92-CV-173 (Fed. Cl.). The Yurok Tribe, all of whose members were encompassed in the identifiable Indian group of plaintiffs in Ammon v. United States, made claims for a compensable taking similar to the claims made in Karuk and Ammon.

On the United States' motion, the Court of Federal Claims consolidated the three lawsuits. In 1993, the Hoopa Valley Tribe moved to intervene in the consolidated case as a defendant, and Judge Lawrence Margolis (who has retained jurisdiction of the Short case since 1983) granted the Tribe's request. Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, 28 Fed. Cl. 694 (1993). Judge Margolis noted that, unlike the Shermoen litigation, the takings cases did not challenge the constitutionality of the Settlement Act. However, the Court concluded that in rendering a judgment it would necessarily resolve (1) whether the plaintiffs had property rights in the 1891 Reservation; (2) if so, whether the Settlement Act took those rights away from the plaintiffs; and (3) if it did, whether the taking was compensable. The Court concluded that the Hoopa Valley Tribe had a legally protectable property interest in its exclusive rights in the Hoopa Square and that the United States could not adequately represent the interests involved, particularly in light of the issues that would arise at stages (2) and (3) of the case.

On cross-motions for summary judgment, Judge Margolis determined that the plaintiff groups did not possess a vested, compensable property interest in the 1891 Reservation. As a result, the Court held that plaintiffs never had a compensable property interest prior to 1988, and the Settlement Act did not take away any private property owned by plaintiffs. See Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, 41 Fed. Cl. 468 (Aug. 6, 1998).

On April 18, 2000, the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit affirmed Judge Margolis, by a two-to-one vote. Karuk Tribe of California v. Ammon, 209 F.3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000). Like Judge Margolis, the appeals court concluded that the 1864 Act which authorized establishment of the 1891 Reservation did not give California Indians vested property rights in the land set aside. However, pursuant to the Settlement Act, the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe did obtain permanent property rights to their reservations in 1988.

After the appeals court panel issued its opinion, plaintiffs asked the full Court to reconsider the issue and revise the panel's conclusions, but the Court refused. Plaintiffs petitioned for U.S. Supreme Court review, but on March 26, 2001, the United States Supreme Court decided not to review the case. 121 S. Ct. 1402 (2001). The denial of certiorari marks the final decision in the claims brought pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(b) and thus activates the requirement that the Secretary prepare and submit to Congress a report describing the decision and her recommendations.

5. Recommendations and Observations of the Secretary.

a. The Withheld Benefits of the Settlement Act Should Be Distributed Fairly Between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes.

Section 2 of the Settlement Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1, withheld the benefits of the settlement from both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes unless and until those tribes enacted a waiver of claims in favor of the United States and affirmed tribal consent to contribution of monies to the Settlement Fund. See 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(a)(2) and (c)(4). The claim waiver did not affect plaintiffs' entitlement and judgment in the Short case. As noted above, the Hoopa Valley Tribe enacted the requisite resolution in 1988. The Yurok Tribe, however, was unable to act upon the resolution until the Yurok Interim Council was elected pursuant to § 9 of the Act.

The Settlement Act contemplated prompt action by the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes to enact the waivers and obtain the benefits of the Act. See HYSA § 2(c)(4)(D), § 9(d)(5). Although elected in 1991, the Yurok Interim Council did not act to make a waiver until November 24, 1993, when it adopted Resolution No. 93-61.

The Department held that Resolution No. 93-61 "is not a resolution 'waiving any claim the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act,' within the meaning of 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4) or 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-8(d)(2)." Letter of Ada E. Deer, Assistant Secretary–Indian Affairs, to Susie L. Long, Chair, Interim Tribal Council, Yurok Tribe (April 4, 1994). What follows is an extensive quotation from Assistant Secretary Deer's letter:

It is clear to us that the waiver referred to in the above-referenced provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is a waiver of claims that would challenge the partition of the Joint Reservation or other provision of the Settlement Act as having effected a taking or as otherwise having provided inadequate compensation.

Among other things, Resolution No. 93-61 recites that:

[T]he Interim Council believes that the Act's purported partition of the tribal, communal or unallotted land, property, resources, or rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation as between the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes was effected without any good-faith attempt to define, quantify or value the respective rights therein of the Indians of the Reservation or the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes, and so grossly and disproportionately favored the interest of the Hoopa Tribe over those of the Yurok Tribe as to constitute an act of confiscation rather than guardianship; and

[T]he Interim Council does not believe that the Constitution of the United States would allow the federal government simply to confiscate vested Tribal or individual property rights in Reservation lands, resources or other assets without just compensation, or to condition participation in or receipt of federal benefits or programs and enjoyment of tribal property, assets and resources upon acquiescence in an unconstitutional statute.

Following the recitals, the Yurok Interim Council resolved as follows:

1. To the extent [to] which the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is not violative of the rights of the Yurok Tribe or its members under the Constitution of the United States, or has not effected a taking without just compensation of vested Tribal or individual resources, or rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Yurok Tribe hereby waives any claim which said Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act;
2. To the extent [to] which the determination of the Yurok Tribe's share of the Escrow monies defined in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act has not deprived the Tribe or its members of rights secured under the Constitution of the United States, the Yurok [Tribe] hereby affirms its consent to the contribution of Yurok Escrow monies to the Settlement Fund, and for their use as payments to the Hoopa Tribe, and to individual Hoopa members, as provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

It is quite clear that Resolution No. 93-61 specifically preserves, rather than waives, the Yurok Tribe's taking claim against the United States. Indeed, the Yurok Tribe has filed a claim in the U.S. Court of Federal Claims asserting that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act effected a taking under the Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution. See Yurok Indian Tribe v. United States, No. 92-173-L. On February 3, 1992, the Assistant Solicitor, Branch of General Indian Legal Activities, issued a memorandum to the Area Director, Sacramento Area Office, regarding issues raised at the organizational meeting of the Yurok Interim Council held on November 25, 26, 1991. That memorandum discussed several aspects of the claim waiver resolution issue. The Assistant Solicitor stated:

It is clear that should the Interim Council file a claim in the U.S. Claims Court on behalf of the Yurok Tribe pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(a), the same consequences would follow as if it fails to enact a resolution waiving claims under 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(c)(4).

Accordingly, it follows that Resolution No. 93-61 is not a resolution "waiving any claim the Yurok tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of this Act," within the meaning of 25 U.S.C. § 1300-1(c)(4) or 25 U.S.C. § 1300-8(d)(2). Our conclusion is consistent with your statement to the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs, in a letter dated August 20, 1993, that the Interim Council would not provide any such waiver during its term.

Our determination that Resolution No. 93-61 fails to meet the requirements of 25 U.S.C. § 1300-1(c)(4) means that the Yurok Tribe will be unable to enjoy the benefits conferred under Section 2 and 9 of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act upon the passage of a legally sufficient waiver of claims, including the Yurok Tribe's share of the Settlement Fund under Sections 4 and 7 of the Act, the $5 million appropriated under the Snyder Act for the purpose of acquiring lands within or outside the Yurok Reservation, ownership of all Six Rivers National Forest lands within the boundaries of the old Klamath River Reservation or the Connecting Strip, and ownership of and reservation status for the Yurok Experimental Forest lands and buildings.

Shortly after the Yurok Interim Council filed its lawsuit to establish a "taking," the Hoopa Valley Tribe, through its Chairman Dale Risling, wrote to the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs asking that the Interior Department establish Hoopa tribal access to the funds that remained in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund. Hoopa Chairman Risling's letter noted that proceedings in another case, Heller, Ehrman, White, and McAuliffe v. Babbitt, 992 F.2d 360 (D.C. Cir. 1993), established that only 1.26303 percent of the money in the Settlement Fund was derived from the Yurok Reservation and the remainder was derived from the Hoopa Reservation.

On April 13, 1992, Assistant Secretary–Indian Affairs Eddie F. Brown responded to Chairman Risling as follows:

It is clear that the Interim Council's decision to file the above-referenced claim in the U.S. Claims Court means that the same consequences follow as if it fails to enact a resolution waiving claims against the United States. Therefore, unless and until the Interim Council waives the Tribe's claims and dismisses its case against the United States, it will neither have access to its portion of the Settlement Fund, nor will title to all national forest system lands within the Yurok Reservation, and to the portion of the Yurok Experimental Forest described in the Settlement Act, be taken in trust for the Yurok Tribe. In addition, the Secretary will be unable to proceed with the acquisition of any lands or interests in land for the Yurok Tribe, or with spending any appropriated funds for this purpose.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe has continued to assert its right to a portion of the benefits offered to and rejected by the Yurok Tribe. The Hoopa Valley Tribe has had the "laboring oar" and has incurred substantial expense in the litigation brought by the Yurok Tribe and its members.

Most recently, on April 4, 2001, Hoopa Valley Tribal Council Chairman Sherman wrote to Ronald Jaeger, Regional Director, Pacific Regional Office, Bureau of Indian Affairs, saying:

We urge the Bureau to be careful not to permit the Yurok Tribe to seize the benefits it has refused, benefits to which it is not lawfully entitled. The Yurok Tribe has occupied the Experimental Forest lands and buildings and may propose timber sales on the former Forest Service properties. These benefits, like the money in the Settlement Fund, account Hoopa-Yurok Settlement–7193, do not belong to the Yurok Tribe We recommend that the Interior Department's report . . . include a recommendation that the remaining funds from the Hoopa Square be returned to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

After due consideration, the Secretary recommends that the suspended benefits of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, which include the national forest system lands within the Yurok Reservation, the improved properties located in the former Yurok Experimental Forest, the $5 million appropriated for land acquisition on and near the Yurok Reservation, and the funds remaining in the account Hoopa-Yurok Settlement-7193, be valued and divided equally between the two tribes. As a portion of its allocation, the Yurok Tribe should receive the Six Rivers National Forest lands within the boundaries of its Reservation and the Yurok Experimental Forest lands and buildings. Those properties should be declared part of the Yurok Tribe's Reservation.

b. The Yurok Tribe Economic Self-Sufficiency Plan Should Be Prepared and Funded.

Section 10 of the Settlement Act required the Secretary to enter into negotiations with the Yurok Transition Team and the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe with respect to establishing a plan for economic development and, upon approval of that plan, to submit it to Congress.

25 U.S.C. § 1300i-9(a). Among other things, that section of the Act required consultation with state and local officials and directed that real property be taken in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Tribe. The Indian Affairs Committee report on the Act explains the self-sufficiency plan as follows:

The amendment added a new Section 10 direction that a plan for economic self-sufficiency for the Yurok Tribe be developed and submitted to Congress by the Secretary of the Interior, in conjunction with the Interim Council of the Yurok Tribe and the Yurok Transition Team, to determine the long-term needs of the Tribe. The Secretary is expected to seek the assistance and cooperation of the secretaries of Health and Human Services and other federal agencies. The Committee is aware that the Yurok Tribe has not received the majority of services provided to other federally recognized tribes. As a result it lacks adequate housing and many of the facilities, utilities, roads and other infrastructure necessary for a developing community. In addition, the Committee is aware that many of the road, realty and fisheries management services on the “Addition” have been provided in the past by the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Committee is, therefore, concerned about how the Bureau of Indian Affairs plans to address these needs, and directs the Secretary to work with the Yurok Tribe to develop proposed solutions to these and other related problems. The Committee is specifically interested in the feasibility and cost of constructing a road from U.S. Highway 101 to California Highway 96. It is also concerned that the Department of the Interior does not currently have adequate land records and surveys of the “Addition”. The Committee, therefore, expects that the Department will conduct all necessary surveys to ascertain the legal status of such lands. It also expects the plan to address such things as the number of additional federal employees required to service the Yurok tribe and placement of the Tribe’s facilities construction needs on the BIA, IHS, and other federal agency construction priority lists. The Committee wishes to clarify, however, that the development of this plan should in no way delay the provision of services to the Yurok Tribe and/or the construction of federal and tribal facilities.

S. Rep. 100-564 at 28-29 (Sep. 30, 1988) (emphasis added).

The economic self-sufficiency plan has never been completed or submitted to Congress, for reasons that are not entirely clear. However, the Committee’s clarification that development of the plan should not delay provision of services to the Yurok Tribe has been noted. Indeed, the Yurok Tribe has received tens of millions of dollars through its Self-Governance Compact process as well as similar or greater funding from other federal, state, and local agencies. However, the Secretary is unaware of any feasibility study concerning the cost of constructing a road from U.S. Highway 101 to California Highway 96 and this and other objectives of the self-sufficiency plan should be carried forward at this time.

c. The Effect of the Hoopa Valley Tribe’s Ratified Constitution May Need to be Clarified.

Congress addressed tribal authority over the post-1988 Hoopa Valley Reservation in the Settlement Act. The Act restored tribal governmental authority in these words:

The existing governing documents of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the governing body established and elected thereunder, as heretofore recognized by the Secretary, are hereby ratified and confirmed.

25 U.S.C. § 1300i-7. This provision responded directly to one of the court cases that led to passage of the Settlement Act, Puzz v. Department of Interior, No. C80-2908-TEH, 1988 WL 188462 (N.D. Cal. 1988), which held that because of the peculiar way the 1891 Reservation had been established, unless Congress acted to give tribes authority over the Reservation lands, tribal governments lacked territorial management powers. Congress gave the Hoopa Valley Tribe that authority in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-7, which gave the force of federal law to provisions of the Tribe's constitution.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe's Constitution was carefully identified in 25 U.S.C. § 1300i(b)(4), and contains specific authorization to the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council to govern all lands within the "Hoopa Valley Reservation." Several provisions of the Tribe's Constitution apply to nontribal members on the Reservation and the Tribe's 1988 claims waiver resolution (which the Bureau approved and published) noted the Tribe's need "to govern non-members." In Bugenig v. Hoopa Valley Tribe, No. C98-3409CW (U.S. D.C. N.D. Cal. 1999), Judge Wilken held § 8 of the Act gave to every clause of the ratified Constitution the full force and effect of a congressional statute. However, that holding is challenged in a pending appeal.

Upon division of the 1891 Reservation into a new Hoopa Valley Reservation and a Yurok Reservation, the Hoopa Valley Tribe became the sole beneficial owner of the unallotted (communal) land of its Reservation. 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-1(b). That provision changed the facts that led the Puzz court to hold that the Hoopa Valley Tribe lacked territorial management authority over the 1891 Reservation. The result of § 2 of the Act was that non-Indians would own less than 1 percent of the land of the new Reservation and that the Tribe would have the ability to “define the essential character” of the Reservation. See Brendale v. Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakima Indian Nation, 492 U.S. 402, 441 (1989). However, testimony received by the House and the Senate showed that restoring tribal government authority required more—a delegation of express statutory authority to the Tribe to administer matters over all Reservation residents, including nonmembers. As a result, at mark-up the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee added Section 8 to H.R. 4469, which became part of the final Act and is codified at 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-7.

Congress’s “fix” of tribal government authority may need to be clarified because of Bugenig v. Hoopa Valley Tribe, 229 F.3d 1210 (9th Cir. 2000), an opinion that held Congress did not authorize the Hoopa Valley Tribe to regulate the actions of nonmembers because its delegation was not truly “expressed.” The court said that “if Congress uses the ‘notwithstanding proviso,’ which is an easily invoked, court-approved ‘gold standard’ for delegation, then an appropriate delegation has been made [A]lternative language must, on its face, represent a pellucid delegation of the claimed authority.” Bugenig, slip op. at 12,742-43. The court found Congress’s action delegating governmental authority to the Tribe in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act did not meet that high standard. Although this problem arose in the context of the Bugenig v. Hoopa Valley Tribe case, it is a broad ruling and by no means limited in scope to protection of archeological sites (the Bugenig situation). General land use authority may not be exercisable without congressional action. A technical amendment to § 8 of the Settlement Act could clarify matters by adding the following: “The Tribe shall have jurisdiction in accordance with such documents notwithstanding the issuance of any fee patent or right-of-way.”

On February 28, 2001, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals issued an order granting rehearing en banc in Bugenig, 240 F.3d 1215 (9th Cir. 2001). The case was argued and submitted on June 19, 2001, but remains undecided. Unless the Court of Appeals ultimately agrees with the lower court and concludes that Congress in § 8 of the Settlement Act intended to make the Hoopa Valley Tribe's Constitution applicable to all persons and property within the geographic limits of the Reservation, in accordance with the terms and procedures of the Constitution, then legislative clarification will be necessary.

In the Secretary's view, Congress did consider tribal authority over fee-patented land owned by nonmembers of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. That authority was specifically mentioned by witnesses representing various interests⁷ and the Committee reports make clear the Act's intent to approve and confirm in the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council territorial management power throughout its reservation.

d. Bureau of Land Management Parcels Adjacent to the Reservation Should be Conveyed to the Tribes.

In addition to Six Rivers National Forest, a variety of federal agencies have come into possession of lands adjacent to or near the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Indian Reservations. Some of these lands have a clear historical connection to the tribes or the Reservations. These properties should be conveyed to and managed by the Tribes.

⁷ E.g., House Interior Committee Hearing—Serial No. 100-75 (June 21, 1988) at 57, 101, 145 (nonmember fears zoning her fee land); Senate Select Committee Hearing, S. Hrg. 100-946 (June 30, 1988) at 28; Senate Select Committee Hearing, S. Hrg. 100-949 (Sept. 14, 1988) at 50, 66-67, 152-53; Subcom. of the House Judiciary Committee, Serial No. 77 (Sept. 30, 1988) at 27, 32, 54, 64, 155.

For example, along the northern boundary of the Hoopa Square, a wedge of BLM land has become known as the “no man’s land.” The origin of those BLM lands seems to be found in the conflicting efforts of two federal surveying parties, the Bissel-Smith group and the Haughn group, to project the northern boundary of the Hoopa Valley Reservation. Section 2(d) of the Settlement Act provides that the boundary of the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation after partition shall be that established by the Bissel-Smith survey. However, that boundary did not resolve the disposition of the BLM parcels in that area which are adjacent to the Hoopa Valley Reservation but do not touch the Yurok Reservation. The Hoopa Valley Tribe and BLM staff have discussed the procedure for transferring these lands to tribal ownership for a number of years, but it is clear that direct legislative authorization is the simplest way to achieve this. Accordingly, conveyances to the Tribe should occur.⁸

⁸ Specifically, these parcels are: T.9N., R.4E., HUM, Section 8, Lot 3, Section 9, Lots 19 and 20, Section 17, Lots 3-6, Section 18, Lots 7-10 (317.16 acres); T.9N., R.3E., HUM, Section 13, Lots 8-12, Section 14, Lot 6, Section 23, Lots 7 and 8, Section 26, Lots 1-3 (228.68 acres); and T.7N., R./4E., HUM, Section 7, Lot 6, Section 7, Lot 1, Section 18, NENE (59.24 acres). The total transfer of BLM land would be 605.08 acres.

HOOPA-YUROK SETTLEMENT ACT

U.S. SENATE, COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, DC.

The committee met, pursuant to other business, at 10:18 a.m. in room 485, Senate Russell Building, Hon. Daniel K. Inouye (chairman of the committee) presiding.

Present: Senators Inouye, Campbell, and Reid.

STATEMENT OF HON. DANIEL K. INOUE, U.S. SENATOR FROM HAWAII, CHAIRMAN, COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

The CHAIRMAN. This is the oversight hearing on the Department of Interior Secretary's report on the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act submitted to the Congress in March 2002 pursuant to Section 14 of Public Law 100-580.

As with almost all matters in Indian affairs, there is a long history that preceded enactment of the legislation the Secretary's report addresses. It is a history of deception, I am sad to say, of a Senate that apparently met in secret session in 1852 and rejected the treaties that had been negotiated with California tribes, and didn't disclose their action for another 43 years.

In the interim, the California tribes proceeded in good faith, relying upon their contracts with the U.S. Government. In 1864, the Congress enacted legislation to establish four reservations in the State of California with the intent that these reservations would serve as the new homeland for tribes that had no cultural, linguistic, or historical ties to one another. The Hoopa Valley Reservation was one such reservation that was established for "the Indians of the Reservation."

Litigation later spawned a series of a series of court rulings, which while resolving the issues before each court, engendered considerable uncertainty into the daily lives of those who resided on the reservation, and soon,, the Congress was called upon to bring some final resolution to the matter.

Today, as we receive testimony on the Secretary's report, it is clear that a final resolution was not achieved through the enactment of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act in 1988, and that the Congress will once again have to act. Accordingly, we look forward to the testimony we will receive today so that the committee and members of Congress may have a strong substantive foundation upon which to construct a final solution.

May I call upon the vice chairman.

STATEMENT OF HON. BEN NIGHTHORSE CAMPBELL, U.S. SENATOR FROM COLORADO, VICE CHAIRMAN, COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Senator CAMPBELL. Thank you.

I think you have explained very well the situation Mr. Chairman but just a couple of minutes for my opening statement. I'd like to broaden it to something that has always bothered me and many others because I was born and raised in California in the foothills among many of the Me-wok Tribes, a small tribe that has a number of bands in the foothills and valley country around Sacramento.

As you alluded, I can tell you that the story of the American Indian in the State of California was one of the most gruesome and bloody chapters in the history of this country. They say before the gold rush, there was about five times more Indian people in California than non-Indian people. It was literally a paradise. The weather was nice in most areas, the production of natural plants, fruits and things was abundant, people ate well, people lived well, they were at harmony with their neighbors and at that time, as I understand there were over 100 tribes in that area. In fact, some estimates say about one-tenth of all American Indians lived in the California area because living was a bit easier.

In 1848 when gold was discovered in a little place now called Coloma on the north fork of the American River, it started a wholesale change in their lifestyle. In fact, there have been documented instances of Indian people in those days being hired by gold miners and when payday came, they would shoot them, throw them in a hole and just get some more Indians to do the work again. So they know what real tragedy is, the people who are descendants of the Native Americans who lived in that area before the gold rush.

Even before that time if you look at California history, as early as the late 1700's when Father Junipero Serra came north from Mexico and developed what was later called the El Camino Real, or the King's Highway, and the chain of missions from San Diego all the way north of San Francisco, almost all those missions were built with indentured Indian labor, if not slave labor. If you visit some of those missions right now, like the mission in Monterey, if you turn the roofing tile over and look under the old, old roofing tile, you can find the skin imprints of Indian people in that clay where they would take the wet clay and bend it over their leg to make that curved feathered kind of roof structure on all the old missions. They were never paid for that and some of them were kept around the missions for so long, many against their will, that some of the smaller tribes in southern California lost their original identity. I can remember when I was a boy many of them were called mission Indians which was a kind of generic name for people who had lost their identity but had been in the servitude of the missions for so long.

There is no question that people who are descendants of the Native peoples of California have a real gripe and a history of mistreatment by both the Federal Government and people that made millions, if not billions of dollars, from the wealth of California. I'm just glad that two of the major tribes are here today, the Hoopa and the Yurok and I know this hearing will focus on their settlement but I wanted to put that in the record of my own personal experiences in California.

The CHAIRMAN. I'm glad that your remarks were made for the record because though it is rather sad, we who are the successors to the Senators two centuries ago must remember that our predecessors were a part of this terrible conspiracy.

With that, may I call upon the Assistant Secretary of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior, Neal McCaleb. It's always good to see you, sir.

STATEMENT OF NEAL A. McCALEB, ASSISTANT SECRETARY, BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

Mr. McCALEB. Thank you, Chairman Inouye. I am pleased to be here this morning to bring to you a report pursuant to section 14 of the Settlement Act.

Although I will not read my introductory background remarks because you did such an excellent job of presenting the history, I would have my entire testimony become a part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, so ordered.

Mr. McCALEB. Prior to the Settlement Act, legal controversies arose over the ownership and management of the Square, that being the 12 square miles that were provided by the United States Government for the Indians of California, that ultimately became the Hoopa Reservation and its resources. Although the 1891 Executive order joined the separate reservations into one, the Secretary had generally treated the respective sections of the reservation separately for administrative purposes. A 1958 Solicitor's Opinion also supported this view.

In the 1950's and 1960's, the Secretary distributed only the timber revenues generated from the Square to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and its members. All the revenues from the Square were allocated to the Hoopa Valley Tribe. In 1963, Yurok and other Indians, eventually almost 3,800 individuals, challenged this distribution and the U.S. Court of Claims subsequently held that all Indians residing within the 1891 reservation were Indians of the reservation and were entitled to share equally in the timber resources proceeds generated from the Square. Short v. United States was the embodiment of that litigation.

Following the decision, the Department began allocating the timber proceeds generated from the Square between the Yurok Tribe, approximately 70 percent, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe, 30 percent. The 70/30 allocation was based upon the number of individual Indians occupying the joint reservation that identified themselves as members of either the Yurok or the Hoopa Valley Tribe respectively.

Another lawsuit challenged the authority of the Hoopa Valley Business Council to manage the resources of the Square among other claims. These and related lawsuits had profound impacts relating to the tribal governance and self determination, extensive natural resources that compromised the valuable tribal assets and the lives of thousands of Indians who resided on the reservation.

In order to resolve longstanding litigation between the United States, Hoopa Valley, Yurok, and other Indians regarding the ownership and management of the Square, Congress passed the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act in 1988. This act did not disturb the resolution of the prior issues through the Short litigation. Rather, the act sought to settle disputed issues by recognizing and providing for the organization of the Yurok Tribe by petitioning the 1891 Yurok joint reservation between the Hoopa Valley and the Yurok Tribes and by establishing a settlement fund primarily to distribute moneys generated from the joint reservation's resources between the tribes.

Section 2 of the act provided for the petition of the joint reservation. Upon meeting certain conditions of the act, the act recognized and established the Square, the original 12 square miles, as a Hoopa Valley Reservation to be held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The act recognized and established the original Klamath River Reservation and the connecting strip as the Yurok Reservation to be held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Yurok Tribe.

In accordance with the conditions set in section 2(a), the Hoopa Valley Tribe passed a resolution, No. 88-115 on November 28, 1988 waiving any claims against the United States arising from the act and consenting to the use of the funds identified in the act as part of the settlement fund. The BIA published a notice of the resolution in the Federal Register of December 7, 1988. These actions had the effect of partitioning the joint reservation.

As for the settlement fund itself, section 4 of the act established a settlement fund which placed the moneys generated from the joint reservation into an escrow account for later equitable distribution between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes according to the provisions of the act. The act also authorized $10 million in Federal contribution to the settlement fund primarily to provide lump sum payments to any Indian on the reservation who elected not to become a member of either tribe. It allocated about $15,000 to any individual Indian who elected not to claim tribal membership of either tribe.

As listed in section 1(b)(1) of the act, the escrow funds placed in the settlement fund came from moneys generated from the joint reservation and held in trust by the Secretary in seven separate accounts, including the 70 percent Yurok timber proceeds account and the Hoopa 30 percent timber proceeds account. The Secretary deposited the money from these accounts into the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund upon the enactment of the act. The settlement fund's original balance was nearly $67 million. At the beginning of fiscal year 2002, the fund contained over $61 million in principle and interest.

Even with the previous distributions as described below, appendix I to the report provides the relevant figures from the fund. The act sought to distribute the moneys generated from the joint reservation and placed in the settlement fund on a fair and equitable basis between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes. The Senate committee report briefly described what was then believed to be a rough distribution estimate of the fund based upon the settlement role, distribution ratios established in the act. Twenty-three million, roughly one-third of the fund would go to the Hoopa Valley Tribe pursuant to Section 4(c); a similar distribution to the Yurok Tribe under Section 4(d) as described below assuming roughly 50 percent of those on the settlement roll would accept Yurok tribal membership; and the remainder to the Yurok Tribe after individual payments discussed below.

Substantial distributions have already been made from the settlement fund in accordance with the act. The Department disbursed to the Hoopa Valley Tribe just over $34 million between passage of the act and April 1991. The total amount determined by the BIA to be the tribe's share under 4(c) of the act. The Department also distributed $15,000 to each person on the settlement roll who elected not to become a member of either tribe under the act. Approximately 708 persons chose the lump sum payment option for a total distribution for this purpose in the amount of approximately $10.6 million, exceeding the $10 million Federal contribution authorized by the act for this payment.

Section 4(d) of the act provided the Yurok Tribe's share of the settlement fund similar to the determination of the Hoopa Valley share under section 4(c). Section 7(a) further provided the Yurok Tribe would receive the remaining moneys in the settlement fund after distributions were made to individuals in accordance with the settlement membership options under section 6 and to successful appellants left off the original settlement roll under section 5(d).

Under section 1(1)(4), the condition that the Hoopa Valley Tribe and Yurok Tribe received these moneys requiring the tribes adopt a resolution waiving any claim against the United States arising from the act. The Hoopa Valley Tribe adopted such a resolution but the Yurok Tribe did not. In November 1993, the Yurok Tribe passed Resolution 93-61 which purported to waive its claims against the United States in accordance with section 2(c)(4). The tribe, however, also brought a suit alleging that the act affected a constitutionally prohibited taking of its property rights as described below. In effect, the tribe sought to protect its rights under section 2 of the act to its share of the settlement fund and other benefits while still litigating the claims as contemplated in section 14 of the Act.

By a letter dated April 4, 1994, the Department informed the tribe that the Department did not consider the tribe's conditional waiver to satisfy the requirements of the act because the waiver acted to preserve rather than waive its claims. Instead of waiving its claims as the Hoopa Valley Tribe did, the Yurok Tribe as well as the Karuk Tribe and other individual Indians brought suit against the United States alleging the act constituted a taking of their vested property rights in the lands and resources of the Hoopa Valley Reservation contrary to the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

In general, the complaints argued that the 1864 Act authorizing Indian reservations in California and other acts of Congress vested their ancestors with compensable rights in the Square. Alternatively, plaintiffs argued that their continuous occupation of the lands incorporated into the reservation created compensable interest. Potential exposure to the U.S. Treasury was once estimated at close to $2 billion. This litigation began in the early 1990's and was only recently ended.

The U.S. Court of Federal Claims and the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed with the positions of the Yurok and other plaintiffs. The Federal courts generally followed the reasoning provided in the committee reports of the bills ultimately enacted as the Settlement Act. Unless recognized as vested by some Act of Congress:

Tribal rights of occupancy and enjoyment, whether established by Executive order or statute may be extinguished, abridged or curtailed by the United States at any time without payment of just compensation.

The courts concluded that no act of Congress established vested property rights and the plaintiffs or their ancestors in the Square. Rather the statutes and Executive orders creating the reservation allowed permissive, not permanent occupation. Thus, the courts held the act did not violate the takings clause. Plaintiffs petitioned the U.S. Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari to review the lower court decision and on March 26, 2001, the Court denied certiorari thereby concluding the litigation.

On the Department's report, section 14 of the act provides:

The Department shall submit to Congress a report describing the final decision that an illegal claim challenging the act as affecting a taking of property rights contrary to the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution or as otherwise providing inadequate compensation.

The Court's denial of the certiorari triggered this provision. The Department solicited the views of the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes regarding future actions of the Department with respect to the settlement fund as required under the act. The report briefly describes issues both leading up to the subsequent act, attaches the written positions of the tribes and provides recommendations of the Department for further action with respect to the settlement fund.

In July 2001, the Hoopa Valley Tribe submitted its proposed draft report for consideration by the Department. After describing the history of the disputes, the Settlement Act and subsequent actions, the Hoopa Valley Tribe provided various recommendations and observations. The Hoopa submission noted that the separate lawsuit determined that only 1.26 percent of the settlement fund moneys were derived from the Yurok Reservation, with the remainder of the moneys derived from the Hoopa Reservation.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe has continued to assert its right to a portion of the benefits offered to and rejected by the Yurok Tribe. Prior to its July submission, the tribe previously requested the Department recommend the remaining funds from the Hoopa Square be returned to the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Hoopa submission ultimately suggested the following recommendations.

First, the suspended benefits under the act, including the land transfer and land acquisition provisions for the Yurok Tribe and the remaining moneys in the settlement fund be valued and divided equally between the two tribes.

Second, the economic self-sufficiency plan of the Yurok Tribe be carried forward, including any feasibility study concerning the cost of the road from U.S. Highway 101 to California Highway 96 and other objectives of the self sufficiency plan.

Third, that additional Federal lands adjacent to or near the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Reservation be conveyed to and managed by the respective tribes.

The Yurok position. In August 2001, Counsel for the Yurok Tribe submitted the tribe's position and proposed a draft report. The Yurok Tribe submission similarly outlined the history of the dispute and other considerations in its recommendations for the Department to consider. In general, the Yurok Tribe takes the position, among others, that its conditional waiver was valid and became effective upon the Supreme Court's denial of certiorari in the taking litigation.

The Yurok submission discusses the tribe's concern with the process leading up to and ultimately resulting in the passage of the Settlement Act. In the tribe's view, the act nullified a large part which allowed all Indians of the reservation to share equally in the revenues and resources of the joint reservation. "The tribe, not formally organized at the time, was not asked and did not participate in this legislative process" and had the act imposed on the Yurok who were left with a small fraction of their former land resources.

In its view, the act divested the Yurok Tribe of its communal ownership in the joint reservation lands and resources and relegated that much larger tribe to a few thousand acres left in trust along the Klamath River with a decimated fishery, while granting to the Hoopa Tribe nearly 90,000 acres of unallotted trust land and resources including the valuable timber resources thereon.

With respect to the waiver issue, the Yurok submission considers the Department's view discussed above as erroneous. The tribe references a March 1995 letter from the Department in which the Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs indicated the tribe could cure the perceived deficiencies with its conditional waiver by "subsequent tribal action or final resolution of the tribes lawsuit in the U.S. Court of Federal Claims."

The tribe takes the position that it made a reasonable settlement offer and would have dismissed its claim with prejudice but the Department never meaningfully responded. Now the tribe considers the Supreme Court's denial of certiorari as a final resolution suggested as curing the waiver. As a support for its position, the tribe states, "The text of the Act and the intent of Congress make clear that filing a constitutional claim and receiving the benefits of that act are not mutually exclusive." The tribe suggests that principles of statutory construction, including the canon ambiguities be resolved in favor of the tribes and that the provisions within the statute should be read so as not to conflict or be inconsistent requires that a broader reading of the waiver provision in section 2(c)(4) in light of the act's provision allowing a taking claim to be brought under section 14.

The tribe considers the Department's reading of the statute to be unfair and unjust. For these and other reasons, the tribe is of the view that it is now entitled to its benefits under the act.

Because the Yurok Tribe litigated its claims against the United States based on the passage of the Act rather than waiving those claims, the Department is of the view that the Yurok Tribe did not meet the conditions precedent to the establishment of section 2(c)(4) of the act for the tribe to receive its share of the settlement fund or other benefits.

The Department is also of the view that the Hoopa Valley Tribe has already received its portion of the benefits under the act and is not entitled to further distributions from settlement funds under the provisions of the act.

Ultimately, this situation presents a quandary for the Department and for the tribes. We believe the act did not contemplate such a result. The moneys remaining in the settlement fund originated from seven trust accounts which held revenues generated from the joint reservation. Thus, the moneys remaining in the settlement fund should be distributed to one or both tribes in some form. Moreover, the Department recognizes that substantial financial and economic needs currently exist within both tribes and their respective reservations. Given the current situation, the report outlines five recommendations of the Department to address these issues.

First, no additional funds need be added to the settlement fund to realize the purpose of the Act.

Second, the remaining moneys in the settlement fund should be retained in a trust account status by the Department pending further considerations and not revert to the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury.

Third, the settlement fund should be administered for the mutual benefit of both tribes and their respective reservations taking into consideration prior distributions to each tribe from the fund. It is our position that it would be inappropriate for the Department to make any general distribution from the fund without further action of Congress.

Fourth, Congress should fashion a mechanism for the further administration of the settlement fund in coordination with the Department and in consultation with the tribes.

Fifth, Congress should consider the need for further legislation to establish a separate permanent fund for each tribe from the remaining balances of the settlement fund in order to address any issue regarding entitlement of the moneys and fulfill the intent and spirit of the Settlement Act in full.

This concludes my testimony and I will be happy to respond to any questions at the appropriate time. We have attached a schematic for the committee with a flow chart of the funds and the dates funds were disbursed pursuant to the short litigation in the 1988 Act.

[Prepared statement of Mr. McCaleb appears in appendix.]

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you very much, Mr. Secretary.

The chart you speak of, entitled "Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act Funding History," received by the committee yesterday will be made a part of the record.

[The information appears in appendix.]

The CHAIRMAN. At this juncture, there will be a recess for 10 minutes.

[Recess.]

The CHAIRMAN. We will resume our hearings.

The vice chairman of the committee has a very urgent matter to work on this afternoon, so he will have to be leaving us in about 10 minutes, so may I call upon him for his questions.

Senator CAMPBELL. Thank you. I apologize for having to leave, we have some terrible wildfires out west and some of them are in Colorado, so I'm doing a joint event with some of the other Colorado delegation on our fire problem. It just closed Mesa Area in our part of the State which is a big tourist attraction, so I probably won't be able to ask the representatives from the two tribes questions. I'll submit those in writing if they can get those back to me.

This is a very tough one for me because to me this is like refereeing a fight among family. Some folks on both sides of this issue I've known for years and years and am real close to from my old California days. Let me ask you just a couple.

We have two reservations, one allotted, one not allotted, and this is certainly a sad history but the Yurok land and resources were allotted and dissipated. The Hoopa lands and resources remain in tact. Why were they treated so differently when they are so geographically close in our history? Do you happen to know that?

Mr. MCCALED. I don't have personal knowledge of that, Senator. Let me get that information and respond in writing to you. I have an impression but I don't have a real factual answer to that.

Senator CAMPBELL. Let me ask another general question. We've been through a lot of disagreements between tribes and it seems to me those that can settle their issues without intervention from the courts are a lot better off than the ones who are not. I have no problem with the legal profession but let me tell you, the attorneys end up getting paid very well from the Indians that are fighting with each other. In keeping with the spirit of the settlement in 1988, shouldn't we try to bring this to a conclusion that both tribes can live with without fighting it out in courts?

Mr. MCCALED. That would certainly be my desire, Senator Campbell.

Senator CAMPBELL. Have you personally tried to impress on both sides your sentiments?

Mr. MCCALED. I have met with representatives of both sides, yes, and made those kinds of suggestions.

Senator CAMPBELL. I understand there is a lot of money involved. Let me ask about the account balance. What is the balance of revenues of the settlement fund and can you trace where the moneys from the fund came from?

Mr. MCCALED. Aside from interest that had accrued over time, the source of all the funds was timber sale proceeds.

Senator CAMPBELL. Did they come primarily from Hoopa or Yurok lands or both?

Mr. MCCALED. I'm advised a little over 98 percent of the funds derived from the Square, are on Hoopa land.

Senator CAMPBELL. Before they were put in the settlement fund, was there any audit performed to verify the accuracy of the transactions?

Mr. MCCALED. I'm not aware of that but I will investigate that and reply in writing to you.

Senator CAMPBELL. In the Secretary's report, I read part of it and the staff read all of it, but they make two key findings, that the Hoopas have been made whole and have no claims against the United States and that because the Yuroks failed to provide necessary waivers, they are not entitled to benefits under the act.

My question is, with a multimillion dollar fund sitting in the Treasury, how should it be divided?

Mr. MCCALED. Senator, I was hoping you'd have some suggestion for me on that. I don't mean to be flip about it but it is a very difficult answer. The two extreme positions of the tribes are the Hoopas want half of all the proceeds and the Yuroks think they should have all of the funds.

Senator CAMPBELL. Would you recommend some kind of development fund for both tribes be established?

Mr. MCCALED. I think that would be a good solution. As opposed to per capita payments, you mean?

Senator CAMPBELL. Yes.

Mr. MCCALED. Yes; I almost always favor that kind of investment as opposed to per capita payments.

Senator CAMPBELL. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I have no further questions. I appreciate you giving me that time.

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you.

Mr. Secretary, I have a few questions for clarification. Do the funds in the settlement fund represent revenues derived from the sale of timber located on the Square?

Mr. MCCALED. Over 98 percent. According to the facts furnished to me, only about 1.26 percent were not derived from timber on the Square.

The CHAIRMAN. Were those revenues generated from the Square while members of the Yurok and Karuk Tribes were still considered "Indians of the reservation"?

Mr. MCCALED. The money in the settlement fund is there pursuant to the Short litigation that was resolved in 1974 and the subsequent timber cuttings. Would you restate your question so I can make sure I understand it?

The CHAIRMAN. Were those revenues generated from the Square while members of the Yurok and Karuk Tribes were still considered "Indians of the reservation"? That is the phrase in the statute.

Mr. MCCALED. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. So they were Indians in the reservation at the time the revenues were generated in the Square?

Mr. MCCALED. Yes; that's my understanding.

The CHAIRMAN. Because the Short case instructs us that if there is to be a distribution of revenues, the distribution must be made to all Indians of the reservation. Would that mean Hoopa, Yurok, Karuk?

Mr. MCCALED. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. The Hoopa Valley Tribe contends it is the only tribe entitled to the funds in the settlement fund, so your response does not agree with that?

Mr. MCCALED. No; for the reasons you just said. The Short case is, I think, specific on that point.

The CHAIRMAN. So it seems it may be critical to the resolution of the competing claims of entitlement to funds in the settlement fund to know whether the timber revenues that were placed in the fund were generated after the reservation was partitioned or whether they were generated while there were three tribal groups making up the "Indians of the reservation," isn't that correct?

Mr. MCCALED. The revenues that make up the original amount, almost $17 million in the chart, were generated prior to the partitioning of the reservation, while other revenues were generated from the timber fund after 1988, the partitioning actually occurred in 1988 by act of Congress.

The CHAIRMAN. There are two time periods?

Mr. MCCALED. Yes; there are.

The CHAIRMAN. Can you tell the committee what disbursements have been made from the settlement fund, when the disbursements were made and to whom these disbursements were made?

Mr. MCCALED. From the settlement fund, $15 million was disbursed to individual Indians who elected to become Yurok. There was another $10.6 million distributed to individual Indians who elected to buy out. That $10.6 million was offset by a $10-million direct appropriation of Congress. There has been another $1.5 million distributed to the Yurok Tribe since 1991 given they were provided about $500,000 a year for 3 years to help them in the process of establishing their tribal government.

The CHAIRMAN. Anything distributed to the Karuk Tribe?

Mr. MCCALED. None directly to the Karuk to my knowledge. There was another $34 million distributed to the Hoopa Tribe, $34,651,000 pursuant to their signing their waiver in keeping with the act.

The CHAIRMAN. Given the Department's position as set forth in the Secretary's report that neither the Hoopa Valley Tribe nor the Yurok Tribe is entitled to the balance of the funds remaining in the HYSA fund, what benefits of the act or activities authorized in the act does the Department envision should be carried out and funded by the recommended two separate permanent funds to fulfill the intent of the original Act in full measure?

Mr. MCCALED. I think all the funds should be distributed that are in the settlement fund. I don't think there is much debate over that. I think the issue is over the distribution, how the money should be distributed.

The CHAIRMAN. How shall the distribution be made?

Mr. MCCALED. I guess if you go to our third recommendation, it touches as closely as anything on that:

The settlement fund should be administered for the mutual benefit of both tribes and the reservations taking into consideration prior distributions to each tribe from the fund.

If you assume that 30–70 percent distribution was appropriate originally and take into consideration the prior distribution of the funds, that would provide some guidance in that area.

The CHAIRMAN. In your opinion, were all the provisions of the Act benefiting the Hoopa Valley Tribe implemented?

Mr. MCCALED. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. Would you say the same of the act benefiting the Yurok Tribe implemented?

Mr. MCCALED. No; that's not correct.

The CHAIRMAN. So the Hoopa Valley got all the benefits, Yurok did not?

Mr. MCCALED. One of the provisions was the partitioning of the tribal lands. That was done, that was accomplished but the Yuroks got none of the money except for the $1.5 million I indicated. There were other provisions for economic development that were supposed to be carried out pursuant to an economic development plan submitted by the Yuroks. The plan was never submitted, so it was never implemented. For example, there was some roadbuilding to be done pursuant to that economic development plan that has never been done. The Yurok only received a partitioning of tribal lands plus the $1.5 million.

The CHAIRMAN. Because of the obvious complexities, may we submit to you questions of some technicality that you and your staff can look over and give us a response?

Mr. MCCALED. I would appreciate that because I really need to rely on the historical and technical views of the staff to answer the meaningful questions that are attendant to this really sticky issue.

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you very much, Mr. Secretary.

Mr. MCCALED. May I be excused at this point?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes; and thank you very much, sir.

The second panel consists of the chairman of the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council of Hoopa, California, Clifford Lyle Marshall, Sr., accompanied by Joseph Jarnaghan, tribal councilman, Hoopa Valley Tribal Council and Thomas Schlosser, counsel, Hoopa Valley Tribal Council and Sue Masten, chairperson, Yurok Tribe, Klamath, CA.

STATEMENT OF CLIFFORD LYLE MARSHALL, SR., CHAIRMAN, HOOPA VALLEY TRIBAL COUNCIL, ACCOMPANIED BY JOSEPH JARNAGHAN, TRIBAL COUNCILMAN, HOOPA VALLEY TRIBAL COUNCIL AND THOMAS SCHLOSSER, COUNSEL

Mr. MARSHALL. I am Clifford Lyle Marshall, chairman of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

At this time, I ask that our written testimony be included in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection.

Mr. MARSHALL. Thank you for this opportunity to present the Hoopa Tribe's position on the Interior Report on the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act. I am here today with council member Joseph Jarnaghan and attorney Tom Schlosser.

First, let me express the Hoopa Tribe's deepest gratitude to Chairman Inouye, Vice Chairman Campbell and the other members of this committee for the leadership in achieving passage of the landmark Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act. We also acknowledge and appreciate the hard work of your dedicated staff. This act could not have occurred without your decision to resolve the complex problems that had crippled our reservation and tribal government for more than 20 years.

The years since its passage have demonstrated the outstanding success of the Settlement Act. It resolved the complex issues of the longstanding Jesse Short case, the act vested rights and established clear legal ownership in each of the tribes to the respective reservations. It also preserved the political integrity of the Hoopa Tribe by confirming the enforceability of our tribal constitution.

The Hoopa Tribe waived its claims against the United States and accepted the benefits provided in the act and since then we have accomplished a number of tribal objectives. We immediately embarked on a strategy to reestablish control of our small Indian nation and were one of the self-governance tribes. We believe that tribal self-governance is the true path to trust reform.

Although the Yurok Tribe rejected the settlement offer provided in the act, it nevertheless provided a means for organization of the Yurok Tribe, use of Federal properties for establishment of tribal government offices and the ability to obtain Federal grants and contracts. The act ultimately enabled the Yurok Tribe to join the ranks of self-governance tribes. The Yurok Tribal Council could not stand before you today as tribal government officials without this act.

The Settlement Act called for an end to litigation. It provided benefits to the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok Tribe on the condition that they waive all claims which they might assert against the United States as arising from the act. The Hoopa Tribe accepted that offer. The Yurok Tribe rejected that offer and sued the United States and so the act as applied did not authorize payments to them. As a result, the Yurok Tribe is now clearly prohibited by the act from receiving a portion of the settlement fund. Congress should not now conclude that the act was unfair due to the fact the Yurok Tribe did not receive the benefits of the act. The Yurok Tribe made a conscious decision to sue and thereby chose to forego nearly 13 years of potential development and economic opportunity.

The Hoopa Tribal Council would be remiss in our duties to our members if we did not see return of the timber revenues derived exclusively from the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation. Over 98 percent of the settlement fund balance comes from Hoopa escrow accounts derived from logging on Hoopa lands. I must respectfully disagree with Secretary McCaleb's referring to this fund as the Yurok account. The act refers to the money as Hoopa escrow moneys.

In 1988, the Hoopa Tribe enacted a resolution authorizing the use of these Hoopa escrow moneys as a settlement offer to end the effects of the litigation leading to the act. That consent was required in the act. The Hoopa Tribe's resolution, however, does not authorize use of these moneys for purposes not provided in the act. The Hoopa Tribe's agreement that the act provided a settlement offer of Hoopa moneys to the Yurok Tribe was withdrawn by operation of law when the Yurok Tribe sued the United States.

The answer to the question what happens now to the settlement fund must be found outside the act. Federal law provides for payment of proceeds from logging on tribal lands to the tribe whose reservation was logged. It is clear that the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation belongs to the Hoopa Tribe and that the Hoopa Tribe is the only governing body concerned with the sale of timber on the unallotted trust land of the Hoopa Reservation.

It simply follows that to the extent money remaining in the settlement fund came from the Hoopa Tribe's Reservation, the Hoopa Tribe is the only tribe entitled to those proceeds. Certainly a party to any other legal dispute which rejected the settlement offer, sued instead and lost could not come back and claim the previously made settlement offer. The Hoopa Tribe should not now be forced to pay for prior injustices that resulted during the allotment era or from the Yurok Tribe's decision to sue.

Using the settlement fund remainder for such purposes forces the Hoopa Tribe to be liable for the Federal Government's actions. Moreover, it would force the Hoopa Tribe to pay for the poor judgment of the Yurok Tribe's decision to litigate. We know of no other situation where Congress has taken resources and resource revenues derived from one reservation and simply given it to another reservation.

Congress was thorough in developing the Settlement Act. Congress considered history, aboriginal territory, demographics and equity. Likewise, Federal courts have held that the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation was historically the homeland of the Hoopa Tribe as a matter of history and as a matter of law. We know today that the Yurok Tribe would attempt to claim otherwise.

These are not new issues and after 40 years of litigation, the courts have heard and determined this issue and every other possible issue to be raised in regard to this piece of legislation. The litigation is now over. We ask Congress now to respect these judicial decisions and move forward.

In conclusion, the Interior report to Congress is disappointing. Interior concludes that neither tribe is entitled to the fund under the act but recommends that they administer the fund for the benefit of both the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes. This is clearly contradictory. We have long and hard experience with such administration during the Short v. United States era. As another witness will testify, Interior lacks the legal authority and the competence to carry out such responsibilities fairly.

We believe the issues now before Congress should be resolved through considered thought and hard work over some period of time, not necessarily years but long enough to ground any new legislation on substance and reason rather than emotion.

We have attempted to negotiate and remain open to negotiation. Thank you for your time.

[Prepared statement of Mr. Marshall appears in appendix.]

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Would your councilman and the counsel wish to say something? Mr. MARSHALL. Yes.

STATEMENT OF JOSEPH JARNAGHAN, COUNCIL MEMBER,
HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE

Mr. JARNAGHAN. My name is Joseph Jarnaghan. I thank you for the opportunity to speak before you. I consider it a great honor.

I am a council member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. Before being elected to the council, I worked for the tribe's timber industry for many years. I have a written statement and request that it be included in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, so ordered.

Mr. JARNAGHAN. Our forests are invaluable to our tribe. I want to tell you with the use of some slides why the return of the Hoopa escrow moneys to the Hoopa Valley Tribe is particularly appropriate in this case now that the payment provisions of the act have been exhausted.

The first slide is a map of the roads built on the Hoopa Valley Reservation beginning in the 1940's. There are 550 miles of road on the reservation. These roads are a major source of sediment production and contamination of our waters because the Bureau of Indian Affairs' maintenance of these roads was grossly inadequate.

When the BIA clearcut our forests, which ultimately generated the settlement fund, the BIA was more interested in the volume of timber going to the mill to create the settlement fund account than it was in the environmental state of our reservation.

Today, the Hoopa Tribe is still faced with the forest resource management and rehabilitation costs that were left undone. As a result, we have been spending $200,000 to $400,000 per year from tribal revenues to fix this road system. This year in the Pine Em Timber Sale, we have over 100 culverts that need to be installed as a result of the job not being done when the BIA harvested our timber between 1972 and 1988. That was 424 million board feet of timber.

The road construction standards the BIA used when harvesting our timber were deplorable and created ongoing problems that we continue to deal with today. The road erosion is devastating to our fisheries, water quality and riparian organisms. As you can see by this slide which shows a log jam that blocks fish passage, you will also notice the unit went right into the creek itself. The BIA logged 33,000 acres of tribal timber before the Settlement Act was passed. Most of the rest of our reservation is difficult to log because of steep slopes and in many cases, it is impossible to log because of ESA and National Marine Fisheries Service restrictions. Most of the easy units were logged to create the settlement fund.

These slides show that the BIA simply clearcut our reservation. This degraded cultural resources and created large areas for the tribe to now rehabilitate. Assistant Secretary McCaleb said Tuesday at the trust reform hearing that most tribes would not clearcut their land and that is a fact but unfortunately, the BIA did clearcut our forest. Timber stand improvements cost us over $500 per acre to treat. At 2 to 3 years old, we grub around trees for conifer release; 10 to 15 years after the harvesting, these clearcuts are invaded by brush and must be brushed by hand because we don't allow herbicide spraying. We do this at increased cost to promote tree growth as well as to ensure water quality.

We have suffered terrible forest fires. The Megram fire of 1999 shown here destroyed 4,500 acres of our reservation, mostly 30 year old stands that had been previously treated at the cost of $1,000 per acre.

Our tribe must not be forced to withstand losing escrow moneys that came from timber cuts on our reservation and having to finance the forest restoration and rehabilitation costs resulting from forest fires or poor BIA timber mismanagement. The settlement fund remainder was generated almost exclusively from timber from our reservation. Our forest has been ravaged by the BIA, our money has been taken from our people to create this fund and we have been forced to fight clear to the Supreme Court to defend our reservation, costing the Hoopa Tribe much money, time and lost opportunity.

Now the Yurok Tribe wants the settlement fund anyway. Is that fair? The fund that was left on the table by the Yurok Tribe's refusal to waive its claim should be returned to us so we can rehabilitate our aboriginal territory and our forests after the damage that was done to them by the BIA clearcutting.

Thank you.

[Prepared statement of Mr. Jarnaghan appears in appendix.]

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you very much.

Mr. Schlosser.

STATEMENT OF THOMAS SCHLOSSER

Mr. SCHLOSSER. My name is Thomas Schlosser. I thank the committee for the opportunity of submitting testimony on the Secretary's report.

I have been honored to serve as the litigation counsel for the Hoopa Valley Tribe for over 20 years. During that time, I have represented the Tribe in the Short litigation and in the litigation concerning the Settlement Act.

I have several points I would like to make. First, the Secretary's report threatens a return to the situation the tribes were in prior to passage of the Settlement Act. The Settlement Act was necessitated by complex litigation among the United States, the Hoopa Valley Tribe and a large number of individual Indians, most of whom but not all, have become members of the Yurok Tribe.

The chairman mentioned the Karuk Tribe and there are a few members of the Karuk Tribe who were involved in the Short litigation and were held to be Indians of the reservation. It is a very small fraction of the Karuk Tribe, I would guess less than 10 percent. Whereas of the people who were held to be Indians of the reservation who elected to join the Yurok Tribe in 1991, the base roll of the Yurok Tribe was entirely made up of Indians of the reservation.

There is another large fraction of Indians of the reservation that Mr. McCaleb referred to who chose to disaffiliate from both tribes, the so-called lump sum option under section 6(d). The Secretary's report mistakes the Settlement Act as having primarily been a boundary resolution act and instead suggests that the settlement fund be administered for the mutual benefit of both tribes.

Boundary clarification was only a small part of this act and the efforts to administer the fund for mutual benefit were dramatically unsuccessful prior to the Settlement Act. For years, long proceedings were necessary to get a tribal budget approved. Sometimes the tribal budget would get approved in the last month of the fiscal year because of Interior's inability to adopt standards and to determine whether things affected the reservation fairly. This led to conflicts between rulings in the Short case and the Puzz case over which kinds of expenditures were permissible.

For example, the Short case in 1987 held that money that was distributed to the tribe for tribal governmental purposes did not damage the Short plaintiffs, was not an injury to the Indians of the reservation and did not invade their rights. The Puzz court, a district court in the Northern District of California, held to the contrary, that funds used by the Hoopa Valley Tribe did damage the Indians of the reservation. So there are insufficient standards and not enough expertise to make that recommendation work well. As George Santayana said, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to relive it." There is an error found in Interior's recommendation.

Under the Settlement Act, there are some benefits potentially available to the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes. Only 22 Short plaintiffs were adjudicated to be Indians of the reservation in 1973, so the court embarked on a long process which actually is still underway of identifying the eligible Indians of the reservation and their heirs for inclusion in per capita payments.

This ruling precipitated other lawsuits, precipitated administrative actions that brought tribal government to a standstill, jeopardized public health, and made necessary the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act. The Settlement Act originated in the House and in the House two hearings were conducted, one by the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and another by the Judiciary Committee, and this committee conducted two hearings on its bill. And as you recall, at least three law firms appeared and participated in the proceedings on behalf of various groups of what have become Yurok tribal members. This included the Faulkner and Wunsch firm which represented most of the Short plaintiffs, many who became Yurok tribal members, the Heller, Ehrman White & McAuliffe firm which represented the Short plaintiffs, the Jacobsen, Jewitt & Theirolf firm which represented the Puzz plaintiffs, and so although the Yurok Tribe had not organized in a fashion to designate its own attorney, its members participated completely and fully.

With the committee's guidance, after all these legal issues were discussed and the equities were considered, the parties came together on a settlement package to be laid before each one of the contestants. At the request of the House, the Congressional Research Service analyzed the House bill to determine whether Congress could lawfully do this or whether it would involve a taking of property. The Congressional Research Service concluded that because of the unique background of this reservation and the litigation, it was possible that a court would conclude that non-tribal Indians, Indians of the reservation, had some vested interest in reservation property.

Ultimately, the courts didn't conclude that but the fact that there was a risk there is part of why the committee and Congress in the Settlement Act went to great pains to offer benefits in exchange for waivers of claims. So the settlement fund, for example, was allocated essentially in three ways, partly to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, if those tribes waived their claims, and partly to Indians as individuals who qualified as Indians of the reservation and appropriated money was provided which defrayed most of the cost of the lump sum payments.

As Mr. McCaleb correctly said, the appropriated money was not sufficient for the people who disaffiliated from both tribes, so some of the Yurok and Hoopa escrow funds went to that payment.

This act nullified the Short rulings. That was the purpose of the act. The act, this committee said in its report, was not to be considered a precedent for individualization of tribal communal assets but rather, sprang from the realization that there were some judicial decisions that were unique and the committee concluded,

The intent of this legislation is to bring the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe within the mainstream of Federal Indian law.

That is in the committee's report on page 2.

The Settlement Act preserved the money judgments that had been won by the individual Short plaintiffs, so they ultimately recovered about $25,000 each from the treasury in addition to the payments that were made to them in exchange for claim waivers under section 6 of the act.

The committee said while it didn't believe the legislation was in conflict with the Short case, "To the extent there is such a conflict, it is intended that this legislation will govern." The reason that is important now is because it is indisputable that over 98 percent of the remainder in the settlement fund is derived from Hoopa escrow funds, from Hoopa timber sales, trees cut on the Hoopa Square. That proportion in our view belongs to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

The Short case is not to the contrary. The Hoopa Valley Tribe has a right to timber proceeds for trees cut on the Square. As a historical matter, tribes didn't have a right to proceeds for timber sales on reservation until 1910 when Congress passed a general timber statute now enacted in section 407. In 1964, Congress changed the designation of beneficiaries from the 1910 Act which said the proceeds would be used for the benefit of Indians of the reservation. In 1964 that was changed to say that proceeds would be used for the benefit of Indians who are members of the tribe or tribes concerned.

At that time, the Department of the Interior, which advocated that technical correction, explained that Indians of the reservation didn't really describe anyone and that in fact members of the relevant tribe shared in the proceeds of sale of tribal properties. In the Short case, the 1983 opinion, the court held to the contrary and said Congress, when it used the term tribe here meant only the general Indian groups communally concerned with the proceeds and not officially organized or recognized tribes.

So another important part of the Settlement Act was correcting the damage done to the general timber statute. A section of the Settlement Act amended section 407 to say the proceeds of sale shall be used as determined by the governing bodies of the tribes concerned.

In the litigation that came after the Settlement Act, the Yurok Tribe and other plaintiffs continued to presume the correctness of some of the rulings in the Short case, in particular, the 1891 Executive order. The Short case did not support their claim that they had a right to the Hoopa escrow funds generated from timber cut on the Hoopa Square. Instead, in two opinions in 1987, an opinion discussed in this committee's report, and later in 1993, in the sixth published Short opinion, the Short court held that the plaintiffs there did not have a right to the trust funds, the escrow funds. Instead, the court made very clear that all it held in Short was that if money is distributed to individuals, not distributions to tribes but individualization of money, gave rise to a right by Indians of the reservation to share.

The Federal courts rejected this most recently in the litigation concerning the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act. Without the theories of the Short case that as Indians of the reservation, they have some claim to the timber revenues of the Square, without that theory, there is no connection between the Yurok Tribe and the Hoopa escrow moneys. The Hoopa escrow moneys were part of a settlement package and that is the only method by which they could have had access to them.

As the court ruled in the most recent case, Karuk Tribe of California v. United States, this litigation is the latest attempt by plaintiffs to receive a share of the revenues from timber grown on the Square. The Settlement Act nullified the Short rulings by establishing a new Hoopa Valley Reservation. A necessary effect of the Settlement Act was to assure payment of the timber revenues from the Square exclusively to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

It was the purpose of the Settlement Act to return these tribes to the mainstream of Federal Indian law. In the mainstream of Federal Indian law, the proceeds of trees cut on a tribe's reservation go to that tribe.

I want to mention one other issue that comes up recurrently and that is the assertion that a portion of the Hoopa Square was actually traditional Yurok Tribe territory or some even say traditional Karuk Tribe territory.

As the chairman pointed out, this is not a new issue, it is an issue that has been litigated specifically and in the just completed litigation concerning the Settlement Act, Karuk Tribe v. United States, the court's ruling was that both as a matter of history and as a matter of law, the record does not support the Yurok's claim to Indian title to the site of the Square. This issue is adverted to in this committee's report concerning the Settlement Act where the committee pointed out that the Settlement Act's choice of the Bissell Smith Line as the dividing line between the two reservations had the effect of putting a traditional Yurok village into the Yurok Reservation where it might previously have been in the Square.

With that, I would conclude my remarks and would be happy to answer questions.

[Prepared statement of Mr. Schlosser appears in appendix.]

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you.

One of the first issues confronting me as chairman of this committee was this matter. Obviously I knew very little about Indian country or Indian history or relationship. I spent 2 whole days in Sacramento conducting hearings, I visited the Valley, I would never fly back again and I must say that I thought the committee did pretty well.

But this committee was a successor of other committees in the U.S. Senate that felt that all the answers were in Washington, that the answers were in the minds of lawyers and government officials. What we have here today is the product of government officials and lawyers, starting off with deception and based upon the deception coming forth with conclusions and then obviously wanting to justify the deception.

In the years that followed my tenure as chairman beginning in 1987, I have become much more dependent upon the wisdom of Indian country, to tell me and to tell Washington what the solutions should be. We have too often tried to impose our will upon Indian country and this is one example.

In looking at the activities of 1852 and 1864, one must assume that the Indians were well organized with a whole array of lawyers who knew the Constitution inside and out and therefore they had their rights and liabilities all determined and that was not so. The Government of the United States went out of its way to make certain that Indians never got organized. I wish we could start all over and I could tell the Hoopa and the Yuroks why don't you all get together as you did in the old days. In the old days, it was either war and kill each other and decide or you sit down, have a big conference. In some places they smoked tobacco or exchanged gifts. Maybe the time has come for the restoration of the old method because as certain as I sit here if the Congress of the United States should come forth with Settlement Act No. 2, we will be back here in about 20 years trying to draw up Settlement Act No. 3.

I have a series of technical questions but those are all legal questions. It is good to know the history but I was trained to be a lawyer myself and when one presents his case, you make certain you don't say good things about the other side, you speak of the good things about your side. That is what you are paid for. I would expect lawyers to do the same.

With that, I will be submitting questions of a technical nature for the record.

May I thank you, Mr. Chairman and your staff.

Our next witness is the most distinguished member of Indian country, the chairperson of Yurok Tribe of Klamath, California, Sue Masten.

STATEMENT OF SUE MASTEN, CHAIRPERSON, YUROK TRIBE

Ms. MASTEN. Good morning.

I have the distinct honor to serve as the chairperson of the Yurok Tribe. The Yurok Tribe is the largest tribe in California with over 4,500 members of which 2,800 members live on or near the reservation.

Thank you for holding this hearing. We appear today with deep resolve and a commitment to working hard toward addressing the issues before you.

I know you can appreciate that the issues here run deep and are heart felt. I also know that when the act was passed Congress believed that the act reached equity for both tribes. Thank you for your willingness to hear our concerns that those goals were not achieved.

We especially thank you, Chairman Inouye, for taking this very significant step toward addressing our concerns for equity under the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act to look at what has been achieved or not achieved during the last 14 years and for asking what now may need to be done.

We are deeply appreciative of your October 4, 2001 letter where you invited both tribes to step beyond the act to address current and future needs. We know this committee sought to achieve relative equity for both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe in 1988.

During the course of our many meetings with members of Congress and their staff, we have been asked why Congress should look at this matter again. The answer to this question is clear, the act has not achieved the full congressional intent and purpose and Congress often has to revisit issues when its full intent is not achieved.

Additionally, we believe that the Departments of the Interior and Justice did not completely or accurately inform Congress of all the relevant factors. Congress did not have the full assistance from the departments that you should have had.

In reviewing the Department's testimony and official communications, we were appalled that the Yurok historic presence on the Square was minimized or ignored and that the relative revenue and resource predictions for the tribe were also wrong. Furthermore, we are also concerned about the significant disparity of actual land base that each tribe has received.

Can you imagine in this day and age an Assistant Secretary addressing a serious dispute between tribes by describing one tribe as a model tribe and dismissing the other, as some sort of remnant who would only need 3,000 acres because only 400 Indians remain on what would become their reservation.

Interior also told Congress that the income of the tribes was comparable. The Hoopa Tribe would earn somewhat over $1 million a year from timber resources and the Yuroks had just had $1 million plus fishery the year before. Here are the real facts.

Several thousand Yuroks lived on or near the reservation, on or near is the legal standard for a tribe's service district. There is a serious lack of infrastructure, roads, telephones, electricity, housing on the Yurok Reservation and we have 75 percent unemployment and a 90-percent poverty level. Further, there is a desperate need for additional lands, particularly lands that can provide economic development opportunities, adequate housing sites and meet the tribal subsistence and gathering needs.

The Department gave the impression that the Short plaintiffs who were mostly Yurok had left our traditional homelands, were spread out over 36 States, were perhaps non-Indian descendants and were just in the dispute for the dollars. This impression was highly insulting to the Yurok people and a disservice to Congress.

There are at least as many Yuroks on or near the reservation as are Hoopas. With respect to the relative income or resource equity projected for the new reservations, it is true there was a commercial fishery shortly before the act, true but also very misleading. Commercial fishing income, if any, went predominantly to the Hoopa and Yurok fishermen. The fact was that in most years, there was no commercial fishery and in many years, we did not meet our subsistence and ceremonial needs.

Since the act, Klamath River coho salmon have been listed as an endangered species and other species are threatened to be listed. In fact, the Klamath River is listed as one of the 10 most threatened rivers in the Nation and has lost 80 to 90 percent of its historic fish populations and habitat. Today, the fish runs we depend on are subject to insufficient water flows and in spite of our senior water right and federally recognized fishing right, we continue to have to fight for water to protect our fishery.

The average annual income of the Yurok Tribe from our salmon resource was and is nonexistent. To be fair, we should note that since the Settlement Act, the Yurok Tribe has had a small income from timber revenues, averaging about $600,000 annually. With respect to the land base, the Yurok Tribe's Reservation contains approximately 3,000 acres of tribal trust lands and approximately 3,000 acres of individual trust lands. The remainder of the 58,000 acre reservation is held in fee by commercial timber interests.

The Hoopa Tribe Reservation has approximately 90,000 acres with 98 percent in tribal trust status. Regarding the $1 million plus in timber revenues projected for the Hoopa Tribe, testimony of the Hoopa tribal attorney in 1988 indicated the annual timber revenue from the Square was approximately $5 million. Since the act, the Hoopa timber revenues have been $64 million. The point is the projected revenue comparison that should have been before the committee in 1988 was zero fisheries income for the Yurok Tribe and more than $5 million in annual timber and other revenues from the Square for the Hoopa Valley Tribe, not the comparable $1 million or so for each tribe the committee report relied upon.

This disparity of lands, resources and revenues continues today and hinders our ability to provide services to our people. Unfortunately, the Yurok Tribe in 1988 unlike today was unable to address misleading provisions of key information. The Yurok Tribe, although federally recognized since the mid-19th century, was not formally organized and had no funds, lawyers, lobbyists or other technical support to gather data or analyze the bill, to present facts and confront misinformation.

It is important to acknowledge the positive provisions of the Act which provided limited funds to retain attorneys and others to assist us in the creation of the base roll, the development of our constitution and the establishment of our tribal offices. We also appreciated the Senate committee report recognized and acknowledged that the tribe could organize under our inherent sovereignty which we did.

Had we been an organized tribe, we would have testified before you in 1988 and we would have pointed out that while it is true the Square is part of the Hoopa peoples' homeland, it is also true that the Square is part of the ancestral homelands of the Yurok people.

Almost without fail throughout the testimony received in 1988, the Square is described as Hoopa and the addition is described as Yurok. The Yurok ancestral map provided to you shows that our territory was quite large and included all the current Yurok Reservation, 80 percent of Redwood National Park, as well as significant portions of the U.S. National Forest.

Yurok villages existed in the square and these sites have been verified by anthropologists. This fact should not be a matter of dispute. The Justice Department and the Hoopa Valley Tribe in Yurok v. United States agreed in a joint fact statement that the Yuroks were always inhabitants of the Square. We are not claiming that we had Indian title to the whole square but that we have always been a part of the Square. The Short cases reached that same determination.

We think these different perspectives are important as we consider today's issues. However, it is critical for everyone to understand that we are not asking Congress to take back anything from the Hoopa Valley Tribe that they received under the Settlement Act. What we do want is for the committee to look at the relative equities achieved under the act, understanding the Yuroks have always been inhabitants of the Square and have never abandoned our connection to our territories, our culture and traditions.

We have already noted the significant disparities between the tribes in income, resources, land base and infrastructure after the act. The data provided by Interior Department today supports our position. To reiterate, the Hoopa Valley Tribe received a 90,000-acre timbered reservation of which 98 percent is held in tribal trust. The Yurok Tribe received a 58,000-acre reservation with 3,000 acres in tribal trust, containing little timber. The map we have provided to you shows this extreme disparity.

We have already noted that the projected income for the tribes were incorrect. Time has verified that the predictions of a bountiful or restored Yurok fishery has not happened. It is also a fishery that we share with the non-Indians as well as Hoopa. Hoopa timber resources however have produced substantial income exceeding the 1988 predictions as reflected in the Interior Department's records. In addition, as this committee is aware from your recent joint hearing on telecommunications, infrastructure on the Yurok Reservation is virtually nonexistent.

In our response to Senator Inouye's letter of October 4, 2001, we have submitted an outline of an economic development and land acquisition plan to you and the Department of the Interior. The plan is based on our settlement negotiations with the Department in 1996 and 1997. We would like to request from you today the creation of a committee or a working group composed of tribal administration and congressional representatives and hopefully, under your leadership, Senator.

We recommend that the committee's responsibility be to develop legislation that would provide a viable self sufficient reservation for the Yurok people as originally intended by the Settlement Act. As you can see, our issues are broad based and focus on equity for the Yurok Tribe. The Department's report has prompted this hearing to address access by the Yurok Tribe to the Yurok Trust Fund. The Interior Department has said that neither tribe has legal entitlement to the Yurok Trust Fund. Our view is simple.

The financial equities and the actual distributions of timber revenues from 1974 to 1988 clearly demonstrate that the Yurok Tribe should receive its share of the settlement fund as the act intended. Arguments based on where the revenue came from on the joint reservation are wrong. These revenues belonged as much to the Yuroks of the Square and the Yuroks of the extension as they did to the Hoopas of the Square. This is the key point of the cases both tribes lost in the Claims Court.

The point is that prior to 1988, the Hoopa Valley Reservation was a single reservation intended for both tribes and whose communal lands and income were vested in neither tribe. Short also means that the Department could not favor one tribe above the other in the distribution of assets. These are pre-1988 moneys. We should not have to reargue what Yuroks won in the Short cases.

After the final 1974 decision in Short I, the Department ceased to distribute timber revenues only to the members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and began to reserve 70 percent of the timber revenues for the Yurok plaintiffs. The remaining 30 percent of the revenues were for Hoopa and were placed in a separate escrow account which the Department disbursed to the Hoopa Valley Tribe. When we discussed the 1974-88 timber revenues with the Hoopa Tribal Council, they asserted that all of the timber revenues should have been theirs. Legally as the committee knows, that is not what the courts have said. No Indian tribe, before 1988, had a vested right to the Square or its assets. In 1974, the Federal courts had finally determined that the Secretary had since 1955 wrongfully made per capital distributions to only Hoopa tribal members and the plaintiffs, mostly Yurok, were entitled to damages against the United States. Damages were eventually provided to the plaintiffs for the years 1955–74 but not for 1974–88. The point is that neither tribe had title to timber or a constitutional right to the revenues from 1974–88. If the revenues were distributed to one group, the other group was entitled to its fair share. It did not matter what percentage of the timber proceeds came from the square or came from the addition because according to the Federal courts, neither revenues were vested in either tribe.

In 1974–88, revenues were distributed to the Hoopa Tribe, first under the 30 percent Hoopa share totaling $19 million and second under the Settlement Act. As you are aware, the Settlement Act placed the 70 percent escrow account which was $51 million, the small balance of the Hoopa 30 percent escrow account, some smaller joint Hoopa Yurok escrow accounts, Yurok escrow accounts, as well as the $10 million Federal appropriation all in the settlement fund.

In 1991, the Department split the settlement account between the two tribes based on our enrollments. The Hoopa Valley Tribe was allocated 39.5 percent of the settlement fund or $34 million. Because the Hoopa Valley Tribe had executed its waiver, the Department provided these funds to the tribe. The Yurok Tribe was allocated $37 million and it was put in a Yurok trust account and was not provided to us.

From 1974 to 1988, timber revenues and interest was approximately $64 million of which the Hoopa Tribe received a total of $53 million or 84.2 percent of this total. Also in 1991, the claims attorneys for the Short cases sued the United States to try to recover attorneys fees from the settlement account. Two other Yuroks and I intervened in this case as co-defendants to protect the Yurok share of the settlement funds. The United States approved this intervention and the Justice Department attorneys encouraged our participation and we won this case.

As you are aware, in 1993, the Yurok Tribe sued the United States for a takings claim under the Settlement Act. We lost this case in 2001 when the Supreme Court declined to review a 2 to 1 decision by the Federal Court of Appeals. We lost this case for the same reason that the Hoopa Tribe lost all of their pre-1988 cases. No part of the pre-1988 Hoopa Valley Reservation was vested to any Indian tribe and none of us had title against the United States. We could argue that the case was unfair and historically blind and that it is outrageous to use colonial notions of Indian title in these modern times but it doesn't matter. We lost, as the Hoopa Tribe lost before us, and in this legal system, the only appeal we have left is an appeal to equity and justice before Congress to fix these wrongs.

At the same time in 1993, we adopted the conditional waiver which provided that our waiver was effective if the Settlement Act was constitutional. The courts have determined that the act is constitutional. That determination should have been sufficient to meet the condition of our waiver but the Department held that our waiver was not valid. Although we disagree, we have not challenged the Department's judgment in the court and will not take the committee's time to debate it today.

The Department determined that the Hoopa waiver was effective and they received their funds under the Act. Therefore, they have no legal right to additional funds. The Department has reported to Congress that you should resolve this issue. Among other things, the Department sees itself as the administrator of the funds for both tribes. In resolving these issues, the report indicates that Congress should consider funds already received and focus on the purpose of the act to provide for two self sufficient reservations. A better solution would be to permit the Yurok Tribe to manage our own funds. We, of course, would be willing to submit a plan for review and approval. In fact, our constitution mandates that a plan be developed and approved by our membership before any of these funds are spent.

As we have stated, a complete review of the record indicates that almost all of the trust lands, economic resource and revenues of the pre-1988 joint reservation have to date been provided almost exclusively to the Hoopa Valley Tribe. A final point to consider is that in 1996, we negotiated an agreement with the Hoopa Valley Tribe to support H.R. 2710 in return for their support of our settlement negotiation issues specifically the balance of the settlement funds. Apparently the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council now believes that its end of the deal ended with the collapse of our settlement negotiations. We lived up to our end of the bargain and the Hoopa Valley Tribe received an additional 2,600 acres of trust land. This almost equals the total tribal trust lands we received under the act. Copies of both of our 1996 commitment letters have been provided with our written testimony.

In closing, back home our people are preparing for our most sacred ceremonies, the White Deer Skin dance and the Jump dance. These ceremonies are prayers to the Creator to keep balance in our Yurok world. When our people are in balance, we are strong, our children's futures are bright, life is as it should be, good. When our people are not in balance, we are weakened, our people are disheartened and we worry about what will become of our children. Life is not good.

In a way, this hearing is a kind of ceremony. We come seeking balance for our people, we come seeking strength, we come seeking a stable future for our children, we come seeking a good life for our tribe. Sadly, our people are not now in balance. Though our dances help our spiritual well being, the resources given to us by the Creator so that we would never want for anything have been taken from us. Once we were a very wealthy people in all aspects in our Yurok world, in our spirituality, in our resources and in our social-economic affairs. The sad irony is that because of our great wealth, we were targeted heavily by the Government's anti-Indian policies for termination and assimilation. Many of our elders have passed on never having received the benefits they were entitled to under Short and under the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act. We hope Congress will not let more pass on without benefiting from the settlement fund.

Be that as it may, we pray Congress will use its power to bring balance back to our people, that it will relieve our fears about our children's futures and make us strong once again, that it will make our lives good as they should be.

Once more, Senator, thank you for the honor of appearing before the committee today and would welcome any of your questions.

[Prepared statement of Ms. Masten appear in appendix.]

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you very much.

If the Congress is called upon to resolve this matter, I can assure you that the Congress can and will do so but I would hope that all of you assembled here would realize under what circumstances these decisions would be made. Here I sit alone before you. This is a committee of 15 members. The vice chairman unfortunately had to leave because of other commitments and other issues. As a general rule, we are the only two who sit through all of these hearings.

Second, I think you should take into consideration that the sanctuary that Indian country once held in the Supreme Court may not be available. Supreme Court decisions of recent times have indicated that they are not too favorably inclined as to the existence of Indian sovereignty. I need not remind you of Nevada v. Hicks and the Atkins on Trading Post cases. Keeping that in mind, I wasn't being facetious when I said if you left it up to us for Settlement Act No. 2, you may get it but it may be worse than Settlement Act No. 1.

Solutions for Indian problems coming from Indian country are always the best and I know you have attempted to sit together in the past but it has not succeeded but I would hope you can do so and come forth with a joint recommendation that both of you can approve and support because if we do it, somebody is going to get hurt. I have no idea who is going to get hurt but I can guarantee you somebody is going to get hurt.

If you have the patience and the wisdom to get together and sit down, have negotiations and discussions and if you want to have the help of this committee to some mediation, we are happy to do so but to try to do this legislatively at this stage, I don't think is a wise thing because the foundation is shaky to begin with and this is not the kind of solution that lawyers can make, only Indians can make it. I would hope that you can sit together, begin a process. We would be very happy to help you and hopefully come forth in the not too distant future, maybe 6 months from now, with some solution. I can assure you that I will act speedily and expeditiously.

The way it is now, I am the only one sitting here but this is the way the Congress of the United States acts unfortunately. If you want people who have no knowledge, no idea of your issues acting upon your case, you can have it but I think that's the wrong way.

I will not ask you any questions at this time. We will just confuse it and maybe anger people further and that's not my mission here, to anger Indians. I think the time has come for Indians to get together. You have big problems ahead of you. If you can't solve the immediate problems at home, then you will have real problems on the big ones.

With that, Chairperson Masten and Chairman Marshall, just for us, would you please stand up and shake hands?

Ms. MASTEN. We have no problem with that, Senator. We work on many issues together where we have mutual benefit but I would like to say before I do that, we would request the committee's assistance because in our prior negotiations there has been a breach of trust because after our last negotiations, the Hoopa Tribe issued a press release.

The CHAIRMAN. When you have negotiations, I will make certain there is a representative from this committee.

Ms. MASTEN. Appreciate that, Senator. Thank you again.

The CHAIRMAN. If you can keep your rhetoric reasonable and rationale and friendly, I think we can work out something.

Mr. MARSHALL. I'm sorry, Senator. I cannot shake hands after being offended in that way. We did not offend them in the last negotiation and I cannot be that hypocritical.

The CHAIRMAN. I think we should start the process.

With that, this hearing is adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 12:04 p.m., the committee was recessed, to reconvene at 2 p.m. the same day.]

APPENDIX

PREPARED STATEMENT OF JOSEPH JARNAGHAN, COUNCILMAN, HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE OF CALIFORNIA

My name is Joseph Jarnaghan and I am a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council. Our tribe has lived on and governed its affairs in the Hoopa Valley for over 10,000 years. I testify as a tribal official elected in a democratic process by the tribal membership, and expressing the views of our people.

On behalf of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, I want to thank this committee for the opportunity to be here today and to testify in this oversight hearing. I want to tell you why the return of the Hoopa escrow moneys to the Hoopa Valley Tribe is particularly appropriate in this case, now that the payment provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act have been exhausted.

My first slide is a map of roads built on the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation beginning in the 1940's. There are over 550 linear miles of road on the reservation. These roads are a major source of sediment production and contamination of our waters because the Bureau of Indian Affairs' maintenance of these roads was grossly inadequate, virtually nonexistent, when it clear-cut timber from our reservation. The Bureau was more interested in getting the trees down and to sale rather than forest resource management and rehabilitation. Now, the Hoopa Valley Tribe spends approximately $200,000 to $400,000 per year from tribal revenue to fix this road system. Simply put, the BIA road construction standards employed in harvesting timber from our reservation created a huge ongoing problem. The roads erosion is devastating to fisheries, water quality and riparian organisms. The tribe continues to rehabilitate old logging roads and landings that are major contributors to sediment production and which thereby affect fish habitat and water quality.

The BIA cut down approximately 33,000 acres of tribal timber before the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act was passed. Most of the remainder of the reservation cannot be logged. As the photos illustrate, clear cutting management techniques were practiced by the BIA. This type of harvesting disregarded cultural resources and created large areas that the tribe must now rehabilitate through timber stand improvement projects. Even 10 years after harvesting, clear cuts have led to invasion by brush species, understocked timber regrowth, and unhealthy conditions susceptible to fire or insects. Timber stand improvement costs the tribe over $500 per acre to treat. Thin and release programs conducted by hand produce substantial improvements in growth rates.

Our reservation has also been substantially damaged by forest fires. The Megram fire of 1999 resulted in approximately 4,500 acres being destroyed through fire suppression efforts on the reservation. About one-half of the damage was the result of "back bum" operations. The rest of the damage occurred through creation of a "contingency fire line." The fire line was up to 400 feet wide and approximately 11 miles long.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe must not be subjected to the double hit of losing both the Hoopa escrow moneys derived from timbering activities on our reservation and having to finance the restoration and rehabilitation costs resulting from the BIA's poor timber harvest projects and forest fires. The potential application of Hoopa escrow funds to settlement costs never came to pass, instead we had to incur tremendous defense costs to protect our reservation. The Hoopa escrow funds from our reservation should be restored to meet the needs of our people.

PREPARED STATEMENT THOMAS P. SCHLOSSER, COUNSEL, HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE OF CALIFORNIA

My name is Thomas P. Schlosser and I am an attorney for the Hoopa Valley Tribe. I thank the committee for the privilege of presenting testimony concerning the report to Congress submitted by the Secretary of the Interior in March 2002, pursuant to § 14(c) of Pub. L. 100-580, as amended, the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

I have been honored to serve as litigation counsel to the Hoopa Valley Tribe for over 20 years and, during that time, have represented the tribe in the hopelessly misnamed case of Short v. United States, a suit still pending after 39 years. Along with numerous lawyers representing various sides of the controversy, I participated in the proceedings of the 100th Congress and this Committee that fashioned the landmark Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

1. The Secretary's Report Threatens a Return to Pre-1988 Conditions.

The Settlement Act was necessitated by complex litigation between the United States, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and a large number of individual Indians, most, but not all of whom were of Yurok decent. Those who do not recall the applicable court rulings or the conditions from which the Settlement Act emerged will not fully appreciate the strengths and weaknesses of the Secretary's § 14(c) report. Thus, the Secretary's report mistakes the Settlement Act as having been enacted "with the primary objective of providing finality and clarity to the contested boundary issue," and concludes with the recommendation that the Settlement Fund "would be administered for the mutual benefit of both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes." The Secretary's report is not all wrong but boundary clarification was only an aspect of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. If administration of the Fund for the joint benefit of the tribes is the outcome of this process we will have returned to the difficult era between 1974 and 1988 that required passage of the Settlement Act in the first place. As George Santayana said, "those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." The error of establishing a "Reservation-wide" account is clear from comparing § 1(b)(1)(F) with Puzz v. United States, 1988 WL 188462, *9 (N.D. Cal. 1988).

Under the Settlement Act there are potential benefits currently unavailable to the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Tribes because of the Yurok Tribe's decision to reject the conditions of the act. The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund is only one of the undistributed assets, and probably not the most valuable one, by comparison to the hundreds of acres of Six Rivers National Forest land within and near the Yurok Reservation, the money appropriated for Yurok land acquisition, the Yurok self-sufficiency plan which was never submitted or funded, and the statutory authority to acquire land in trust for the Yurok Tribe. Thus, a second shortcoming of the Secretary's § 14(c) report is that it focuses myopically on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund. Nevertheless, because the Settlement Fund is the only asset in which the Hoopa Valley Tribe has a continuing interest, my testimony will focus on it.

2. The Short Case Was an Aberration From Federal Indian Law.

The Settlement Act brought to an end a long detour from a correct decision of the Interior Department on February 5, 1958, the Deputy Solicitor's memorandum regarding rights of the Indians in the Hoopa Valley Reservation, California. The Solicitor's opinion found that a group of Indians had been politically recognized as the Hoopa Tribe by the United States in 1851 and were the beneficiaries of administrative actions in 1864 and an Executive order in 1876 setting aside the Hoopa Square for the benefit of any Indians who were then occupying the area and those who availed themselves of the opportunity for settlement therein. (Those Indians were, as this committee found in 1988, primarily Hoopa Indians, but the Hoopa Valley Tribe included other individuals who joined the community and ultimately became enrolled tribal members.) The Solicitor found that Commissioner of Indian Affairs had been correct in recognizing tribal title to the communal lands in the Hoopa Square to be in the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Federal Government's action a generation later, in 1891, to append to the Hoopa Valley Reservation the old Klamath River Reservation and the intermediate Connecting Strip, as an aid to the administration of those areas, could not have had any effect on the rights of Indians to property within the Reservation because Hoopa Valley rights attached in 1864 and Klamath River Reservation rights attached in 1855.

Unfortunately for all concerned, the Court of Claims differed with the Interior Department's 1958 view in Short v. United States, 202 Ct. Cl. 870 (1973), cert. denied, 416 U.S. 961 (1974) ("Short 1"). Short I ruled that the Secretary violated trust duties to non-Hoopa "Indians of the Reservation," when he excluded them from tribal per capita payments. Nearly 4,000 individuals were plaintiffs in Short, and Short I found only 22 "Indians of the Reservation" and left a very difficult job (which is still underway) for the courts to perform determining which other "Indians of the Reservation" and their heirs were entitled to damages from Treasury for breach of trust. Short I precipitated a series of crises and related lawsuits that jeopardized public health and welfare and nearly destroyed tribal government before Congress stepped in with the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

The Settlement Act originated in the House as H.R. 4469. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and the Judiciary Committee of the House conducted hearings on that bill, in addition to the two hearings conducted by this committee. As you may recall, at least three law firms represented factions of Yurok tribal members at those hearings, including Faulkner & Wunsch, Heller Ehrman White & McAuliffe, and Jacobsen, Jewitt & Theirolf. Many legal issues were argued but, with this committee's guidance, the warring factions came together on a settlement package to lay before all parties.

At the request of the House, the American Law Division of the Congressional Research Service prepared an analysis of H.R. 4469 which pointed out that because of the unique statutory and litigation background, a remote possibility existed that litigation concerning H.R. 4469 could create a new Federal Indian law precedent, holding that if the Reservation was established for non-tribal Indians, Indians of the Reservation would have a vested interest in Reservation property. The courts did not ultimately reach that conclusion, but it is useful to recall that issue now in order to realize how the Secretary's § 14(c) report oversimplifies the Settlement Act as merely a division of assets between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes. Actually, the Settlement Act initially divided the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund between the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, subject to surrender of claims, and then added appropriated funds to finance lump-sum payments to Indians who did not elect to join the Yurok Tribe or the Hoopa Valley Tribe. Because of the long history of Yurok Short plaintiff opposition to organization of the Yurok Tribe and the wide geographic dispersal of Yurok Indians it was simply unknown how many persons on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll would elect Yurok tribal membership.

3. The Settlement Act Nullified the Short Rulings.

This committee emphasized that the Settlement Act should not be considered an individualization of tribal communal assets and that the solutions in the Settlement Act sprang from a series of judicial decisions that are unique in recognizing individual interests that conflict with general Federal policies and laws favoring recognition and protection of tribal property rights and tribal governance of Indian reservations. The committee concluded: "the intent of this legislation is to bring the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe within the mainstream of Federal Indian law." S. Rep. 564, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1988) at 2.

The Settlement Act preserved the money judgments won by qualified plaintiffs in the Short case, and they ultimately recovered about $25,000 each from the United States Treasury in 1996. They also received the payments provided by § 6 of the Act. But this committee noted that while it did not believe "that this legislation, as a prospective settlement of this dispute, is in any way in conflict with the law of the case in the Short cases, to the extent there is such a conflict, it is intended that this legislation will govern." Id. at 19.

The interplay of the Settlement Act and the Short case is important to allocation of the Settlement Fund now for this reason: is indisputable that over 98 percent of the funds remaining in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund originated in trees cut from the Hoopa Square, now the Hoopa Valley Reservation. That proportion of the funds belongs to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

4. The Hoopa Valley Tribe Has a Right to its Timber Proceeds.

As an historical matter, Indian tribes did not generally have a right to logging proceeds until Congress, by the Act of June 25, 1910, authorized the sale of timber on unallotted lands of any Indian reservation and provided that "the proceeds from such sales shall be used for the benefit of the Indians of the reservation in such manner as he may direct." See 25 U.S.C. § 407. In 1964, Congress changed the identity of the beneficiaries of proceeds in the statute from "Indians of the reservation" to "Indians who are members of the tribe or tribes concerned." As the Interior Department testified in support of that amendment, this was a technical correction because the term "Indians of the reservation" did not describe anybody and actually members of the relevant tribe shared in the proceeds of the sale of tribal property. However, in Short v. United States, 719 F.2d 1133, 1136 (Fed. Cir. 1983), cert. de- nied, 467 U.S. 1256 (1984) (“Short III”), the court rejected that explanation and held that “Congress, when it used the term ‘tribe’ in this instance, meant only the general Indian groups communally concerned with the proceeds—not an officially organized or recognized Indian tribe—and that the qualified plaintiffs fall into the group intended by Congress.” Thus, another important portion of the Settlement Act was the correction to the Short—caused distortion of 25 U.S.C. § 407 to provide that “the proceeds of the sale shall be used—(1) as determined by the governing bodies of the tribes concerned and approved by the Secretary—” This amendment restored tribal control over enrollment and use of timber proceeds.

The Short case, as explained in some detail in this committee’s report, found that no vested Indian rights existed at the time the Hoopa Valley Reservation was extended to include the Connecting Strip and Klamath River Reservation in 1891, and that therefore all Indians of the reservation, as extended, had to be included in per capita distributions from reservation revenues. In the litigation that challenged the Settlement Act as a taking of plaintiffs’ vested rights, the Yurok Tribe, its members, and the Karuk Tribe of California logically presumed both the propriety of President Benjamin Harrison’s 1891 Executive order and the correctness of the Court of Claims’ decision in Short I. In other words, those plaintiffs assumed that President Harrison acted lawfully in expanding the Hoopa Valley Reservation to include the Addition, and that the effect of 1891 Executive order was to give all Indians having an appropriate connection to the reservation as so expanded an equal claim to all of the expanded reservation’s income. If either of those propositions was incorrect, then the Settlement Act could not be thought to deprive plaintiffs of anything to which they were ever entitled. However, those propositions depended in turn on the assumption that the 1876 Executive order did not confer property rights on the inhabitants of the Hoopa Square, as the reservation was then defted, since if such rights were conferred they would have been taken by the 1891 Executive Order, at least as construed in Short I.

Here we are again hearing the Yurok Tribe contend that they have a right to receive timber proceeds from the Hoopa Valley Square. The courts have correctly rejected this, not once, but time after time in Short IV, Short VI, and Karuk Tribe of California. In Short IV, 12 Cl. Ct. 36, 44 (1987), the Court held that the escrow fund did not belong to Short plaintiffs but was held in the Treasury subject to the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior. That ruling was reaffirmed in Short VI, 28 Fed. Cl. 590, 591, 593 (1993), where the Court recalled that prior to 1987 the Short plaintiffs claimed a right to the entire escrow fund but that claim was rejected in Short IV and remained the law of the case. The Federal courts rejected plaintiffs continued effort to capitalize on Short. Karuk Tribe of California, et al. v. United States, et al., 209 F.3d 1366, 1372 (Fed. Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 523 U.S. 941 (2001).

Without the theories of the Short case, the Yurok Tribe has no claim to portions of the Settlement Fund derived from Hoopa escrow funds and timber on the Square. As the Court ruled in Karuk Tribe of California, “This litigation is the latest attempt by plaintiffs to receive a share of the revenues from timber grown on the Square. . . . [but] the Settlement Act nullified the Short rulings by establishing a new Hoopa Valley Reservation. . . . A necessary effect of the Settlement Act was thus to assure payment of the timber revenues from the Square exclusively to the ‘Hoopa Valley Tribe.’” 209 F.3d at 1372. It was the purpose of the Settlement Act to return the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Tribes to the mainstream of Federal Indian law. The twisted logic of the Short case can have no further effect on these tribes. Under mainstream law, the proceeds of Indian timber sales must go to the tribe whose trees were cut.

TESTIMONY OF CLIFFORD LYLE MARSHALL
CHAIRMAN, HOOPA VALLEY TRIBE OF CALIFORNIA
BEFORE THE
SENATE INDIAN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE
August 1, 2002

Mr. Chairman and Members of this Committee, I am Clifford Lyle Marshall, Chairman of the Hoopa Valley Tribe of California. On behalf of our Tribe, thank you for the opportunity to present the position of our Tribe on the Interior Department's Report on the Hoopa -Yurok Settlement Act.

We express our deepest gratitude to Chairman Inouye, Vice Chairman Campbell and the other Members of this Committee for your leadership in achieving passage of the landmark 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. Obviously, this would have never occurred without your valiant efforts and incisive analysis of the problems that had crippled our reservation and our tribal government for more than 20 years. We also acknowledge and appreciate the hard work of your dedicated staff, some of whom I suspect remember all the details of the issues addressed in 1988 and before.

The years since its passage have demonstrated the outstanding success of the Act. It resolved the complex issues in the long - standing Jesse Short case brought by thousands of individuals who sued for timber revenues from the Hoopa Valley Tribe's reservation. It provided a means for those individuals who qualified for Yurok tribal membership to establish a tribal government, adopt a tribal constitution and begin to exercise governmental responsibilities. The Act ended years of frustration and inability of unorganized Yurok individuals to act effectively to benefit the Yurok people. The Yurok Tribal Chair and Council Members could not stand before you today in that capacity without that Act.

The Act also vested rights in each of the tribes to their respective reservations. It established in each tribe clear legal ownership of its reservation. The Act also preserved the political integrity of the Hoopa Valley Tribe by confirming the enforceability of our tribal Constitution. The offer was derived from an agreement reached by the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. The Yurok Tribe chose to reject the offer provided in the Settlement Act which would have finally brought an end to litigation. The Act nevertheless authorized the Yurok Tribe to use properties such as the Yurok Experimental Forest where a tribal government center has been established and to obtain federal grants and contracts. The Act ultimately made it possible for the Yurok Tribe to join the ranks of tribes with self-governance compacts.

Most importantly, the Settlement Act called for an end to litigation. In its attempt to accomplish that goal, the Act provided benefits to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, on the condition that they waive all claims which they might assert against the United States as arising from the Act. The Act specifically preserved claims of the Yurok Indians and other individual Indian claims in the Jesse Short case. Damages to individual Indians were determined in 1993 in Short and payments made in 1996.

During the era of the Short case, in the 1970's and 80's, the Bureau of Indian Affairs placed timber revenues from the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation into a special escrow fund. The Hoopa Tribe was allowed to use up to 30 percent of those revenues for governmental purposes. The Court of Claims made a number of decisions about this fund. It held that the individual plaintiffs had no claim to these funds and that they could not be used to pay for damages to the plaintiffs caused by the United States.¹ With the agreement of the Hoopa Tribe, Congress provided for use of this fund in the Settlement Act for the benefit of the Hoopa Tribe and the to-be-organized Yurok Tribe.

The Settlement Act was in fact exactly what its title implies. It was an offer to both the Hoopa Tribe and the to-be-organized Yurok Tribe to receive substantial monetary payments from this fund if they would forego suing the United States for any claims they might assert arose from passage of the Act. The Hoopa Tribe accepted that offer. The Yurok Tribe did not. The Yurok Tribe refused to waive any possible claims and instead chose to wage a long and expensive legal battle against the United States and also our Tribe.² That legal battle cost our Tribe more than $1 million dollars and years of anguish and uncertainty. Since 1988, we have defended the Act, which has been a great benefit to all Indians of the reservation and to both tribes.

Section 2(a) of the Act is the provision regarding use of the timber revenues which had been placed in escrow. The resolution our Tribe enacted, as required by that section, authorized the use of Hoopa escrow monies as payments to the Yurok Tribe, and to individual Yuroks, as provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.³ All Yurok tribal members, and other Indians who qualified for the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Roll, executed claim waivers and received payments offered by the Act. But the Yurok Tribe did not waive, and so the Act, as applied, did not authorize payments to them. The Yurok Tribe is clearly prohibited by the Settlement Act from now receiving a portion of the Settlement Fund.⁴ Further, our resolution does not authorize use of Hoopa escrow monies for purposes not provided in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. The monies were set forth as a settlement offer to end the effects of the litigation leading up to the Act. The Yurok Tribe rejected that offer. The Hoopa Valley Tribe's agreement that the Act provide an offer of Hoopa monies to the Yurok Tribe was withdrawn by operation of law.

Over 98 percent of the balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund comes from the Hoopa escrow accounts and is derived from logging on Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation lands. Since passage of the general timber statutes in 1910, federal law has provided for payment of proceeds from logging on tribal lands to the tribe whose reservation was logged. These timber statutes govern the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund. The Settlement Act funds held in escrow were derived from timber cut on the Hoopa Valley Tribe's Reservation, timber that is only harvestable under the authority of the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 407. That statute declares that "the proceeds of the sale shall be used as determined by the governing bodies of the Tribes concerned and approved by the Secretary." It is clear that the Hoopa Valley Tribe is the only governing body concerned with the sale of timber on unallotted trust land of the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

Congress was thorough in developing the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act. The legislative history shows that Congress considered the history, aboriginal territory, demographics, and equity.⁵ Likewise, the courts, after 40 years of litigation have heard and determined every ⁴ The Secretary of the Interior's Report to Congress states that, "it is the position of the Department that the Yurok Tribe did not meet the waiver conditions of the Act and is therefore not entitled to the benefits enumerated within the Act." Report at 3. Their only opportunity to receive a settlement payment expired when they lost in the courts.

⁵ The Committee Report states: S. 2723, as reported by the Committee, "is a fair and equitable settlement of the dispute relating to the ownership and management of the Hoopa Valley Reservation The Committee intends to deal fairly with all the interests in the Reservation, and believes it has done so." S. Rep. 564, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. at 14 (1988). The Committee Report compared incomes from the Reservations and also noted:

[T]he Committee is acting out of concern that the Hoopas have intended to live on the reservation and that their government be accorded sufficient resources to provide the services necessary to sustain their habitation. Indeed, the majority of possible issue to be raised in regard to this piece of legislation. Yurok Tribe v. United States is over and upheld by the United States Supreme Court. We ask Congress now to respect those prior decisions and move forward. It is clear that to the extent money remaining in the Settlement Fund came from the Hoopa Valley Tribe's reservation, the Hoopa Valley Tribe is the only tribe entitled to those proceeds. The Hoopa Valley Tribal Council would be remiss in our duties to our tribal members if we did not today seek the return of these timber revenues derived exclusively from the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation.

The Interior Department's report to Congress pursuant to Section 14(c) of the Act is disappointing. Interior's chief recommendation appears to be that no additional federal funding be provided, despite the fact that Section 14(c) specifically requests "any supplemental funding proposals necessary to implement" the Act.⁶ Moreover, Interior recommends that it administer the Settlement Fund previously offered to the Yurok Tribe for the benefit of the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes. We have long and hard experience with such administration in the past, prior to passage of the Settlement Act. As our other witness will testify, Interior lacks the legal authority and competence to carry out such responsibilities fairly.

Further, if it is found that the Yurok Tribe has suffered injustices, which we believe it has along with all other tribes in Northern California, and that the Federal Government wants to address these injustices and fulfill its current economic development and other needs, we adamantly argue that such needs should be addressed, but they must be addressed with funding appropriated by Congress. In 1988 Congress passed this bipartisan bill to end over 30 years of protracted litigation that resulted in judicial decisions which threatened the existence the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and would have had far reaching ramifications throughout Indian Country.

The Hoopa Tribe was not unfeeling in 1988 about the plight of the Yurok people due to past wrongful actions of the United States and due also to the Yuroks' decision to litigate rather the Indians living on the combined reservation live on the "Square." The record shows that the Hoopa Valley Business Council is the only full-service local governmental organization on the combined reservation, and has been the major government service provider in the extremely isolated eastern half of Humboldt County.

than accept the Settlement Act's offer and move forward with effective tribal governance. We are not unfeeling now. The Hoopas, however, are not the cause of that plight and have been damaged by the United States' past actions and by the Yuroks' decision.

The Hoopa Tribe should not be forced to pay for such injustices and poor judgment. We want the Yurok Tribe to prosper as we want all tribes to prosper. The point, however, is clear - the injustices resulted from Federal Government actions. The Federal Government should compensate. Using the Settlement Fund remainder for such purposes forces the Hoopa Tribe to be liable for the Federal Government's actions and the poor judgment of the Yurok Tribe's decision to litigate. This would be unacceptable.

Based on our experience in reaching agreement in 1988, we believe that the issues now before Congress should be resolved through considered thought and hard work over some period of time - not necessarily years, but at least enough time to ground any new legislation on considered analysis and due diligence.

Re: Supplemental Testimony for the August 1, 2002, Oversight Hearing on the Interior Secretary's Report on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

Dear Senator Inouye:

On behalf of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, thank you for holding the August 1, 2002, hearing on the Interior Secretary's Report on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. We truly appreciate your time and dedication to this issue. The hearing was a good opportunity for interested parties to voice their views on the Secretary's Report, the Act, events since its enactment, and how we move forward from here.

I make detailed points in this letter to address issues raised in the hearing and ask that this letter along with the attached briefing papers and slides which were displayed during the hearing be admitted to the record as supplemental testimony. I would like to reiterate the opening point of my oral testimony. The Hoopa Tribe is grateful for your valiant efforts over these many years, and I want you to know that the Hoopa Tribe stands ready to work with you, the Committee, and the Yurok Tribe to move toward complete resolution of this complex matter. We believe that the Hoopa Tribe in the past and the present has acted with the utmost integrity, forthrightness and good faith toward the Yurok Tribe to resolve the issues resulting from the Yurok litigation. Our leaders have never broken a promise made to the Yurok Tribe and we plan to continue our good faith dealings so that together we can return to your Committee next Congress.

The following touches on specific issues discussed in the hearing.

Treatment of the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation

As you mentioned in your opening statement, the history of California tribes is a sad one, based on the United States' rejection of the treaties signed with the tribes, but not telling the tribes of this until forty-five years later. The Hoopa leaders signed such a treaty in April 1864. Although the treaty was not ratified, the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation was established by Executive Order in August 1864. Secret correspondence from the Interior Department advised not telling the Hoopa that their treaty was not ratified, stating that as long as the Hoopa believed they had an agreement they would be peaceful. For over 100 years the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation was recognized by the United States as the property of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

In 1891, via an Executive Order, the reservations of the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes were joined to abide by the 1864 Act of Congress authorizing only four reservations in California and to protect the 25,000 acre Yurok Reservation that was established in 1855, the validity of which was questioned in federal court cases in 1888 and 1889. The 1891 Executive Order joined the Yurok Reservation to the Hoopa Valley Reservation with a connecting strip of 33,168 acres which ran one mile wide on each side of the stretch of the Klamath River that flows between the two reservations (ultimately, this connecting strip became part of the Yurok Reservation). This joined reservation, the new Hoopa Valley Reservation, however, was administered, for many reasons, as two reservations with two separate tribes until the decisions in the Jesse Short cases began to detour the treatment of the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes away from mainstream federal Indian law.

The intent of the Settlement Act, in part, was to correct the confusion that arose over the rights of each tribe to their respective reservations and to rein the treatment of the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes back into the mainstream of federal Indian law. S. Rep. No. 564, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. 2 (1988). The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act essentially, and finally, honored the promise made by the United States to the Hoopa in 1864 when it originally established the Hoopa Valley Reservation. The Act vested rights in each of the tribes to their respective reservations.

In the hearing, you asked why the two reservations were treated so differently that one would end up decimated and one would remain primarily intact. I want to try to answer your question. The Yurok leadership presented a map showing only 3,000 of the original 58,168 acres remaining on the Yurok reservation. Between 1900 and 1934, Yurok Indians received 40 to 160 acre allotments of valuable redwood timber highly desired by local lumber companies and accessible by road. The Yuroks sold nearly all of their reservation lands by 1955. That is truly unfortunate.

The Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation, on the other hand, had none of the valued redwood timber and roads were inadequate until the 1930's when they were widened and upgraded. During the allotment era, the Hoopa people chose agricultural allotments for farms and livestock grazing rather than timberland. Hoopa timberlands matured and became accessible for harvest after the allotment era ended. The Tribe was not decimated by the gold rush, nor destroyed by the Catholic mission system. It remained intact, its culture and traditional ceremonies continually practiced since the beginning of time. The Hoopa Tribe has always been a cohesive community protective of its lands, the timber lands of which were not targeted until after redwood became scarce. This is the reason for the different treatment.

Clarifying Points Raised in the Yurok Tribe's Testimony

The Yurok Tribe's testimony and request to revisit the Settlement Act hinges on assertions that Congress was misled in 1888. The Hoopa Tribe does not believe this is true. Because we want, and have always wanted, the record to be complete and interested parties fully informed, we feel obligated to clarify and address some of the statements made in the Yurok Tribe's written testimony.

The following identifies and responds to statements in the written testimony submitted by Susan Masten, Chair of the Yurok Tribe, on August 1, 2002, that merit correction to ensure an accurate record. The text follows the pagination and paragraphs of the Chairperson's testimony.

- P. 2, Para. 1 Here, as well as at page 3, paragraph 3, Chairperson Masten asserts that most Yurok members live on or near their Reservation. "Near" is a relative term and, if very broadly defined, could make the Chairperson's statement correct. At best, however, the statement is misleading. The Yurok Tribe consists of a widely dispersed group. The Yurok Tribe's base roll consists of 2,976 persons who in 1991 selected Yurok membership under the Settlement Act. Of those, 401, or 14 percent, gave their home address as outside the State of California. An additional 992, or 33 percent, gave their home address as within California, but more than 50 miles away from the Yurok Reservation. Thus, about 47 percent of the members lived more than 50 miles from their Reservation. Since the Settlement Act, the Yurok Tribe has changed its membership standards to reduce the degree of Indian blood required for enrollment. It is unlikely that that change had the effect of increasing the portion of their tribal membership population within a radius of 50 miles of their Reservation. Unlike the dispersed members of the Yurok Tribe, the Hoopa tribal community is concentrated on the Hoopa Square.

- P. 2, Para. 3 The objectives of Pub. L. 100-580 were far more complex than simply “to achieve relative equity for both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe,” as Chairperson Masten asserts. Many “Indians of the Reservation” as defined in the Short cases demanded lump sum awards and opposed the organization of the Yurok Tribe. This Committee recognized that Hoopa tribal members “tended to live on the Reservation,” and that the Hoopa Valley Tribe was “the only full-service local governmental organization on the combined Reservation.” S. Rep. 564 at 15. The Committee did not propose an equal distribution of assets between the two tribes, noting that “the judgment of the Committee [is] that a functioning tribal government fulfilling the Congress’ and the Executive’s policy of self-determination merits a certain financial deference over a group of Indians which has previously elected not to have a functioning tribal government.” Id.
- P. 2, Para. 5 Chairperson Masten refers here and at page 6, paragraph 4, to the belief that “the Yuroks’ historic presence on the Square was minimized or ignored.” She believes that “the Square is part of the ancestral homelands of the Yurok people.” The evidence is to the contrary. For example, the final court opinion on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act stated: “Plaintiff Yuroks also argue . . . their tribe’s continuous occupancy and use of the joint reservation . . . Both as a matter of history and as a matter of law, the record does not support the Yuroks’ claim, by ‘immemorial occupancy,’ to Indian title to the Hoopa Valley itself, site of the Square.” Karuk Tribe of California, et al. v. United States, et al., 209 F.3d 1366, 1378-79 (Fed. Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 1402 (2001). That same court also noted: “Therefore, the Square now the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation was historically the homeland of the Hoopas. The Addition was the homeland of the Yuroks.” Id. at 1371. Furthermore, this Committee’s report noted that the chosen boundary line between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Reservations under the Settlement Act moved into the Yurok Reservation a tiny Yurok settlement formerly located on the Square: “Use of the Bissel-Smith survey for purposes of defining the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation results in the addition of lands to the Yurok Reservation in the upper reaches of the extension near the junction of the Klamath River with the Trinity River. The transition village known as Peekta Point, claimed by the Yurok Tribe, now apparently becomes part of the Yurok Reservation.” S. Rep. 564 at 18.
- P. 3, Para. 2 Chairperson Masten correctly notes that at the time of the Settlement Act “barely 400 Indians remained on what would become [the Yurok] Reservation.” The Short proceedings closely examined the residences of the “Indians of the Reservation;” few were found on the Extension.
- P. 3, Para. 3 While it is true that the Yurok Reservation straddles a river gorge, Chairperson Masten does not reveal that the downstream end of the Reservation is crossed by a major interstate highway, U.S. 101. That portion of the Yurok Reservation provides potentially lucrative tourist traffic. Chairperson Masten, in this paragraph also invokes an expansive use of “near” the Reservation when discussing the residences of Yurok Indians. This misleading use of language is discussed above on page 3, herein, where the actual residences of the Yurok tribal members are clarified.
- P. 3, Para. 4 It was never true that as many Yuroks as Hoopas were on the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation. As this Committee’s report noted, “the Committee is acting out of concern that the Hoopas have tended to live on the reservation and that their government be accorded sufficient resources to provide the services necessary to sustain their habitation." S. Rep. 564 at 15. Most of the Hoopa Valley Tribe still lives on the Reservation.

- P. 4, Para. 1 Chairperson Masten notes that "commercial fishing income, if any, went predominantly to" individual fishermen. That reflects a choice made by the Yurok Tribe. It is also true that some anadromous fish runs in the Klamath River basin have become depressed. The Hoopa Valley Tribe has fought hard to improve habitat and management conditions for fish. S. Rep. 564 at 14. We obtained extra authority by inclusion of Section 3406(b)(23) of Pub. L. 102-575, the Central Valley Project Improvement Act. The Hoopa Valley Tribe has aggressively litigated suits to increase Indian fish harvest. Regrettably, the Hoopa Valley Tribe's efforts to improve water flows and fish returns have not been fully successful, nor matched by an equal effort by the Yurok Tribe on the main stem of the Klamath River itself.
- P. 4, Para. 3 The acreage of tribal trust land on the Yurok Reservation is much less now than that on the Hoopa Valley Reservation. This is mostly a result of the sale of land by individual Yurok members who received allotments of tribal land in the 1890s, and subsequently sold them. Approximately 28,000 acres were allotted to and sold by Yurok Indians on the Yurok Reservation. The Hoopa Valley Tribe received nothing from the allotments or sales. The statement that the Hoopa Tribe received the 'timber rich Square' while the Yuroks received 'a narrow strip along the Klamath' is clearly a slanted representation of the facts. The Yuroks received their original reservation of 25,000 acres, established in 1855 and the connecting strip consisting of 33,168 acres that connected the Yurok Reservation to the Hoopa Reservation in 1891. This is not a "narrow strip," the Yurok Reservation is two miles wide and over forty miles long, totaling over 58,168 acres and encompassing the heart of the Klamath River basin from Weitchpec to the mouth of the Klamath River. As such, it is the second largest reservation in California next to Hoopa. This Reservation was once the most valuable "timber rich" portion of the joined reservations because it consisted of virgin redwood timberland. Douglas Fir that grows on the Square became targeted by loggers only after redwood became scarce. The Hoopa Tribe, however, did not benefit from the Yurok allotments, their sales or the harvesting of the redwood timber.
- P.4, Para. 4 The claim that timber income of the Square since 1988 has been $64,000,000 is utterly unsupported and completely wrong. Even gross revenues prior to expenses of logging and reforestation would not reach that figure.
- P. 5, Para. 2 It is misleading for Chairperson Masten to assert that the Yurok Tribe had "no lawyers, no lobbyists, and no historians" to gather information and present facts in 1988 concerning the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. Factions of the Yurok Tribe were well represented and presented hundreds of pages of testimony in a highly organized fashion. The key term in Chairperson Masten's statement is that the Yurok Tribe was "not formally organized." That belies the organization led by three major Yurok families, Quinn, Jones, and Williams, and represented by the two major law firms representing over 3,700 plaintiffs in the Short case: Faulkner, Sheehan & Wunsch and Helier, Ehrman, White & MacAuliffe. An additional major Williams family faction of Yurok Indians was represented by Richard B. Theirolf, Yurok plaintiffs' counsel in Puzz v. United States. Congress conducted four hearings on the bills that later became the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act and Yurok interests testified at every one and identified themselves as speaking for Yurok people. See Hearing Before the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, H.R. Serial No. 100-75, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1988); Hearing Before the Select Committee on Indian Affairs, Oversight Hearing on Hoopa-Yurok Indian Reservation, S. Hrg. 100-946, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1988); Hearing

Before the Select Committee on Indian Affairs, H. Hrg. 100-949, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1988); Hearing Before the Subcommittee on Administrative Law and Governmental Relations of the Committee of the Judiciary, Serial No. 77, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1988). That the Yurok Tribe's governing group had not been approved by the BIA does not mean Yurok interests were absent, not adequately represented in the hearings, or unorganized.

- P. 5, Para. 3 The assertion that "none of the traditional tribes of our area were organized before 1950" is simply wrong. In 1958, the Interior Department ruled that we had been politically recognized as a Hoopa Tribe by the United States as early as 1851 when a treaty was negotiated. Rights of Indians in the Hoopa Valley Reservation, California, 65 I.D. 59, M-36450, II Ops. Sol. Interior 1814 (Feb. 5, 1958). The Settlement Act itself notes that the Hoopa Valley Tribe was organized under a Constitution approved by the Secretary on November 20, 1933. See 25 U.S.C. Section 1300(b)(4). This Committee's report notes that after the reservations were combined in 1891, "Indians of the Square" later formally organized a tribe and tribal government as the Hoopa Valley Tribe." S. Rep. 564 at 7. Indeed it is clear that a Hoopa Tribal Council existed prior to 1933, particularly in 1916, during the allotment era. Short v. United States, 202 Ct. Cl. 870, 943-44 (1973) (Short I). It is simply false to assert that the Interior Department "assisted in organizing" the Hoopa Valley Tribe simply "for the purpose of selling timber." Also misleading is the omission of the fact that Yurok plaintiffs in the Short case adamantly opposed tribal organization and successfully sued to prevent the organizational efforts of the Interior Department following the initiative of Assistant Secretary Forrest Gerrard. See Short v. United States, 661 F.2d 150, 153 (Ct. Cl. 1981) (Short II).
- P. 6, Para. 2 Chairperson Masten decries the failure to use "referenda" about organization omitting that the suit by Yurok plaintiffs in Beaver v. Secretary of the Interior, Civ. No. 79-2925 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 11, 1980), involved precisely such a referendum. In that referendum, 1,909 Short plaintiffs voted against establishment of an interim Yurok governing committee and 65 in favor. See Short II, 661 F.2d at 153.
- P. 7, Para. 1 The fact statement not contested in Yurok Tribe v. United States merely said that "Yurok people were aboriginal residents of the Square." This is true of Yurok individuals, such as Chairperson Masten, herself, who resides on the Square because she is married to a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. That does not suggest that the Square was traditional territory for the Yurok Tribe. As noted above, the courts have consistently rejected the Yurok territorial claims except as to the "transition village," now part of the Yurok Reservation. See S. Rep. 564 at 18. Similarly, it is no surprise that "over 50% of the students at Hoopa High School were not members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe," as Chairperson Masten recalls. The Hoopa High School is a public school operated by the Klamath-Trinity Joint Unified School District. Many of its students are non-Indians, not members of any tribe.
- P. 7, Para. 5 It is true that little of the Yurok Reservation is now held in tribal trust status. This is primarily because the Yurok Tribe refused the Settlement Act's offer which would have conveyed hundreds or thousands of acres of Six Rivers National Forest land within the Yurok Reservation to the Yurok Tribe and would have expanded the Yurok Reservation to include additional acreage and buildings along U.S. Highway 101. The Act also provided appropriations for land acquisition and authority to acquire additional property for the Yurok Tribe in trust. These valuable lands were refused by 1992 and 1993 votes of the Yurok Interim Council.
- P. 8, Para. 3 The "outline of an economic development and land acquisition plan" evidently submitted to the Committee is long overdue. 25 U.S.C. Section 1300i-9 called for submission of a Yurok plan for economic self-sufficiency not later than two years after the date of enactment of the 1988 Act. The Settlement Act called for that plan to facilitate the rebuilding of a Yurok land base and homeland economy. That the plan has been submitted 12 years late is not a fault of the Hoopa Valley Tribe or the Committee's judgment in designing the Settlement Act in 1988.

P. 8, Para. 6 The Hoopa Valley Tribe did not understand the Committee's August 1, 2002, oversight hearing as one simply addressing the disposition of "the balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund." The Hoopa Valley Tribe has a strong interest in those funds since they are overwhelmingly derived from Hoopa escrow monies and the clear cutting of our Reservation. The Committee's review of the Secretary's report should include the other major, perhaps more valuable, benefits withheld from the Yurok membership by the decision of the Yurok Interim Council to reject settlement. As noted above, the proffered benefits included Six Rivers National Forest lands within the Yurok Reservation, the Yurok Experimental Forest land and buildings along Highway 101, $5,000,000 in appropriations for land acquisition, authority to take land into trust for the Yurok Tribe, and other organizational benefits.

P. 9, Para. 1 The balance of the Settlement Fund is not "held in the Yurok Trust Fund." Nor was "the key point of the cases" cited that the revenues belonged to the Yuroks. Indeed the opposite is true: the courts refused Yurok access to the funds, holding the funds did not belong to the Yuroks. As explained by the Short court:

[P]laintiffs have previously argued that they are entitled to the entire escrow fund. It is true that, prior to 1987, the plaintiffs claimed a right to the entire escrow fund. This Court rejected that claim in 1987. Short IV, 12 Cl. Ct. at 44.* As the law stood . . . in August 1991, the plaintiffs were not entitled to the escrow fund. The law remains the same today. [FN*] In Short IV, the Court held that plaintiffs were entitled to damages from the United States government, not to the escrow fund itself. 12 Cl. Ct. at 44.

Short VI, 28 Fed. Cl. 590, 593 (1993). Chairperson Masten believes she "should not have to re-argue what Yuroks won in the Short cases." But while the Short cases' one-Reservation theory provided the Yurok Tribe's only connection to the lands of the Square (prior to the Settlement Act), those cases themselves do not support the Yurok Tribe's claims, as illustrated by the ruling in Short VI. Short VI was affirmed on appeal, Short v. United States, 50 F.3d 994, 997, 1001 (Fed. Cir. 1995) (Short VII). The Short cases were, in any event, intentionally superseded by the Settlement Act itself. As this Committee noted, "to the extent there is such a conflict [with the law of the case in the Short cases], it is intended that this legislation will govern." S. Rep. 564 at 19. The governing provisions of the Settlement Act do not provide for payments from the Settlement Fund to groups or individuals who refused to halt litigation and enact claim waivers.

P. 9, Para. 2 The assertion that the Interior Department has advised the Committee that the Hoopa Valley Tribe received approximately $19,000,000 between 1974 and 1988, is unfounded. The chart entitled Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act Funding History, submitted with the written testimony of Assistant Secretary Neal McCaleb, makes no such claim.

P. 10, Para. 1 The assertion that Short plaintiffs received no damages for the years beyond 1974 is wrong. The opinion in Short IV devotes a section to plaintiffs' damages based on per capita distributions after 1974. It holds "Per capita distributions were made before and after 1974, but the plaintiffs were denied participation. Hence, they are entitled to recover.” Short IV, 12 Cl. Ct. 36, 41 (1987). The Short court emphatically did not rule that if revenues were distributed to one group, the other group was entitled to its fair share. Instead, Short IV held:

[P]laintiffs arguably were not benefited by tribal services that they were ineligible to receive because they were not enrolled Hoopas. . . . Just as an enrolled Hoopa could not claim a ‘share’ of monies used by the Hoopa Valley Tribe as a government, plaintiffs may not recover a portion of monies distributed to the Tribe. . . . To mandate that the Secretary distribute monies dollar-for-dollar between an organized tribal government and a group of individual Indians could hinder the Secretary’s implementation of the Congress’ and Executive’s policy of strengthening tribal governance and self-determination.

Short IV, 12 Cl. Ct. 36, 42. In other words, although revenues were distributed only to the Hoopa Valley Tribe throughout the period at issue in Short, and used for tribal governmental purposes, neither the plaintiffs nor the Yurok Tribe were entitled to a share of those revenues under the Short court rulings.

- P. 11, Para. 1 Chairperson Masten’s figures for timber revenues and amounts received by the Hoopa Valley Tribe are unsupported by evidence. The chart submitted with Assistant Secretary McCaleb’s written testimony shows total Reservation timber proceeds in 1974-79 of approximately $17,000,000 and in 1980-88 of approximately $15,300,000, for a total of $32,300,000. Most of that amount did not go to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.
- P. 12, Para. 1 The “conditional waiver” resolution enacted by the Yurok Interim Council could not rationally have been considered sufficient to meet the conditions of a valid waiver, as Chairperson Masten now contends. The resolution expressly permitted the Yurok Tribe to maintain its lawsuit against the United States. The Yurok Tribe proceeded to litigate vigorously until the final decision of the Supreme Court in 2001. To call that litigation campaign a “waiver of claims” would be to make a mockery of the language used by this Committee in the Settlement Act’s provisions and the Settlement Act’s purpose of inducing all tribes and groups to lay down their lawsuits and build a new community.
- P. 12, Para. 4 Chairperson Masten suggests that the Yurok Tribe’s action in 1996 led to the Hoopa Valley Tribe receiving some 2,600 acres of trust land. The truth is that Congress corrected a surveying error by Pub. L. 105-79 and 105-256 which restored to Hoopa ownership lands wrongfully omitted in 1876. The land lost to the Hoopa Valley Tribe in 1876, and restored in 1998, was never held by or subject to the claims of the Indians of the Addition or the Yurok Tribe. While the Yurok Tribe asked the Hoopa Valley Tribe to waive “all rights to said account” [the remaining Settlement Fund] as a condition for Yurok’s nonopposition to the proposed Hoopa legislation, the Hoopa Valley Tribe refused to do so or go beyond its support for settlement of the lawsuit. The extent of the Yurok Tribe’s participation in the 1997-98 congressional proceedings was the submission of a one-sentence letter indicating they did not oppose the Act. Despite the Hoopa Valley Tribe’s 1996 support for the Yurok Tribe’s settlement negotiations, the Yurok Tribe chose not to settle or to waive its claims then or subsequently.

The History from 1988 to the Present and How to Proceed

We spoke to you during the hearing about the hardships our Tribe has been forced to endure as a result of the United States’ actions toward our reservation and over forty years of litigation defending our rights. We are attaching the slides shown during the hearing that display the egregious timber mismanagement and environmental damage done to our Square. We trusted that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act brought an end to the long, destructive litigation and because of that we made a considered decision to waive our legal claims under the Act. Unfortunately, the Act did not end the litigation because the Yurok Tribe chose not to waive its future legal claims and continued litigating for another decade, imposing expense and burdens on the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

The Senate Committee did not act precipitously in 1988. It took into consideration the history of actions affecting our reservation and tribal government before 1988. Moreover, we fervently believe that the provisions of the Act cannot be ignored and that the history from 1988 until today cannot be forgotten as we move forward. The Act required a waiver of claims for a tribe to its benefits. The Yurok Tribe did not waive and, therefore, does not have a right to claim the benefits of the Act.

We support meeting the needs of the Yurok Tribe for economic development and assistance, but such needs arose from actions by the Federal Government -- not the Hoopa Valley Tribe. We cannot now move forward in a manner that will break the promises made in 1988 to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

We propose, as we did in the hearing, returning the timber monies to the place from which they were derived. They were derived from the Hoopa Square. They should be returned to the Hoopa Tribe. Although the history of Yurok Reservation is tragic, the Hoopa Valley Tribe should not be forced to pay for wrongs committed by the United States.

We have made every attempt to initiate negotiation with the Yurok Tribe and have actively sought to work with its leaders to resolve these issues. Our offer to divide the timber escrow funds equally with the Yurok Tribe is documented in the testimony of the Department of the Interior. The Hoopa Tribe made that offer even though under the Act the Yurok Tribe is not entitled to those funds. The Yurok Tribe rejected that offer outright and demanded all of the escrow funds.

The Hoopa Tribe is willing to negotiate a division of the escrow funds from the Hoopa Square that are part of the Act's undistributed benefits. We remain open to negotiation, as we are anxious for the return of our timber revenues. We want to be sure that you understand this, and ask that you reinforce this truth with Chairperson Masten.

We will work with the Yurok Tribe and look forward to continuing to work with you on this significant matter.

Very truly yours,

Clifford Lyle Marshall
Chairman

This map illustrates the roads that were built on the HVIR beginning in the 1940's thru 1980's. There are over 550 miles of linear roads on the HVIR. These roads are a major source of sediment production. The BIA maintenance of these roads is grossly inadequate, and virtually non-existent. The Tribe spends approximately $200,000 to $400,000 annually from tribal revenue to rehabilitate this road system.

This photo was taken on the HVIR, it is an example of the sedimentation problems associated with the poor BIA road systems construction standards and lack of maintenance.

This photo was taken in the 1970's, it is in the Pine Creek watershed on the HVR. This is very typical of the types of damage that occurred to watersheds across the HVR during the BIA era, this is the legacy that the BIA left behind. As you can see, the effects of BIA management were devastating to fisheries, water quality, hydrologic conditions, and basically all riparian organisms.

The BIA harvested approximately 33,000 acres of Tribal Lands beginning in the 1940's thru the late 1980's. The photos below illustrates the types of "clearcutting" management techniques that were practiced by the BIA. This type of harvesting was devastating to cultural resources, and created large tracts of land that the Tribe is now in the process of rehabilitating, through stand improvement projects.

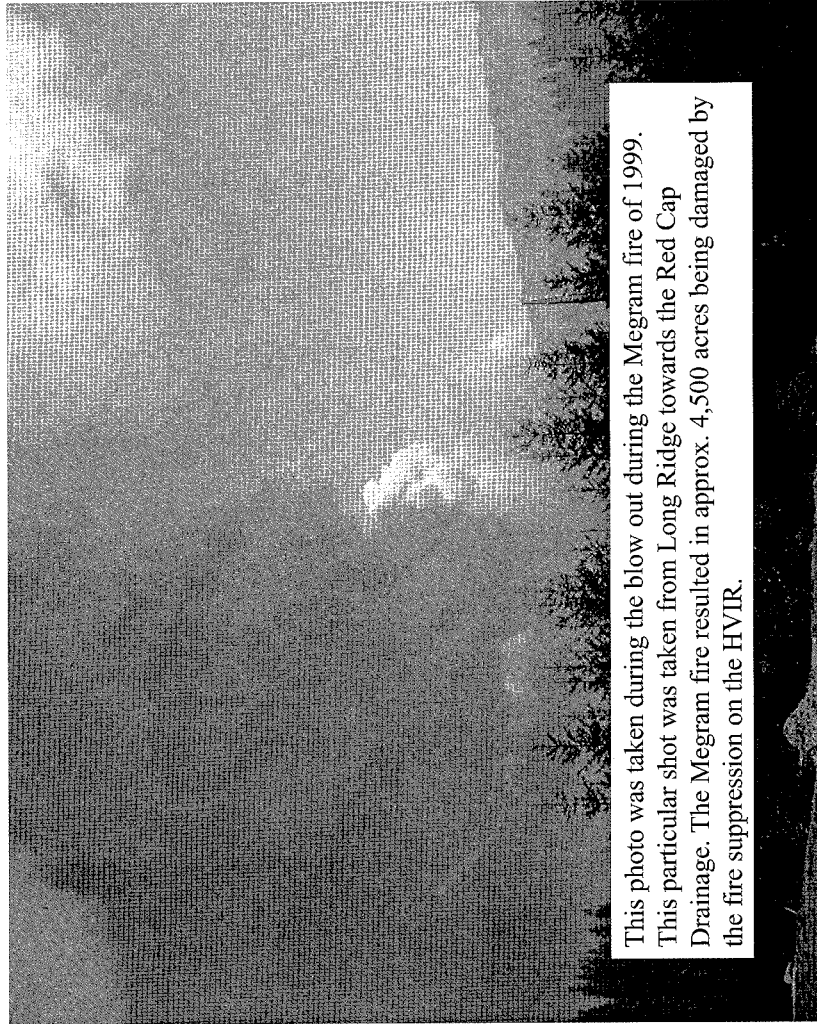

Photo of clearcut unit 10 years after harvest. Typical stand conditions of these types of clearcuts include invasion of brush species, under stocked timber component, and very unhealthy conditions, which are very susceptible to fire or insects devastations.

The photo is an example of timber stand improvement projects that the tribe is performing to improve the stand conditions and restore forest health. This treatment costs the tribe $450-550 per acre to treat. The tribe

Comparison of a Hand Thin-n-release versus un-treated fir tree; left to compete with other species. The treated trees respond very well as you can see.

This photo was taken during the blow out during the Megram fire of 1999. This particular shot was taken from Long Ridge towards the Red Cap Drainage. The Megram fire resulted in approx. 4,500 acres being damaged by the fire suppression on the HVIR.

This photo was taken after the Backburn during the Megram Fire. Prior to this photo, this plantation was fully stocked. These plantations were generally the only areas blackened on the HVIR during the Megram Fire.

The other 50% of the damage that occurred on the HVIR during the Megram Fire, was the creation of a "Contingency Fire Line". This photo illustrates the width of the line and the damage as a result of creating the line. The fire line was as wide as 400 feet in some areas, and was approximately 11 miles long.

HOOPA-YUOK SETTLEMENT FUND BEFORE AND AFTER
ENACTMENT OF PUB. L. 100-580 (Oct. 31, 1988)

The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund (HYSF) is a pool of Indian monies that Congress tapped to achieve the landmark Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (HYSA) in 1988. Because a portion of the settlement was rejected by the Yurok Tribe, the HYSF, now approximately $65 million, constitutes most (but not all) of the assets to be distributed by Congress in amending the HYSA pursuant to § 14(c) of that Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c).

The Secretary of the Interior collects Indian monies into trust accounts pursuant to a variety of statutes, enacted since the 1880s, which authorize the Secretary to conduct logging on Indian tribal land, lease tribal or individual lands held in trust status, or otherwise market Indian resources. About $86 million was available to Congress in fashioning the HYSA. Nearly all of the money came from specific "escrow funds" itemized in § 1(b)(1) of the HYSA. Of the seven Indian trust funds itemized as "escrow funds," over 98 percent of the funds were derived from logging on Hoopa Indian Reservation trust lands, the portion called the Hoopa Square, which was established as a reservation in 1864.¹

Section 4 of the HYSA, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-3, established the HYSF. It directed the Secretary to cause "all of the funds in the escrow funds, together with all accrued interest thereon, to be deposited into the Settlement Fund." Thereafter, the HYSA called for dividing the HYSF into three portions, based upon the number of qualified Indians in three categories: (1) Hoopa Valley tribal members; (2) Yurok tribal members; and (3) qualified Indians who chose the lump sum option and disaffiliated from the Hoopa and Yurok tribes. All three groups of qualified individual Indians received payments from the HYSF, in varying amounts, commencing in 1991.

Monies in the HYSF that were left over after making the payments to individual Indians became available to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe if those tribes agreed to surrender their possible legal claims against the United States relating to the HYSA, and halt litigation. The Hoopa Valley Tribe chose that option and received a portion of the HYSF, but the Yurok Tribe rejected the option and waged a long litigation battle which culminated in defeat in 2001. See Karuk Tribe of California, et al. v. Ammon, 209 F.3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 1402 (2001).

The Hoopa Valley Tribe brought its resources to bear in defending the HYSA, alongside the Interior Department, and was successful after an expensive ten-year lawsuit. The HYSA prohibits award of HYSF funds to individual Indians or tribes who refused the settlement. As a result, unexpended money remains in the HYSF. These funds should now be returned to the beneficial owners of the lands that were logged or leased to generate the original monies placed in the escrow accounts.

ABORIGINAL TITLE WITHIN THE HOOPA SQUARE HAS ALREADY BEEN RESOLVED

Issue: The Yurok Tribe argued¹ that it had substantial aboriginal territory in the Hoopa Valley Reservation ("the Square") in an attempt to influence any legislation arising out of the Department of the Interior's Section 14 (c) Report on the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act

Hoopa Position:

Congress and the courts have already resolved the issue of which tribe held aboriginal title where. There should be no further discussion to determine aboriginal title. It has already been determined.

The Yurok Tribe's statement about aboriginal title is incorrect.

- The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act partitioned the Hoopa Valley Reservation into the Square for the Hoopa Tribe and the Addition for the Yurok Tribe. The legislation was enacted to end decades of litigation between the United States and thousands of Indian individuals. Congress believed it dealt fairly with all the interests in the reservation and that the Act was a fair and equitable settlement of the dispute relating to the ownership and management of the Hoopa Valley Reservation². Aboriginal title of the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok Tribe was an important factor that Congress took into consideration when developing and enacting the Act. The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs reported:

"The aboriginal lands of the Yurok of Klamath Indians were generally centered on the drainage of the valley of the Klamath River from the Pacific Ocean to its fork with the Trinity River. These lands lay northward from that fork and westward to the Pacific. ..."

The aboriginal lands of the Hupa or Hoopa Indians were centered on the drainage of the Hoopa Valley of the Trinity River southward from its fork with the Klamath. ..."³

The land partitioned to the Hoopa Tribe is only that land centered on the Hoopa Valley of the Trinity River, South of the Klamath River confluence. The Senate Committee reported further that:

"... Although some scholars disagree, the U.S. Court of Claims noted in the case of Jessie Short et al. v. The United States (202 Ct. Cl. 870, 886):

"¹ The Indian tribes of Northern California were not organized or large entities; Indians resident on a particular river or fork were a "tribe". Tribal names were often applied inexactly and usually meant only a place of residence. To call an Indian a "Hoopa" or Trinity Indian meant he was an Indian resident in the valley of the Trinity called Hoopa. The names "Yurok" and "Karok" * * * also meant a place of residence."⁴

For this reason, Indians residing on the Square, and allotted land there, became Hoopa Tribe members regardless of their ancestral associations. The Committee reiterated its consideration of aboriginal title in developing the legislation. It stated:

⁴ Senate Report 100-564 at 3.

"As noted elsewhere in this report, the proposed partition is also consistent with the aboriginal territory of the two named tribes involved, particularly since the Hoopa Valley Tribe formally organized in way encompassing all Indian allotted land on the Square."⁵

- The Yurok Tribe along with the Karuk Tribe and individual Indians filed suit against the United States claiming that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act constituted a Fifth Amendment taking of their property interests. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit ruled that the plaintiffs did not possess compensable vested property interest in the reservation in 1988 and, thus, the partition of the reservation was not an unconstitutional taking.⁶ In ruling, the court considered aboriginal title of the tribes and stated:

"Historically, the Yuroks resided along the lower Klamath, in what became the addition, while the Karuks resided along the upper Klamath, an area outside any reservation . . . The Hoopa Valley Indians lived in the Hoopa Valley along the Trinity River. Therefore, the square – now the Hoopa Valley Reservation – was historically the homeland of the Hoopas. The addition was the homeland of the Yuroks. Weitchpec, on the square's northern boundary, was originally a Yurok settlement."⁷

The issue of aboriginal title has been resolved. Further discussion on this issue with regard to the Department of the Interior's Section 14 (c) Report or otherwise is misguided and irrelevant.

THE YUROK TRIBE DID NOT WAIVE ITS CLAIMS UNDER THE HOOPA-YUROK SETTLEMENT ACT

The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (HYSA) withheld benefits of the settlement from both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe unless each waived potential legal claims against the United States.¹

Issue: The Yuroks contend that Resolution 93-61 enacted by the Yurok Interim Council constituted a waiver under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act that should now be given effect.

Response: The Yurok Tribe did not meet the waiver requirements under the Act and is, therefore, not entitled to receive the Settlement Fund or other benefits under the Act. The Hoopa Valley Tribe provided the required waiver of claims in 1988 by executing and adopting a tribal resolution, which was published in the Federal Register. The Yurok Tribe, however, refused to waive its claims. Instead, it filed an unsuccessful lawsuit against the United States challenging the constitutionality of the Act. The Supreme Court ultimately denied certiorari of the case in 2001, 13 years after passage of the Act. The Yurok Tribe enacted what it called a "conditional waiver" in 1993, but this action did not meet the waiver requirements under the Act and cannot be given effect now.

- The Yurok Interim Council's Resolution 93-61 did not constitute a waiver. A 1994 decision of then Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs Ada Deer declared that Resolution No. 93-61 did not effectively waive any tribal claims as required in the Act, but, in fact, acted to preserve any such claims.² The Yurok Tribe failed to challenge this final agency decision before the time limitation for doing so expired.
- Resolution 93-61 has no effect. The Department of the Interior made this determination in 1994, as noted above, and it was conveyed to the Yurok Tribe in writing. The Yurok Tribe argues that the resolution was a conditional waiver that should now be given effect because the condition to its effectiveness has been removed. The Act, however, clearly required the tribe to stop its court challenges to the settlement in order to receive the benefits. A waiver of all potential legal claims conditioned on being allowed to pursue legal claims is illogical and certainly not within the intent of the HYSA.
- The Yurok Tribe wants a second chance. The Yurok Tribe made a fully considered choice between 1988 and 1993 to pursue legal claims rather than waive them. It litigated its claim all the way to the Supreme Court and lost. It is now returning to try to claim a share of the unexpended settlement funds - which was available to them up until 1993 if they settled. The Yuroks made a decision then; they cannot now, with the hindsight of their legal defeat, try to turn back time and start anew. Resolution 93-61 did not meet the waiver requirements under the Act in 1993 and it certainly cannot be given effect now. There is nothing left for the Yurok Tribe to waive; their claim is barred by final judgment.
- The Department of the Interior's position does not support the Yurok claim to the HYSA benefits. The Section 14 (c) Report clearly states that "it is the position of the Department that the Yurok Tribe did not meet the waiver conditions of the Act and is, therefore, not entitled to the benefits enumerated within the Act."³

HOOPA TRIBE'S 1996 SUPPORT FOR YUOK TRIBE'S PROPOSED SETTLEMENT HAS NO PRESENT DAY EFFECT

Issue: The Yurok Tribe has incorrectly stated that the Hoopa Valley Tribe agreed to waive all rights to the Settlement Fund and declared that those funds should be made available to the Yurok Tribe to obtain the Yurok Tribe's support for legislation to convey Forest Service lands in the southeast corner of the Square to the Hoopa Tribe.

Response: In 1996, the Hoopa Tribe did agree to support the Yurok Tribe's proposal to settle its lawsuit, Yurok Tribe v. United States, in a manner that included the Yurok Tribe obtaining the remainder of the Settlement Fund. Yet, the Hoopa Tribe did so only to obtain the commitment of the Yuroks to stop opposing the South Boundary Correction Act - - and it did so on the condition that the Yuroks obtain the Settlement Fund remainder only as part of a proposed settlement of its lawsuit. The Yurok Tribe, however, never negotiated a settlement.

The following summarizes the events that occurred in 1996--

- On July 29, 1996, then Yurok Chairwoman Long wrote to then Hoopa Tribe Chair Risling offering to support the South Boundary Correction Act¹ on the conditions that: the benefits of the Settlement Act be made available to the Yurok Tribe, and the Hoopa Tribe support the Yurok Settlement proposal in Yurok v. United States.
- At a meeting arranged by Senator Boxer's office, the Yurok Tribe provided a draft resolution for the Hoopa Tribe's approval. The draft stated, in part, that the Hoopa Tribe supported the Yuroks' efforts to settle Yurok v. United States and would support the Yuroks obtaining the Settlement Fund remainder. The draft resolution also contained a new provision not previously discussed stating that the "Hoopa Valley Tribe acknowledges the Yurok Tribe's right to the remaining Settlement Fund, and reaffirms that the Hoopa Valley Tribe has waived and does waive whatever all rights to said account it may have or had." The Hoopa Tribe refused to enact the proposed resolution and the new provision was never incorporated into Hoopa Valley Tribe documents.
- The Hoopa Tribe agreed to support the Yurok Tribe to obtain the Settlement Fund remainder if it was part of a settlement of its lawsuit, Yurok v. United States. The settlement, however, never occurred. Instead, the Yurok Tribe continued to litigate - - all the way to the Supreme Court and lost its challenge that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act constituted an unconstitutional taking.
- The Yurok Tribe asked the Hoopa Tribe to permanently waive its claims to the Settlement Fund remainder, but the Hoopa Tribe refused to do so.
- The Hoopa Tribe's agreement to support an unconsummated lawsuit settlement in 1996 has no effect in 2002. The conclusion in the Yurok v. United States lawsuit makes it impossible to consider further settlement of the suit.

The Hoopa Tribe's agreement in 1996 to support the Yurok Tribe in their efforts to negotiate a settlement in Yurok v. United States has no relevance for 2002 events and current discussions about the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act and the Department of the Interior's Section 14 (c) Report.

BRIEFING PAPER ON THE HOOPA-YUOK SETTLEMENT ACT

Hoopa Valley Tribe

June 21, 2002

The 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act of the 100th Congress (“HYSA” or “Act”)¹ divided federal reservation lands between two American Indian tribes in Northern California, the Hoopa Valley Indian Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. The Act was a landmark for California Indians, made necessary by decades of litigation between the United States and thousands of individuals. The courts held that prior to the Act that neither tribe had vested rights in the reservation. The Act partitioned the Hoopa Valley Reservation into the Square and the Extension and vested rights to the Square in the Hoopa Valley Tribe and rights to the Extension in the Yurok Tribe.

Section 14 of the Act² required the Secretary of Interior to report to Congress at the end of any litigation that arose out of the Act. The cases brought by the Yurok Tribe challenging the Act ended in March 2001 with a dismissal of the challengers’ claims and denial of certiorari by the United States Supreme Court.³ The Secretary’s Section 14(c) report went to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House on March 15, 2002.

The Secretary’s Report Recommends Continued Interior Department Administration of the HYSA Settlement Fund.

The Secretary’s March 15, 2002, report is very brief; it recommends (1) no additional Congressional funds; (2) the HYSA Settlement Fund be retained in trust status (as current law requires); (3) Interior administer the fund for the benefit of both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes; (4) Congress consult with the Interior Department and the Tribes to fashion a mechanism for administration of the HYSA Settlement Fund; and (5) Congress consider dividing the Settlement Fund into two separate permanent funds. The Secretary’s report notes that neither Tribe had a constitutionally-protected right to the money placed in the fund, and that, because of the waiver provisions of the HYSA, neither Tribe can force the United States to distribute further benefits to it.⁴

⁴ Karuk Tribe of California v. Ammon, 209 F.3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 532 U.S. 941 (2001).

The Hoopa Valley Tribe opposes the Interior Department's continued management of the fund and believes it should manage the fund itself in light of Interior's failure to manage trust funds for tribes and individuals.

2. The Settlement Fund Remainder Should Be Distributed Between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes Based on the Same Proportions as the Funds were Derived.

Section 2 of the Settlement Act,⁵ withheld the benefits of the settlement from both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes unless both tribes promptly waived potential legal claims against the United States. Claim waivers were essential to end the generations of litigation among the U.S. and the Indians that had established that the Indians were merely occupying federal property. (That litigation also produced over $50 million for the Indian plaintiffs in the Jessie Short cases⁶, and the Act did not disturb that judgment. The Act also authorized additional cash payments to various Indian individuals.)

The Hoopa Valley Tribe enacted the required waiver resolution in 1988. However, the Yurok Tribe refused to waive⁷ and sued the United States (and the Hoopa Valley Tribe) in the case recently won by the defendants. The Yurok suit left millions of dollars of money and other benefits unclaimed; these are still held by the United States as the Secretary's report concedes.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe believes that the unclaimed settlement funds should be paid to the Hoopa and Yurok Tribes in the same proportions as the funds were derived from resources of what became the Hoopa Valley Reservation and the Yurok Reservation. Federal law other than the HYSA supports the Tribe's position.

Over 98% of the unclaimed money came from logging on the Hoopa Valley Tribe's Reservation.⁸ Only 1.26303 percent of the funds were derived from resources of what became the Yurok Reservation under the Act. The logging that produced the funds is authorized by 25 U.S.C. Sec. 407, which requires that the money be used for the benefit of the Indians who are members of the tribe or tribes concerned. The only tribe concerned with the logging on the unallotted trust land of the Hoopa Valley Reservation is the Hoopa Valley Tribe and, therefore, the revenues from this logging (98.7% of the settlement fund) should be used to benefit the members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

⁸ Memorandum from Acting Director, Office of Tribal Services, to Superintendent, Northern California Agency, Re: Issuance of Per Capita Checks from the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act Funds (October 24, 1991).

Further, other federal laws concerning forestry practices on Indian lands acknowledge the trust responsibility toward Indian forest lands and require that Indian forest land activities undertaken by the Secretary not only use sound silvicultural and economic principles but also use sale proceeds to rehabilitate Indian forests.⁹ The Interior Department clear-cutting at Hoopa that produced nearly all of the money deposited in the HYSA settlement fund removed far more trees and vegetation than modern forestry standards permit. That logging left forest rehabilitation needs, washed-out roads, inadequate culverts, and extreme erosion and siltation problems for which the Hoopa Valley Tribe is now the responsible party. Silt in the Trinity River is a major obstacle to fisheries restoration efforts. The Hoopa Valley Tribe's timber harvest funds should be repatriated to the Hoopa Valley Tribe to address these local needs.

The Section 14(c) Report does not advocate weighing "equities." Any argument about equity in the ultimate distribution of the Settlement Fund is misguided. The equities were weighed in 1988 when developing the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. It would be unwise for Congress to reexamine the approach chosen in the Act to encourage settlement.

The Act, not equity, is the proper basis for distributing the unexpended funds. However, if it were the basis, equity is on the side of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The Yurok Tribe refused to enact the required waiver resolution in 1988 under the Act. Instead, the Yurok Tribe took its chances and litigated all the way to the Supreme Court and lost. It is now returning to try to claim a share of the unexpended funds - - which was available to them in 1988 if they waived their claims. Equity also sides with the Hoopa Valley Tribe since the source of 98.7% of the settlement funds is from Hoopa and the forest resource management needs created by the overharvest of tribal timber exists at Hoopa. Further, Hoopa not only abided by the Act but also played a lead role in the defense of the settlement.

3. Other Benefits Withheld from the Yurok Tribe due to its Refusal to Waive.

Although the Yurok failure to enact the waiver caused the other valuable benefits of the HYSA to be withheld, the Yurok Tribe is not seeking them. These benefits include national forest system lands within the Yurok Reservation, the improved properties located in the former Yurok Experimental Forest, the $5 million appropriated for land acquisition on and near the Yurok Reservation, and a plan for economic self-sufficiency.

TESTIMONY OF SUSAN MASTEN
CHAIR, THE YUROK TRIBE

BEFORE
ON INDIANS AFFAIRS

ON
THE DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR'S REPORT
ON THE HOOPA-YUROK SETTLEMENT ACT.

Good morning, I am Susan Masten, Chairperson of the Yurok Tribe. As you may be aware, the Yurok tribe is the largest Tribe in California with approximately 4528 members, of whom 2579 live on or near our Reservation.

Thank you for holding today's hearing. We consider it a most important hearing for the Yurok people. In particular, thank you, Chairman Inouye for taking this very significant step toward addressing our concerns for equity under the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Act); and that is to look at what has been achieved or not achieved in the 14 years since the Act was passed and asking what now may need to be done. We are deeply appreciative of your letter of October 4, 2001, in which you invited both Tribes to step beyond the existing Act and address current and future needs.

We know that this Committee, as is reflected in your Report on the Act in 1988, sought to achieve relative equity for both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe. During the course of our many meetings with members of congress and their staff, we have been asked why Congress should look at this matter again. After all, the local congressman introduced the bill; both California Senators supported the bill; as did the Administration.

The answers to these questions are clear. The Act has not achieved the full congressional intent and purpose and congress often has had to revisit issues when its full intent is not achieved. Additionally, we believe that the Departments of the Interior and Justice did not completely or adequately advise Congress of all relevant factors that were necessary to achieve equity.

The Departments had battled the Yuroks over numerous issues during the twenty-five year period preceding the Act. Because of lingering animosity over Short and fishing issues, it appears that Congress may have been misled. Congress did not have the full assistance from the Departments that you should have had. In reviewing the testimony and official communications from the Department, we were appalled that the Yuroks historic presence on the Square was minimized or ignored, and that the relative revenue and resource predictions for the Tribes were erroneous. Furthermore, We are also concerned about the significant disparity in actual land base that each Tribe received after the partition.

We understand that an unspoken but significant motivation for the Departments, was to keep Puzz, (which held that the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council did not have exclusive governing authority over the multi-tribal Reservation), from subjecting the United States to significant fiscal liability for mistreating so-called "minority" interest tribes or their descendants on multi-tribe Reservations. While the Committee correctly focused on the sovereignty implications of Puzz, the Departments focused on their liability - (reminiscent of Cobell, today). Also, and perhaps, more important, apparently the Department was not cognizant that the United States also had a trust responsibility to the Yurok Tribe and the Yurok people.

Can you imagine in this day and age, an Assistant Secretary addressing a serious dispute between tribes by describing one side as "a model Indian tribe" and then dismissing the other tribe as some sort of remnant whose members needed no more than 3000 acres, because barely 400 Indians remained on what would become their Reservation? This same Interior Department that told Congress that the income of the Tribes would be reasonably equivalent; the Hoopa Valley Tribe would earn somewhat over a million dollars a year from timber resources and that the Yuroks had just had a million dollar plus commercial fishing year.

Here are the real facts. Several thousand Yuroks lived on or near the reservation; "On or near " is the legal standard for a Tribe's service population. As the Committee is aware, the Yurok Reservation straddles a River Gorge and has a severe lack of infrastructure - lack of roads, telephones, electricity, and housing, as well as significant unemployment and poverty levels. Further, there is a desperate need for additional lands - particularly lands that can provide economic development opportunities, that provide adequate housing sites and that meet tribal subsistence and gathering needs.

The Department gave the impression that the predominantly Yurok Short plaintiffs had abandoned their traditional homelands; that they were spread out in over 36 states; that they were predominately absentee; perhaps non-Indian descendants and were just in the dispute for the dollars, was highly insulting to the Yurok people and a disservice to Congress. There were at least as many Yuroks on or near the Reservation as there were Hupas. And as noted above we still have significant land and resource needs that have not been met.

With respect to the relative income or resource equivalency status projected for the partitioned

Reservations, which was so critical to Congress' intent to provide an equitable partition; it is true over the past three decades there has been a couple of commercial fishing years that were viable and there was one such year shortly before the HYSA was enacted. True, but also very misleading. First of all, commercial fishing income, if any, went predominately to Hoopa and Yurok fishermen. Moreover, the fact was that in most years there was no commercial fishery whatsoever; in many years there were not enough fish for subsistence and ceremonial purposes.

Since the Act, in the Klamath River system, COHO salmon have been listed as an endangered species and some other Klamath River fish are threatened to be listed. Other Klamath River fish species have become extinct. The causes are multiple. However, recently the fish runs we depend on are subject to fragile water flows. Although we have the senior water right and a judicially recognized and protected fishing right, we have to fight for water with the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Reclamation almost every year to protect our "fishery" resource. In short, the average annual income of the Yurok Tribe from our salmon resource was and is non-existent. Since the Settlement Act, the Yurok Tribe has had a small income from timber revenues, averaging $600,000 annually.

With respect to land base, the Yurok Tribe's Reservation contains approximately 3000 acres of tribal trust lands and approximately 3000 acres of individual trust lands. The remainder of the 58,000 acre Reservation is held in fee title and mostly by commercial timber interests. The Hoopa Valley Reservation contains approximately 90,000 acres, 98% in tribal trust status.

With respect to the million plus dollars in timber revenues projected for the Hoopa Valley Tribe, written testimony of the Hoopa Tribal attorney in 1988, indicated that at the time of the Act, the annual timber revenue income from the Square was around 5 million dollars. In the 14 years since the Act, the timber revenue has been 64 million dollars. Additionally, the new Hoopa Valley Reservation has considerable mining resources (aggregate) that were known at the time of the Act. Our understanding is that aggregate mining currently produces a substantial income.

The point is, that the projected revenue comparison that should have been before the Committee was zero fisheries income and more than 5 million dollars in annual timber and other revenues from the Square, and not the nearly equivalent million or so dollars for each Tribe that the Committee Report relied upon. This inequality of lands, resources, and revenues continues today and significantly hinders the Yurok Tribe's ability to provide services to its people.

Unfortunately, the Yurok Tribe in 1988, unlike today, was unable to address this misleading provision of key information. The Yurok Tribe, although federally recognized since the mid-nineteenth century, was not formally organized and had no funds, no lawyers, no lobbyists, no historians, no anthropologists, etc. to gather data to analyze the bill to present facts and confront misinformation. Individual Indians did testify, albeit ineffectively, during field and D.C. hearings of relevant Committees. Some of these witnesses were exceedingly hostile to Congressman Bosco and his bill; some witnesses seemed to support the legislation; while others appeared to support aspects of the legislation such as the organizing provisions for the Yurok Tribe. Today, some of these witnesses are Yurok Tribal members, some took the buy-out option and others became members of near-by rancherias. However, they were not the Yurok Tribe.

In some ways the lack of formal organization of the Yurok Tribe seemed to have hamstrung the Yurok people. As noted in our chronology, attached hereto, none of the traditional tribes of our area were organized before 1950, and in spite of that fact, they managed to negotiate treaties, survive the gold rush and periodically go into federal court to protect their fishing and cultural rights. It was the Interior Department that assisted in organizing some Hoopa Valley residents as the Hoopa Valley Business Council for the purpose of selling timber. The Interior Department did not attempt to organize the other tribal Indians of the Reservation or near-by communities. At that time, the Interior Department was busy illegally terminating 110 other tribes in California at the height of the "termination era." There was no political or economic imperative to organize Indian tribes in our area. By the time the Short plaintiffs again went to Court to vindicate their rights, the Department had so polluted Indian relations on the Joint Reservation that any organizing efforts were tainted by distrust.

It is also our view that before the passage of the Settlement Act, the Interior Department did not do enough to pursue Yurok tribal input. There were things they could have done in the years following the Short decision. For example, they could have utilized the General Council of the Yurok Tribe which then existed, to address land and governance issues. The General Council was after all the entity that authorized the Yurok Tribe v. United States lawsuit and the "conditional" waiver. Lack of formal organization is not a complete bar to governing. We are aware that other Tribes in California are currently not formally organized and operate by General Council, including running 100 million-dollar plus casinos.

Other devices and approaches were also available other than partition. Where for example was the use of Reservation wide referenda; a tool widely used in restoration and recognition processes? Although Congressman Campbell inquired about the Wind River model in House hearings, the Department did not appear to have considered this pertinent model for multi-tribe Reservations where each Tribe retains its sovereignty and some territorial jurisdiction. There are other models that come readily to mind, that also did not appear to have been considered. There are many tribally consolidated Reservations in the northwest, such as the Quinault Indian Reservation where membership in 8 historic Indian tribes is the basis for membership in the Quinault Indian Nation. These approaches do not appear to have been considered. Did the advice Congress received have to be limited to partition?

It is important to acknowledge that from a Yurok perspective a positive result of the HYSA was that it helped develop the preliminary Yurok tribal Roll and provided us with limited funds to retain attorneys and others to assist us in the creation of this base Tribal Roll and the development of the Yurok Constitution. We also appreciate that the Senate Committee report recognized and acknowledged that the Tribe could organize under its inherent sovereignty.

Had we been a formally organized Tribe with even limited financial and technical resources and testified before you in 1988, we would have pointed out that while it is true that the Square (Hoopa Valley) is part of the homelands of the Hupa people, it is also true that the Square is part of the ancestral homelands of the Yurok people. Almost without fail throughout the testimony you received in 1988, the Square is described as Hoopa and the Addition is described as Yurok. As the Ancestral Map that you see here indicates, Yurok ancestral territory was quite large, encompassing all of the current Yurok reservation and 80% of what is now Redwood National Park as well as significant portions of the U.S. national Forest. You should note that a portion of the Square has always been part of Yurok ancestral territories. Yurok Villages existed in the Square and their sites have been verified by anthropologists. This fact is not a matter of dispute. The United States Department of Justice and the Hoopa valley Tribe in the Yurok Tribe v. United States litigation agreed in the joint fact statement that the Yuroks were always inhabitants of the Square. (Statement provided for the record) We are not claiming that we had Indian title to the whole Square, but that we have always been part of the Square. The Short cases made the same determination. (See attached summary of Short) At the time of your 1988 hearings, there were 400-500 Yuroks living on the Square. As one of the individual Yurok witnesses noted, over 50% of the students at Hoopa High School were not members of the Hoopa valley Tribe. Today, some 800 Yuroks live on the Square. The Square is included in one of the largest Yurok Council districts population-wise and the Yuroks living there elect one Yurok Council member from that District. I in fact live there.

We think that these different perspectives are important as we consider today's issues, however, it is critical for everyone to be aware that the Yurok Tribe has not, will not and is not asking Congress to take back anything from the Hoopa Valley Tribe that it received under the Act. We have no current legal interest in the land or resources the Hoopa Valley Tribe received from the Act

What we do want is the Committee to look at are the relative equities achieved under the Act understanding that the Yuroks have always been inhabitants of the Square and have never abandoned our connection to our territories, our culture, and our traditions.

We have already noted that there is a significant disparity in income, resources, land base, and infrastructure as a result of the Settlement Act. The data provided by the Interior Department today supports our positions. I need to acknowledge that Interior Department officials today treat the Yurok Tribe in a fairer manner than previously and for that we are appreciative.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe received a 90,000 acre timbered Reservation, of which 98% are held in tribal trust status. The Yurok Tribe received a Reservation whose boundaries contained 58,000 acres, however, only 3000 acres were in tribal trust and only a small portion of those acres contained harvestable timber. If you look at the Map that we have provided showing the two Reservations and trust and fee lands, you can visualize the extreme disparity.

We have already noted that the income projections for the respective Tribes were erroneous. Time has verified that the predictions of a bountiful or restored fishery have not come to pass and that the fishery infrequently produces any income. It is also a resource that we share with non-Indians, as well as the Hoopa. Hoopa timber resources, however, have produced substantial income exceeding the 1988 predictions, as reflected in the Interior Department's records.

In addition, as this Committee is aware from your recent joint hearing on telecommunications, infrastructure on the Yurok Reservation is dismal. This in part is due to the fact that it is difficult to develop a remote River Gorge. The lack of infrastructure is also due to the fact that the B.I.A.'s agency office was on the Square. The B.I.A. provided some infrastructure to the Square, but it totally neglected the "Addition".

In our response to Senator Inouye's letter of October 4, 2001, we have submitted an outline of an economic development and land acquisition plan to the Committee. (See attached Plan.) We have provided copies of our Proposed Plan to the Department of the Interior. The Plan is based in large part on the Settlement negotiations that occurred with the Department in 1996 and 1997.

What we would like to see as a result of this hearing is the creation of a Committee or a working group composed of Tribal, Administration, and Congressional representatives. We would also hope the Committee would be under the leadership of Chairman Inouye. This committee would have as its task the development of legislation that would provide to Yurok people the viable self-sufficient Reservation that was the original intent of this Committee in its effort to achieve equity.

If there are issues that the Hoopa Tribe wishes to address for the same end for its Reservation, we would support a separate working group for them.

Although as you can see our issues are broad based and focused on full equity for the Yurok Tribe, the immediate concern that prompted the Department's Report and this hearing is the balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund.

The Interior Department has said that neither Tribe is legally eligible to receive the balance of the Fund and that Congress should address the issue. Our view is simple, the financial equities and the actual distributions of timber revenues from 1974 to 1988 clearly demonstrate that the balance of the Fund should be made available to the Yurok Tribe as the Act clearly intended. In fact the monies are held in the Yurok Trust Fund. Arguments that the assets are from the Hoopa Reservation, or that most of the income came from the Square, are misplaced. These revenues belonged as much to the Yuroks of the Square and Yuroks of the Addition as they did to the Hupas of the Square. This is the key point of the cases we both lost in the Claims court, Short v. United States, Hoopa Valley Tribe v. United States, and Yurok v. United States. The point being that prior to 1988 the Hoopa Valley Reservation was a single Reservation intended for both Tribes and whose communal lands and income were vested in neither Tribe. Short also means that the Department could not favor one Tribe above the other in the distribution of the assets. These are pre-1988 monies; we should not have to re-argue what Yuroks won in the Short cases.

As noted in our Annotated Chronology, the Department of the Interior, after the final decision in Short I in 1974, ceased to distribute timber revenues exclusively to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe and began to reserve 70% of the timber revenues for the Yurok plaintiffs. The remaining 30% of the revenues were reserved for Hoopa in a separate escrow account. The proportionate allocation was based on the Hoopa Valley tribe having a population of 1500 members and the Short plaintiffs numbering 3800 persons. (See, Hoopa Valley Tribe v. United States.) For 14 years from the final decision in Short until the passage of the Settlement Act, the Department provided almost all of the 30% of the annual timber revenues reserved to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and retained the other 70% in an escrow account for the Yurok plaintiffs. I believe the Department has provided the Committee with the amount of $18,955,885, of the $19,000,000 reserved as the amount received by the Hoopas for that 14 year period.

When we have discussed the timber revenues from 1974 to 1988 with our colleagues on the Hoopa Tribal Council, they assert that 100% the revenues were theirs or should have been theirs. Legally, as the Committee knows, that was not the determination of the federal courts. No Indian tribe before 1988 had a vested right to the Square or its assets. The Hoopa Tribe even made this same argument in Yurok v. United States. As we have noted several times, both Hupas and Yuroks were aboriginal inhabitants of the Square. The 1876 and 1891 Executive Orders had created a single Reservation of some 155,000 acres in which neither Tribe had vested property rights.

In 1974, the federal courts had determined that the Secretary had since 1955 wrongfully made per capita revenue distributions to only Hoopa Tribal members and that the plaintiffs (mostly Yurok Indians) were entitled to damages against the United States. Damages were eventually provided to the plaintiffs for the years 1955 through 1974, but not for 1974 through 1988. So the point is that the legal status of the 1974 to 1988 timber revenues was, although neither Tribe had title to timber or a constitutional right to the revenues, if the revenues were distributed to one group, the other group was entitled its fair share. It did not matter what percentage of the timber proceeds came from the Square or came from the Addition, because according to the federal courts, neither revenues were vested in either Tribe.

The 1974 to 1988 revenues were distributed to the Hoopa Tribe and paid out in per capita payments. First under the 30% Hoopa share or $19,000,000 payments and second, under the transformation of the 70% Escrow Account (established for Yurok Plaintiffs) effected by the Settlement Act.

As you are aware, the Settlement Act created a Settlement Fund from the 70% Escrow account ($51,000,000), the small balance of the Hoopa 30% Escrow account, and some smaller joint Hoopa/Yurok, and Yurok escrow accounts, as well as a 10 million dollar federal appropriation. When the 1988 Base Membership Roll of the Yurok Tribe was established in 1991 and the 1991 Membership Roll of the Hoopa Valley Tribe was verified, the Settlement Account was proportionately allocated between the two Tribes based on tribal membership.

The Hoopa Valley Tribe was allocated 39.5% of the Settlement Fund or $34,006,551. Because the Hoopa Valley Tribe had executed a waiver of its rights to challenge the Act for any unconstitutional taking, (in 1988 and the waiver was published by the Department,) the Department provided these funds to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Technically because the Act had allowed the Hoopa Valley Tribe to draw down 3.5 million dollars a year from the Settlement Fund and provided for a $5000 per capita payment directly to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, the Tribe was provided with the adjusted balance of its 34 million dollar share. Some observers have confused the subtractions from the 1991 payments as adjustments for the 30% payments made from 1974 through 1988; they were not. The Act did not call for adjusting or accounting for these 30% payments and no adjustment was made.

In total, from the 1974 to 1988 timber revenues and interest of approximately $64 million, in 1991 the Hoopa Valley Tribe (39.5% of the then population) received a cumulative total of 53 million dollars or 84.2% of the total amount timber revenues of the period.

Also in 1991, the claims attorneys for the Short cases sued the United States to try to recover attorneys fees from the Settlement Account. Two other Yuroks and I intervened in the case as co-defendants, with the approval of the United States, to protect the Yurok share of the Settlement Account. With the active encouragement of the Justice Department attorneys, (they were very pleased to have us as co-defendants), we won the case and protected the Account.

After the withdrawal of Revenues for the Hoopas, the remainder of the Settlement Fund was then deposited in a Yurok Trust Account. Payments authorized by the Act to persons who enrolled in the Yurok Tribe or who took the buy-out were also deducted from the Yurok balance of the Fund. We should note as the Interior Departments data confirms, these payments to individuals exceeded the $10,000,000 federal contribution provided by the Act. In 1993, when all the withdrawals were accounted for in the Settlement Fund Statement, (See attachments to Interior March 2002 Report, the Yurok Trust Fund had a balance of $37,819,371.79. We have been provided with statements of the Account's balance every month since and our advice has been consistently solicited with respect to investments.

As you are aware in 1993 the Yurok Tribe, as instructed by its General Council brought suit against the United States for a taking claim under the Act. We lost this case in 2001 when the United States Supreme Court declined to review a 2-1 decision of the Federal Court of Appeals. We lost this case on the same basis that the Hoopa Tribe lost all of their pre 1988 cases; no part of the pre-1988 Hoopa Valley Reservation was vested to any Indian tribe; and none of us had title against the United States. We could argue that the case was unfair and historically blind, and that it is outrageous to use antiquated and colonial notions of Indian title in modern times, as the dissenting federal judge did. But it doesn't matter. We lost, as the Hoopa Tribe lost before us, and in this legal system the only appeal we have left is an appeal to equity and justice before the Congress; the Congress that has plenary power to fix these wrongs.

In 1993, we also adopted the "conditional waiver" which provided that our waiver was only effective if the Settlement Act was constitutional; which as I noted a few moments ago, the courts have determined that the Act is not unconstitutional. That determination should have been sufficient to meet the condition of our waiver. The Department of the Interior, however, determined that our waiver was not effective. Although we disagree, we have not challenged its determination in court and will not take up the Committee's time to debate it today.

The Department, as noted earlier, determined that the Hoopa waiver was effective and that the Hoopa Valley Tribe received what it was entitled to under the Act and it has no additional legal right to the Settlement Fund. In its view the Department cannot disperse the balance of the Settlement Act to either Tribe. The Department has now reported to Congress that you should, consistent with its recommendations, resolve the balance of the Fund issue. Among other things, the Department sees itself as the Administrator of the fund for both Tribes. It indicates that you should take into account funds already received and be cognizant to the purpose of the Settlement Account to provide two self-sufficient Reservations.

We think a better solution would be to permit the Yurok Tribe to administer its own trust fund with the balance of the Settlement Account. We of course, would be willing to submit a Utilization Plan for review and approval. Our Constitution, in any event, requires us to provide a Plan for the approval of our membership. As we have indicated a complete review of the record does indicate that the almost all of the trust lands, economic resources, and revenues of the joint Reservation that existed prior to 1988, when neither Tribe had more legal or historic rights to these resources than the other, have to date been provided almost exclusively to the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

A final point in these prepared remarks, in 1996, we struck a deal with the Hoopa Valley Tribe whereby we supported H.R. 2710 and they supported our settlement negotiation issues, specifically turning over the balance of the Settlement Fund to the Yurok Tribe. Apparently the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council now believes that its end of the deal ended with the collapse of the Settlement negotiations. We lived up to our end of the bargain and the Hoopa Valley Tribe received some 2600 acres of trust lands to "square" off the Square. Copies of both of our 1996 commitment letters have been provided with our written testimony.

I again thank the Committee for the opportunity to appear today and will be very happy to answer any questions you may have.

HEARING BEFORE THE SENATE INDIAN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

ANNOTATED CHRONOLOGY

Pre-Contact with Non-Indians: Yurok aboriginal territories, which were extensive, included the northern third of the Hoopa Valley (the square). Hoopa aboriginal territory included the southern two-thirds of the Square. "The Yurok people were aboriginal residents of the Square." Short I, 486 F.2d at 565, and Yurok v. United States, Uncontroverted Statement of Facts of the United States and the Hoopa Valley Tribe (hereinafter "Uncontroverted Facts").

1848: Discovery of gold in Northern California, followed by the "Gold Rush".

1850: California became the 31st State on September 4, 1851.

1851: Representatives of the U.S. negotiated a Treaty of Peace and Friendship with the Yuroks (Poh-lik), the Karuks (Pen-tsick) and the Hupa (Hoo-pah) whereby the tribes were to maintain peace with the U.S. and each other, and the U.S. was to provide a Reservation and related services. The treaty, like all other California Indian treaties, was not ratified.

1855: The President created the Klamath River Military Reserve by the Executive Order of November 16, 1855, under the authority of 10 Stat. 226, 238 (1853, as Amended (1855)). This Reserve which ran from the Pacific Ocean at the mouth of the Klamath River a mile on each side of the River for 20 miles, was a small portion of the aboriginal territories of the Yuroks.

1864: Indian Superintendent Wiley negotiated a "treaty" with Hupa and other tribes to establish a Reservation that encompassed the Square. This "treaty" was never submitted to Congress and was never ratified. Nevertheless "The Yuroks were beneficiaries of the 1864 Treaty (never ratified) that called for the creation of the Reservation." Short I, 486 F.2d at 565 and Uncontroverted Facts.

1876: The President by Executive Order established the Hoopa Valley Reservation, which encompasses the Square, and was established "in part for the Yuroks" Short I, 486 F.2d at 565 and Uncontroverted Facts.

1891: The President by Executive Order added the Klamath River Military Reserve and a connecting strip (Yurok Aboriginal territory) to the Hoopa Valley Reservation creating an enlarged single Reservation of approximately 155,000 acres. Short I, 486 F.2d at 567-68 and Uncontroverted Facts.

1892: Congress enacted the first of the allotment statutes (27 Stat. 52) affecting only the former Klamath reserve portion and the Addition of the Reservation. As with allotment elsewhere in Indian Country, allotment was a disaster along the Klamath River; vast quantities of redwood timber lands were removed from communal ownership and then from predominantly Yurok individual ownership. By the time allotment was ended under the reforms of the IRA in 1934, over 50,000 acres were removed from Indian ownership.

1950: With the assistance of the B.I.A., some Hupas organized as the Hoopa Valley Business Council. Prior to this time, from time immemorial, none of the Indian Tribes of the area had been formally organized previously.

1952: The Secretary of the Interior approved the Hoopa Valley Tribe's Constitution and by-laws.

1955: The B.I.A. approved timber sales for communally held timber in the Square and at the request of the Hoopa Valley Business Council, the B.I.A. begins disbursing per capita payments to individual Hoopa Valley tribal members.

1958: Solicitor's opinion provided that it is legal to distribute revenues from the unallotted trust timberlands of the Square in per capita payments to Hoopa Tribal members. (This opinion is determined to be erroneous in Short).

1963: A group of Indians, many of whom were Yuroks, sued the United States in Claims Court for damages alleging that they too were entitled to share in the communal timber sales in the Square. Jesse Short, et al v. United States.

1972: After extensive hearings and briefs, the Trial Commissioner found for the plaintiffs in Short v. United States. Per Capita payments to Hoopa Valley Tribal members continue uninterrupted.

1973: Mattz v. Arnett, 412 U.S. 481 (1973), was decided; it upheld the "Indian Country" status of the Reservation. The case involved the State of California trying to assert jurisdiction to regulate Indian fishers on the Klamath River; The court determined that California had no such jurisdiction.

1973: The U.S. Court of Claims in an extensive decision upheld the decision of the Trial Commissioner, and determines:

- *The Hoopa Valley Reservation established by executive orders in 1876 and 1891 was a single Indian Reservation
- *No Indian Tribe had a vested right to the Reservation or its assets
- *The Secretary of the Interior had wrongfully paid per capita revenue distributions to Hoopa Valley Tribal members to the exclusion of the plaintiffs

*Indians "connected" to the Reservation were entitled to damages from the United States.

1974: The U.S. Supreme Court declined to review Short v. United States. 486 F.2d 561, 202 Ct. Cl. 870 (1979) cert. denied, 416 U.S.961 (1974).

1974: The Short court embarks on the task of determining which of the 3800 plaintiffs are bona fide Indians of the Reservation and therefore individually entitled to damages. The U.S. and the Hoopa Valley Tribe vigorously contest the status of many of the plaintiffs and litigation continued for two decades. Eventually, in 1994 plaintiffs were certified and received Treasury checks for damages for the period of 1955 to 1974.

1974: The Secretary of the Interior established the 70% escrow account for timber revenues. "Upon the denial of certiorari to this court's decision . . . The Secretary of the Interior ceased to distribute revenues exclusively to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. On the theory that all of the 3,800 plaintiff's could eventually be entitled to 70 percent of the revenues and the 1,500 members of the Hoopa Valley tribe entitled to 30 percent, the Secretary put 70 percent of annual timber revenues in escrow pending a final decision on the number of plaintiffs in Short qualifying as Indians of the Reservation entitled to per capita distributions of timber revenues." Hoopa Valley Tribe v. United States, 596 F.2d 435, 440 (1979).

1979: The Hoopa Valley Tribe's suit for damages against the United States for breach of trust and otherwise for failing to protect the Hoopa Valley Reservation was decided adversely to the Tribe. Hoopa Valley Tribe v. United States.

1974 - 1987: The Hoopa Valley Tribe unsuccessfully urged Congress to over-turn Short.

1988: A federal district court decided in Puzz V. United States, No. C 80 2988 THE (D.N.Cal. 1988) that the Department of the Interior can no longer recognize the Hoopa Valley Tribe as the exclusive government of the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

1988: Congress enacted the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, which partitioned the then Hoopa Valley Reservation into: the Yurok Reservation, consisting of the former Klamath River Military Reserve and the Addition, and a new Hoopa Valley Reservation, consisting of the "Square." The Act also provided a system for enrolling eligible Indians in either the Yurok Tribe, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, or forfeiting membership in either Tribe (buy-out). The Short escrow accounts, plus some small Yurok escrow accounts, are transformed into a Hoopa Yurok Settlement Fund; and a ten million dollar federal contribution to the Settlement fund was authorized (and appropriated). The Yurok Tribe, subject to adopting a waiver of claims, was given several small land tracts, the authority to organize, and an authorization of not less than 5 million dollars for land purchases. The Settlement Fund was to be allocated to the Hoopa Tribe and the Yurok Tribe based on their relative enrolled populations at time of distribution. Both Tribes were to provide waivers of claims against any takings of lands or assets effected by the Act.

1988: The Hoopa valley Tribe by resolution waived any claims against the United States pursuant to the Act.

1991: In Heller, Ehrman v. Lujan, 992 F.2d 360 (D.C.Cir. 1993), the Short claims attorneys sued the Secretary of Interior for attorneys fees of up to 25% of the Settlement Fund. They asserted that the 70% escrow account was derived from their litigation efforts and that the Settlement Fund was in fact the escrow account. Yuroks, Jesse Short, Susan Masten, and Valerie Reed intervened as co-defendants with the consent of the United States to protect the Settlement Fund. The Yurok and United States defendants were successful when the federal court of appeals determined that the plaintiffs could not sue the United States for money damages in federal district court.

1991: The Department of the Interior allocated the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Fund based on Hoopa and Yurok tribal enrollments. From the $85,979,348.37 Fund balance, the Hoopa Tribe's share is determined to be 39.5% or $34,006,551.87. This amount has been provided to the Hoopa Valley Tribe. The balance of the Fund, after withdrawals for payments for buy-outs, and enrollments are made, was placed in a Yurok Tribe Trust Fund. The balance after the Hoopa withdrawals and the individual buy-out and enrollment (payment) withdrawals in 1991-93 in the Yurok Trust Account was $37,819,971.79. Each individual Yurok who received an enrollment check had to waive his/her rights to sue the United States for money damages for a unconstitutional taking under the Settlement Act.

1991 - Present: The Yurok Tribe has been provided monthly accountings on the Yurok Trust Fund and the Tribe's advice has been solicited on investments.

1992: The federal courts dismissed a constitutional challenge to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act brought by individual Yuroks finding that the Hoopa Valley Tribe was an indispensable party to the litigation and could not be joined without its consent. Shermoen v. United States, 182 F.2d 1312 (9th Cir.1992)

1993: A General Council meeting of the Yurok Tribe was convened and the Yurok Tribe authorized its attorneys to sue the United States under the 5th amendment's due process clause for a taking without adequate compensation. Yurok Tribe v. United States, No. 92 -CV- 173 (Fed. Cl.) was filed in federal Claims Court. The General Council also authorized a "conditional waiver" whereby the Yurok Tribe provided the statutorily required waiver, but only as long as the taking was constitutional. The Interim Council adopted the Conditional Waiver by Resolution 93-61 and submitted it to the Department of the Interior on November 24,

"To the extent which the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act is not violative of the rights of the Yurok tribe or its members under the Constitution of the United States, or has not effected a taking without just compensation of vested Tribal or individual rights within, or appertaining to the Hoopa valley reservation, the Yurok tribe hereby waives any claim which said Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act."

1993: The Hoopa Valley Tribe voluntarily intervened as a defendant in Yurok Tribe v. United States.

1993: The Yurok Tribe formally organized and adopted a Constitution under its inherent powers of self-governance. The Department of the Interior recognized the Constitution and the Yurok Tribal Council as the governing body of the Yurok Tribe.

1994: In an April 4, 1994 letter to Tribe, the Department of the Interior rejected the Yurok Tribe's "conditional" waiver.

1995: Upon the request of the Yurok Tribe of August 30, 1994, to reconsider its decision, the Department in a letter dated March 14, 1995 affirmed its rejection of the conditional waiver, but noted that the waiver had been received on a timely basis and could be amended. Assistant Secretary Deer urged negotiations instead of pursuing litigation.

1996: Various efforts to create Settlement negotiations stall until February 13, 1996 when the Department of Justice requested a settlement proposal with "reasonable expectations for settling this litigation" from the Yurok's counsel. The Yurok Tribe provided a settlement proposal. The Interior Secretary appointed a special negotiator and serious Settlement negotiations were undertaken. Justice notified the trial Judge that the Interior Department was seriously looking at the Yurok Tribe's Settlement proposal and Judge Margolis granted a six-month delay in the proceedings. Interior and Yurok negotiators tentatively agreed on concepts for settlement and the Yurok Tribe was to receive a counter-proposal from the United States.

1996: The Hoopa Valley Tribe sought an additional 2600 acres "boundary correction" to its Reservation in H.R. 2710; the Yurok Tribe opposed the bill and H.R.2710 stalled. The Yurok Tribal Council and the Hoopa Tribal Council met at Senator Boxer's San Francisco's offices at her request to try to resolve their positions on H.R.2710. The Yurok Tribe agreed to withdraw its opposition to H.R.2710 and the Hoopa Valley Tribe agreed to support Yurok positions in Settlement negotiations and specifically to support:

- *Providing Yurok the Trust Fund (the balance of the Settlement Fund to the Yurok Tribe
- *Providing a 2.5 million dollar land acquisition appropriation to the Yurok Tribe

*Providing section 2 C (2) (A) & (B) lands to the Yurok Tribe.

Hoopa Chairman Risling signed a commitment letter and the Yurok Tribe notified the Legislative Committees of its support of H.R. 2710. This bill passed and the Hoopa Valley Tribe received the additional 2,600 acres of trust lands.

1996: Hoopa Valley Chairman Sherman in a September 13, 1996 letter to the Yurok Chair confirmed former Hoopa Chairman Risling's commitment.

1997: The Department of Justice informed the Yurok Tribe in a November 11, 1997, letter that "no settlement offer will be forthcoming." Court proceedings activated.

1998: U.S. Court of Claims dismissed the Yurok Tribe's complaint because it determined that the Tribe had no vested property right as against the United States in the pre-1988 Hoopa Valley Reservation upon which to base a 5th amendment claim.

2000: U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit affirmed the Court of Claims in a 2 to 1 opinion.

2001: U.S. Supreme Court declined to review Yurok Tribe v. United States, 41 Fed Cl 468 (1998), 209 F. 3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000) cert. denied 121 S. Ct. 1402 (2001).

2001: Senator Inouye In an October 4, 2001 letter, anticipated the Interior Department's report, invited the Hoopa valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe to address the issue of the Settlement Fund Balance, and other matters such as land acquisitions, boundaries, resources, infra-structure relative to the Settlement Act.

2002: On March 15, 2002, the Interior Department filed its required report recommending that Congress address the disposition of the Settlement fund and allow the Department to administer the Fund for the benefit of the Tribes taking into account disbursements previously made, and the objective of achieving equity.

2002: Two meetings between the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council and the Yurok Tribal Council failed to reach agreement on the disposition of the Settlement fund balance. The Hoopa Chairman informed the Yurok Tribal Council that the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council believes that its 1996 commitment (e.g., to support turning over the balance of the Fund to the Yuroks) was only relevant while settlement negotiations were under way and did not survive the failure of 1996-1997 settlement negotiations.

Testimony of
Neal A. McCaleb
Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs before the Committee on Indian Affairs
United States Senate on the
Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act
August 1, 2002

Good morning. I am Neal McCaleb, and I serve as the Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs for the Department of the Interior. I am pleased to be here before you today to report on the status of events subsequent to the passage of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Settlement Act or Act) in 1988, Public Law 100-580, 25 U.S.C. section 1300i et seq., as amended. Earlier this year, the Department submitted its Report to Congress (Report) pursuant to section 14 of the Act (25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c)).

Background

Establishment of Reservations

As recognized in the legislative history of the Act, the attachments to the Report, and numerous other documents, the federal government set aside lands bisected by the Trinity and lower Klamath Rivers in the mid- to late-1800s, in accordance with statutes and executive orders, to establish what are known today as the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Indian Reservations. Based on an 1853 Act of Congress, President Pierce set aside the Klamath River Reservation by executive order in 1855. The reservation extended approximately 20 miles up the Klamath River from the Pacific Ocean and including lands one mile in width on either side of the river. Based on an 1864 Act of Congress and an 1864 proclamation by the Department, President Grant issued an executive order in 1876 which formally set aside the original Hoopa Valley Reservation, a 12-mile square reservation (the "Square") bisected by the Trinity River and extending upstream from the Klamath-Trinity River confluence.

Because of some confusion about the effect of the two separate congressional acts and concern regarding the status of the original Klamath River Reservation, President Harrison issued another executive order in 1891 forming the extended or "joint" Hoopa Valley Reservation. The extended reservation, termed the "1891 Reservation" in the Report, encompassed the original Hoopa Valley Reservation, the Klamath River Reservation, and an additional strip of land down the Klamath River from the Klamath-Trinity confluence which connected the two reservations ("connecting strip"). Pursuant to section 2 of the Settlement Act, Congress partitioned the extended reservation between the two tribes.

Legal claims to the Reservation

Prior to the Settlement Act, legal controversies arose over the ownership and management of the Square and its resources. Although the 1891 executive order joined the separate reservations into one, the Secretary had generally treated the respective sections of the reservations separately for administrative purposes. A 1958 Solicitor's opinion also supported this view. 62 I.D. 59, 2 Op. Sol. Int. 1814 (1958). In the 1950s and 1960s, the Secretary thus only distributed timber revenues generated from the Square to the Hoopa Valley Tribe and its members.

In 1963, Yurok and other Indians (eventually almost 3800 individuals) challenged this distribution, and the United States Court of Claims subsequently held that all Indians residing within the 1891 Reservation were "Indians of the Reservation" and were entitled to share equally in the timber proceeds generated from the Square. Short v. United States, 486 F.2d 561 (Ct. Cl. 1973) (per curiam), cert. denied, 416 U.S. 961 (1974). Following this decision, the Department began allocating the timber proceeds generated from the Square between the Yurok Tribe (70%) and the Hoopa Valley Tribe (30%). The 70/30 allocation was based upon the number of individual Indians occupying the Joint Reservation that identified themselves as members of either the Yurok Tribe or Hoopa Valley Tribe, respectively. Another lawsuit (Puzz) challenged the authority of the Hoopa Valley Business Council to manage the resources of the Square, among other claims. These and related lawsuits had profound impacts relating to tribal governance and self-determination, extensive natural resources that comprise valuable tribal trust assets, and the lives of thousands of Indians who resided on the Reservation.

1988 Settlement Act

In order to resolve longstanding litigation between the United States, Hoopa Valley Tribe, and Yurok and other Indians regarding the ownership and management of the Square, Congress passed the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act in 1988. The Act did not disturb the resolution of prior issues through the Short litigation; rather, the Act sought to settle disputed issues by recognizing and providing for the organization of the Yurok Tribe, by partitioning the 1891 Joint Reservation between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes, and by establishing a Settlement Fund primarily to distribute monies generated from the Joint Reservation's resources between the Tribes. The testimony below discusses relevant sections of the Act with respect to current issues.

Partition

Section 2 of the Act provided for the partition of the Joint Reservation. Upon meeting certain conditions in the Act, the Act recognized and established the Square as the Hoopa Valley Reservation, to be held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Hoopa Valley Tribe; and the Act recognized and established the original Klamath River Reservation and the connecting strip (the "extension") as the Yurok Reservation, to be held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Yurok Tribe.

In accordance with the conditions set in section 2(a), the Hoopa Valley Tribe passed Resolution No. 88-115 on November 28, 1988, waiving any claims against the United States arising from the Act and consenting to use of the funds identified in the Act as part of the Settlement Fund. The BIA published notice of the resolution in the Federal Register on December 7, 1988 (53 Fed. Reg. 49361). These actions had the effect of partitioning the joint reservation.

Settlement Fund

Section 4 of the Act established a Settlement Fund which placed the monies generated from the Joint Reservation into an escrow account for later equitable distribution between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes according to the provisions of the Act. The Act also authorized a $10 million federal contribution to the Settlement Fund, primarily to provide lump sum payments to any "Indian of the Reservation" who elected not to become a member of either Tribe.

As listed in section 1(b)(1) of the Act, the escrow funds placed in the Settlement Fund came from monies generated from the Joint Reservation and held in trust by the Secretary in seven separate accounts, including the Yurok 70% timber proceeds account and the Hoopa 30% timber proceeds account. The Secretary deposited the monies from these accounts into the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund upon enactment of the Act. The Settlement Fund's original balance was nearly $67 million. At the beginning of Fiscal Year 2002, the Fund contained over $61 million in principal and interest, even with previous distributions as described below. Appendix I to the Report provides relevant figures from the Fund.

Distribution of Settlement Fund

The Act sought to distribute the monies generated from the Joint Reservation and placed into the Settlement Fund on a fair and equitable basis between the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes. The Senate Committee Report briefly described what was then believed to be the rough distribution estimates for the Fund based on the settlement roll distribution ratios established in the Act: $23 million (roughly 1/3 of Fund) would go to the Hoopa Valley Tribe pursuant to section 4(c); a similar distribution to the Yurok Tribe under section 4(d), as described below, assuming roughly 50% of those on the settlement roll would accept Yurok tribal membership; and the remainder to the Yurok Tribe after individual payments discussed below. See S. Rep. No. 564, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. 20, 25 (1988).

Substantial distributions have already been made from the Settlement Fund in accordance with the Act. The Department disbursed to the Hoopa Valley Tribe just over $34 million between passage of the Act and April 1991, the total amount determined by the BIA to be the Tribe's share under section 4(c) of the Act. The Department also distributed $15,000 to each person on the settlement roll who elected not to become a member of either Tribe under section 6(d) of the Act. Approximately 708 persons chose the "lump sum payment" option for a total distribution for this purpose of approximately $10.6 million, exceeding the $10 million federal contribution authorized under the Act for this payment.

Section 4(d) of the Act provided for the Yurok Tribe's share of the Settlement Fund, similar to the determination of the Hoopa Valley Tribe's share under section 4(c). Section 7(a) further provided that the Yurok Tribe would receive the remaining monies in the Settlement Fund after distributions were made to individuals in accordance with the settlement/membership options in section 6 and to successful appellants left off the original settlement roll under section 5(d). Section 1(c)(4), however, conditioned the Hoopa Valley Tribe's and Yurok Tribe's receipt of these monies, requiring the Tribes to adopt a resolution waiving any claim against the United States arising from the Act. The Hoopa Valley Tribe adopted such a resolution but the Yurok Tribe did not.

In November 1993, the Yurok Tribe passed Resolution 93-61 which purported to waive its claims against the United States in accordance with section 2(c)(4). The Tribe, however, also brought suit alleging that the Act effected a constitutionally prohibited taking of its property rights, as described below. In effect, the Tribe sought to protect its rights under section 2 of the Act to its share of the Settlement Fund and other benefits while still litigating its claims as contemplated in section 14 of the Act. By letter dated April 4, 1994, the Department informed the Tribe that the Department did not consider the Tribe's "conditional waiver" to satisfy the requirements of the Act because the "waiver" acted to preserve, rather than waive, its claims.

Takings Litigation

Instead of similarly waiving its claims as the Hoopa Valley Tribe did, the Yurok Tribe--as well as the Karuk Tribe and individual Indians--brought suit against the United States alleging that the Act constituted a taking of their vested property rights in the lands and resources of the Hoopa Valley Reservation contrary to the 5th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. In general, the complaints argued that the 1864 Act authorizing Indian reservations in California or other Acts of Congress vested their ancestors with compensable rights in the Square. Alternatively, plaintiffs argued that their continuous occupation of the lands incorporated into the Reservation created compensable interests. Potential exposure to the U.S. Treasury was once estimated at close to $2 billion. This litigation began in the early 1990s and only recently ended.

The United States Court of Federal Claims and the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed with the positions of the Yurok Tribe and other plaintiffs. Karuk Tribe et al. v. United States et al., 41 Fed. Cl. 468 (Fed. Cl. 1998), aff'd, 209 F.3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000) (2-1 decision). The federal courts generally followed the reasoning provided in the Committee Reports to the bills ultimately enacted as the Settlement Act. See S. Rep. No. 564, supra, at 9-11; H.R. Rep. No. 938, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. 15-16 (1988). "Unless recognized as vested by some act of Congress, tribal rights of occupancy and enjoyment, whether established by executive order or statute, may be extinguished, abridged, or curtailed by the United States at any time without payment of just compensation." Karuk Tribe et al. v. United States et al., 41 Fed. Cl. at 471 (citing, inter alia, Tee-Hit-Ton Indians v. United States, 348 U.S. 272, 278-79 (1955) and Hynes v. Grimes Packing Co., 337 U.S. 86, 103-04 (1949)); see also 209 F.3d at 1374-76, 1380. The courts concluded that no Act of Congress established vested property rights in the plaintiffs or their ancestors to the Square; rather the statutes and executive orders creating the Reservation allowed permissive, not permanent, occupation. Thus, courts held the Act did not violate the Takings Clause.

Plaintiffs petitioned the U.S. Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari to review the lower court decisions. On March 26, 2001, the Court denied certiorari, thereby concluding this litigation. 532 U.S. 941 (2001).

Departmental Report

Section 14(c) of the Act provides that the Department shall submit to Congress a Report describing the final decision in any legal claim challenging the Act as effecting a taking of property rights contrary to the 5th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution or as otherwise providing inadequate compensation. The Supreme Court's denial of certiorari triggered this provision.

The Department solicited the views of the Hoopa Valley and Yurok Tribes regarding future actions of the Department with respect to the Settlement Fund and the Report required under the Act. The Report briefly describes issues both leading up to and subsequent to the Act, attaches the written positions of the Tribes, and provides recommendations of the Department for further action with respect to the Settlement Fund.

Hoopa Position

In July 2001, the Hoopa Valley Tribe submitted its proposed draft report for consideration by the Department. After describing the history of the disputes, the Settlement Act, and subsequent actions, the Hoopa Valley Tribe provided various recommendations and observations.

The Hoopa's submission noted that a separate lawsuit determined that only 1.26303 percent of the Settlement Fund monies were derived from the Yurok Reservation, with the remainder of the monies derived from the Hoopa Reservation. "The Hoopa Valley Tribe has continued to assert its right to a portion of the benefits offered to and rejected by the Yurok Tribe." Id. at 16. Prior to its July submission, the Tribe previously requested that the Department recommend "that the remaining funds from the Hoopa Square be returned to the Hoopa Valley Tribe." Id.

The Hoopa's submission ultimately suggested the following recommendations:

–that the "suspended benefits" under the Act—including the land transfer and land acquisition provisions for the Yurok Tribe and the remaining monies in the Settlement Fund—"be valued and divided equally between the two tribes";

–that the economic self-sufficiency plan for the Yurok Tribe be carried forward, including "any feasibility study concerning the cost of a road from U.S. Highway 101 to California Highway 96 . . . and other objectives of the self-sufficiency plan"; —that additional federal lands adjacent to or near the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Reservations be conveyed to and managed by the respective Tribes.

Yurok Position

In August 2001, counsel for the Yurok Tribe submitted the Tribe's positions and proposed draft report. The Yurok Tribe's submission similarly outlined the history of the dispute, other considerations, and its recommendations for the Department to consider. In general, the Yurok Tribe takes the position, among others, that its "conditional waiver" was valid and became effective upon the Supreme Court's denial of certiorari in the takings litigation.

The Yurok's submission discusses the Tribe's concerns with the process leading up to and ultimately resulting in passage of the Settlement Act. In the Tribe's view, the Act "nullified in large part the Short ruling" which allowed all "Indians of the Reservation" to share equally in the revenues and resources of the Joint Reservation. The Tribe, not formally organized at the time, "was not asked and did not participate in the legislative process" and had the Act "imposed on the Yuroks who . . . were left with a small fraction of their former land and resources." In its view, the Act divested the Yurok Tribe of its "communal ownership" in the Joint Reservation's lands and resources and "relegated the much larger" Tribe to a few thousand acres in trust along the Klamath River with a decimated fishery while granting to the Hoopa Valley Tribe nearly 90,000 acres of unallotted trust land and resources, including valuable timber resources.

With respect to the waiver issue, the Yurok's submission considers the Department's view, discussed above, as erroneous. The Tribe references a March 1995 letter from the Department in which the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs indicated that the Tribe could cure the "perceived deficiencies" with its "conditional waiver" by "subsequent tribal action or the final resolution of the Tribe's lawsuit in the U.S. Court of Federal Claims." The Tribe takes the position that it made a reasonable settlement offer and would have dismissed its claim with prejudice, but that the Department never meaningfully responded. Now, the Tribe considers the Supreme Court's denial of certiorari as the "final resolution" suggested as curing the waiver.

As support for its position, the Tribe states: "The text of the Act and the intent of Congress make clear that filing a constitutional claim and receiving the benefits of the Act are not mutually exclusive." The Tribe suggests that principles of statutory construction, including the canon that ambiguities be resolved in favor of tribes and that provisions within a statute should be read so as not to conflict or be inconsistent, requires a broader reading of the waiver provision in section 2(c)(4) in light of the Act's provision allowing a taking claim to be brought under section 14. The Tribe considers the Department's reading of the statute to be unfair and unjust. For these and other reasons, the Tribe is of the view that it is now entitled to its benefits under the Act.

Departmental View

Because the Yurok Tribe litigated its claims against the United States based on passage of the Act rather than waiving those claims, the Department is of the view that the Yurok Tribe did not meet the condition precedent established in section 2(c)(4) of the Act for the Tribe to receive its share of the Settlement Fund or other benefits. But, the Department is also of the view that the Hoopa Valley Tribe has already received its portion of the benefits under the Act and is not entitled to further distributions from the Settlement Fund under the provisions of the Act. Ultimately, this situation presents a quandary for the Department and for the Tribes, as we believe the Act did not contemplate such a result. The monies remaining in the Settlement Fund originated from the seven trust accounts which held revenues generated from the Joint Reservation. Thus, the monies remaining in the Settlement Fund should thus be distributed to one or both Tribes in some form. Moreover, the Department recognizes that substantial financial and economic needs currently exist within both Tribes and their respective reservations.

Given the current situation, the Report outlines five recommendations of the Department to address these issues:

First, no additional funds need to be added to the Settlement Fund to realize the purposes of the Act;

Second, remaining monies in the Settlement Fund should be retained in trust account status by the Department pending further considerations and not revert to the general fund of the U.S. Treasury;

Third, the Settlement Fund should be administered for the mutual benefit of both Tribes and their respective reservations, taking into consideration prior distributions to each Tribe from the Fund. It is our position that it would be inappropriate for the Department to make any general distribution from the Fund without further instruction from Congress;

Fourth, Congress should fashion a mechanism for the future administration of the Settlement Fund, in coordination with the Department and in consultation with the Tribes; and,

Fifth, Congress should consider the need for further legislation to establish a separate, permanent fund for each Tribe from the remaining balance of the Settlement Fund in order to address any issue regarding entitlement to the monies and to fulfill the intent of the Settlement Act in full.

This concludes my testimony. I would be happy to respond to any questions you may have.

ATTACHMENT TO THE TESTIMONY

Issues for Congress

The items below are issues identified by the Tribal Council. They are broken out by categories identified in Senator Inouye's letter to Chairperson Masten, October 4, 2001. These items reflect the fact that at the time of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, the Hoopa Tribe had a significant income base, infrastructure that met power, water and telecommunication needs, and economic and community infrastructure (e.g. hotel, gas station, recreational facilities, library etc.).

Disposition of the Settlement Fund

The Yurok Tribal Council has prepared a draft plan for disposition of the Settlement Fund. The plan recognizes the opportunity to address long-standing need for the Yurok Tribe. A highlight of this plan is the proposition that interest from the fund be utilized for various needs. The principle would remain untouched and grow each year.

Acquisition of Lands

This item is closely related to the clarification of boundaries item below. The Tribe currently lacks a cohesive land base sufficient to support subsistence and economic activities. Additionally, ceremonial and religious sensitive lands are a priority for the Tribe. The following list represents lands that the Tribe has identified that it would like to acquire:

1. All Federal Lands and facilities within Yurok Reservation boundaries including BLM, USFS, RNP and any other Federal lands;
2. Redwood National Park "dog leg" located at the north side of the current Reservation;
3. 55,000 acres owned by Simpson Timber Co. within current Reservation boundaries and as much land as possible beyond that within the Lower Klamath River Basin. Lands to be purchased or traded for USFS lands yet to be identified;
4. All USFS lands within the Blue Creek watershed. These lands to be managed as a Cultural district;
5. Lands, both within Simpson Timber Company and U.S. Forest Service, identified as a cultural district above Weitchpec, in Blue

Creek and Cappell watersheds. Management of these lands will be in accordance with cultural objectives and traditional values. No timber harvest activities will be conducted in these areas;

6. All USFS lands within Yurok Tribe ancestral territory. These lands to provide for timber harvest and subsistence activities. Tribal management will be at least as conservative as current management.

The above lands should be obtained through a land acquisition plan.

Clarification of Boundaries

The Yurok Tribe proposes that current Reservation boundaries be extended. While the amount of proposed land is based on the above, and acreage may be greater than acreage lost due to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act, more acreage is needed to accomplish Tribal objectives due to constraints the Tribe is willing to place on various management activities. Additionally, funds necessary to survey current and proposed reservation lands/boundaries need to be appropriated.

Amendments to other Federal Statutes

Federal statutes need to be clarified that provided for various access, vehicle included, by Tribal members for hunting, fishing, and gathering subsistence activities. It is essential that unfettered cultural access for these and other activities should be provided for. Access and resource use will be provided through sound management plans developed by the Tribe. This need includes:

1. Access to all RNP lands for subsistence activities. Access includes all coastal and other areas within Yurok ancestral territories;
2. Provisions that require the Park Service to recognize Tribal management plans;
3. Provisions that require the National Park Service to cooperatively manage Park lands within Yurok ancestral territories. The Park Service should be required to recognize Tribal co-management in all agreements developed with other agencies/organizations;
4. Provisions that recognize the Yurok Tribe's ocean fishing rights.

Protection of Fishery resources

The protection and restoration of fisheries resources in the Klamath River Basin has been and continues to be a priority of the Tribe. The Tribe has invested considerable resources in these activities. Adequate protection includes:

1. Legislative language that reaffirms the Tribe's interest and role in water and fisheries management within the Klamath River Basin, including the Trinity River;
2. Sufficient funding to support scientific research and restoration needs of the Tribe;
3. Legislative language that requires implementation of the ROD for the Trinity River.

Programs to address Infrastructure Needs

There is a tremendous infrastructure need for the Yurok Tribe. The following list represents those needs. Please note that there is much more need than identified here:

1. $ 40 million for Bald Hills road improvement;
2. $ 15 million for Highway 169 road improvement;
3. $ 11.25 million for electricity needs;
4. $ 9.5 million for telecommunication needs.

The Tribe has prepared a comprehensive list of infrastructure needs.

Economic Need

The Yurok Tribe has very little in place to address economic needs. Key here is the need to acquire properties for economic development purposes.

1. $ 30 million for economic development. These funds will go to priority areas for economic development
2. Specific properties necessary for economic development. These properties will be developed based upon an economic plan.

Dear Ms. Long:

The Hoopa Tribal Council has studied the proposals you presented in your July 29, 1996 letter and is supportive of them. Your proposals are as follows:

1. The Yurok portion of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund (approximately 47 million dollars) be made available to the Yurok tribe;
2. The 2.5 million dollars appropriated by Congress after passage of the Act for land purchase be made available to the Yurok tribe;
3. The National Forest System and Yurok Experimental Forest lands identified in sec. 2(c)(2)(A) and (B) of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act be made available to the Yurok tribe;
4. The Hoopa tribe will support the Yurok Settlement proposal in Yurok v. United States or, as an alternative, would agree not to oppose the Yurok settlement.

We pledge to proceed cooperatively with you on these issues in the new Congress. We appreciate your stated willingness to support enactment of H.R. 2710 at this time.

It is in the interests of both of our tribes to have a comprehensive settlement of the legal issues affecting our reservations, and we have so advised the court in Yurok Tribe v. United States case. As soon as your settlement proposal is available we would like to review its details with you.

Dear Ms. Long:

Since my election to succeed Dale Rising as Chairman of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, you and I have had the opportunity to speak on a number of occasions about continuing our commitment to building a constructive relationship between our Tribes. One issue that you have raised with me is support of the Hoopa Valley Tribe for the Yurok Tribe's efforts to settle the litigation in Yurok Tribe v. United States. The purpose of this letter is to assure you that the Hoopa Valley Tribe's pledge to proceed cooperatively with you on the issues in that litigation which the Tribe made in its letter of September 13, 1996, to you remains in effect. Proposed Amendments to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act Developed jointly by the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe in Formal Mediation

Title I. YUROK

Section A. Lands.

1. Notwithstanding any provision of law, there is hereby authorized from the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the $2,500,000 previously appropriated under Pub. L. 100-580 such amounts as may be necessary for use in conducting purchase, appraisals, surveys, and other requirements needed to acquire privately owned lands, excluding lands within the boundaries of the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

2. Within one year of enactment, the Secretaries of the Department of Interior and Agriculture shall identify 238,433 acres of federal and private lands and the Yurok Tribe and the United States shall from these lands mutually determine an adequate land base for the Yurok Tribe and shall transfer such land base, including the acquisition of private lands from willing owners, by land trade or purchase, to the Yurok Tribe and to adjust the Yurok Reservation boundaries to reflect such transfer. Such Reservation shall be identified from 67,564 acres of private lands, 155,210 acres of USFS lands, 300 acres of BLM, 13,647 acres of other lands and 1,712 acres of RNPS lands. Within the identified lands 46,080 acres shall be set aside as cultural districts protected from all management activities not consistent with the religious and ceremonial interests of the Yurok Tribe. The purposes of this subsection are to establish a land base for the Yurok Tribe that is economically viable for commercial timber harvest of approximately 11,000,000 board feet annually on a sustained yield basis, and to meet the subsistence and other cultural needs of the Yurok Tribe. All land acquired by trade or by direct transfer shall be held in trust.

3. As part of subsection A (2) above, there is hereby transferred to the Yurok tribe in trust all federal lands within the Yurok Reservation established under the Act that are now under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service, Forest Service and/or Bureau of Land Management. These lands are included in the acreage described in subsection 2, above.

4. The U.S. Court of Federal Claims is authorized to hear and determine all claims of the Yurok Indian Tribe and its members arising from the loss of lands from Indian ownership, sold, homesteaded or otherwise lost without the consent of the tribe, from the Klamath River Reservation or Connecting Strip. The statute of limitations is expressly waived.

Section B. Jurisdiction.

1. Notwithstanding Pub. L. 83-280, federal law enforcement and tribal court funds and programs shall be made available to the Yurok and Hoopa Valley Tribes on the same basis as they are available to tribes located in non-Pub. L. 83-280 States. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated not less than $1,000,000 annually for Yurok Tribal Court and law enforcement programs to be provided in the Department of Justice or Bureau of Indian Affairs budgets.

2. The authority of the Yurok Tribe over the territories as provided in the Constitution of the Yurok Tribe as of the date of enactment of this Act are ratified and confirmed on the same basis as such provisions of the Hoopa Valley Tribe's Constitution were ratified in Section 8 of Pub. L. 100-580, insofar as it relates to the jurisdiction of the Yurok Tribe over persons and lands within the boundaries of the Yurok Reservation.

3. The Secretaries of the Departments of Interior and Agriculture shall enter into stewardship agreements with the Yurok Tribe with respect to management of Klamath River Basin fisheries and water resources. Nothing herein shall be interpreted as providing the Yurok Tribe with any jurisdiction within the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

4. There is hereby granted co-management of all natural resources, sacred and cultural sites of the Yurok Tribe within its usual and accustomed places within Yurok aboriginal territories that are on lands remaining under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service, Forest Service and/or Bureau of Land management. Co-management shall be defined as joint decision making responsibility regarding subject resources requiring concurrence of the Tribe.

5. Congress of the United States
Washington, DC 20510

March 21, 2006

The Honorable David L. Bernhardt
Solicitor, Acting
U.S. Department of the Interior
1849 C Street, NW
Washington, DC 20240

Dear Mr. Bernhardt:

We are writing in regard to the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (P.L. 100-580) and the dispensation of monies remaining in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act Fund.

Since the Secretary of Interior's Report to Congress was issued in March 2002, there has been no agreement between the two tribes on how to dispense of the remaining Settlement Act funds. Various legislative proposals have been advanced, but none of these has gained traction in Congress.

We understand that in an effort to reach a judgment, recent discussions have been held between the Solicitor's Office and the individual tribes. However, given the historic stalemate between the tribes, and to further our understanding of the legal ramifications surrounding the distribution process, we are seeking clarification on several issues and request your response to the following:

- 1) Of the original balance of the Settlement Fund, what was determined to be the Yurok share? And, what is the total value of the Settlement Fund today?
- 2) Is it the Solicitor's opinion that Congressional action is required to establish a distribution process for the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund? Or, under the terms of the Act, does the Secretary continue to have the authority to make a determination on the status of the Fund?
- 3) Is it the Solicitor's opinion that the waiver provided for in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act of 1988 remains an exercisable option for the Yurok tribe? If so, what is the legal basis for this conclusion?

4) Is it the Solicitor's opinion that the Hoopa Valley tribe has legal claim to a portion of the remaining funds, including interest accrued, since the initial dispersal of funds to the Hoopa in 1988?

5) Should the Secretary reach a decision, without benefit of additional Congressional action, is legal recourse available to either tribe to challenge the decision?

Nearly two decades have passed since the enactment of the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. It was the intent of Congress to resolve the long-standing legal conflicts between these two tribes and to provide a mechanism for the equitable distribution of the trust funds set aside to benefit tribal members. In our opinion, a settlement needs to be reached and we welcome the Department of Interior's renewed participation at this time.

We look forward to your response to our inquiry and are available to answer any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

DIANNE FEINSTEIN U.S. Senator	BARBARA BOXER U.S. Senator	MIKE THOMPSON Member of Congress

THE ASSOCIATE DEPUTY SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR
WASHINGTON, DC 20240

JUL 19 2006

Honorable Clifford Lyle Marshall
Chairman, Hoopa Valley Tribe
P.O. Box 1348
Hoopa, California 95546

Dear Chairman Marshall:

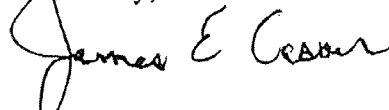

I write in response to your May 24, 2006, letter regarding the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund (Fund) remainder. I appreciate the importance of this issue to the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and I appreciate the opportunities we have had to discuss this issue, including most recently our meeting on May 18, 2006.

Your letter suggests that your congressional delegation will not take action on this matter pending a "new report" from the Department of the Interior (Department). As noted, our meeting confirmed that the Department does not intend to submit to Congress a new report or a replacement to the report submitted in March 2002 pursuant to section 14(c) of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. Rather, as explained previously, the Department's Office of the Solicitor has undertaken an analysis of whether the Department has authority to release the Fund remainder administratively at this point in time and, if so, to whom. The Department has striven to keep the delegation informed as our efforts have proceeded on this matter and has communicated the points above to your congressional delegation's staff subsequent to our meeting. Accordingly, members of Congress may, or may not, choose to take legislative action, an area entirely within their realm.

Your letter also states that the Hoopa Valley Tribe has not had "an adequate opportunity to provide meaningful input" into this process and requests that the Department's draft legal views on this matter be immediately released. Both this Office and the Office of the Solicitor have hosted several meetings with, and have entertained even more telephone and written correspondence from, you and other Tribal representatives on this issue over the past several months. These communications have proved most important in the Office of the Solicitor's efforts thus far and have also shown that the issues being considered are well understood.

Again, I appreciate the importance of this matter for the Hoopa Valley Tribe and your continued advocacy on behalf of the Tribe. I also hope that this matter can be resolved in an effective and timely manner so that all interested parties can reach closure.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Marshall and Chairperson Tripp:

As you both know too well, issues related to the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Act), including the establishment and distribution of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund (Fund), have a long history. Notwithstanding resolution of decades of disputed issues between the two Tribes and their members, one final issue remains to be resolved nearly twenty years after the Act's passage: distribution of funds still held by the Department pursuant to the Act.

At the request of both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and the Yurok Tribe, as well as the Tribes' Congressional delegation, the Department has evaluated whether authority still exists to distribute these funds administratively or whether the parties must resolve this matter through the courts or Congress. As explained below, the Department has concluded it can distribute these funds to the Yurok Tribe administratively, consistent with the provisions of the Act, if the Yurok Tribe were to submit a new waiver of claims as required by the Act.

Discussion and Analysis

Pursuant to the Act, the Department placed into escrow monies from seven Indian trust fund accounts, representing the proceeds still held in trust by the Department from the resources of the former Joint Reservation, to establish the Fund. The Act envisioned three specific distributions of the Fund: certain individual payments based on tribal membership elections; distribution to the Hoopa Valley Tribe of roughly one-third of the Fund; and distribution to the Yurok Tribe of roughly one-third of the Fund plus the Fund's remainder once the individual payments were made. The Hoopa Valley Tribe received over $34 million between 1988 and 1991, its designated share under the Act. The Department continues to hold the remaining balance, representing the share set aside in 1991 for the benefit of the Yurok Tribe (roughly $37 million), with interest accrued over the past fifteen years (now totaling roughly $90 million), as well as funds authorized by the Act specifically for the Yurok Tribe (roughly $3.1 million).

The Department has not previously distributed these remaining funds because the Yurok Tribe did not provide the waiver required by the Act in order to receive benefits.

Although purporting to waive claims, the Department interpreted the 1993 Yurok Resolution to preserve the Tribe's claims and thus failed to satisfy the Act's waiver requirement. The Yurok Tribe brought a takings claim, which led to the decision rendered in Karuk Tribe v. United States, 41 Fed. Cl. 468 (1998), aff'd, 209 F.3d 1366 (Fed. Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 532 U.S. 941 (2001).

Conclusion of this litigation triggered the Secretary's obligation under the Act to issue a Report to Congress. The Secretary, through the Bureau of Indian Affairs, submitted the Report in March 2002, and the Senate Indian Affairs Committee held a hearing in August 2002, in which the Department and both Tribes participated.

The Department stated then that, because the Yurok Tribe litigated its takings claims rather than waiving them, the Yurok did not meet the Act's condition precedent for the Yurok to receive its share of the Fund or other benefits. The Department stated also the Hoopa Valley Tribe had already received its benefits under the Act and was not entitled to further distributions. Based on those factors, the Department recommended, inter alia, that it would be inappropriate to make any general distribution without further instruction from Congress and that Congress should consider the need for additional legislation to address any issue regarding entitlement and to fulfill the Act's intent. Congress has not acted on the Department's recommendations to date.

The Yurok Tribe proposes now to provide the Department with a new, unconditional waiver of claims, a concept not proposed at the time of the 2002 hearing. The Hoopa Valley Tribe argues, in essence, that the Act's authority no longer remains viable and that the fully-litigated takings claim precludes the Yurok Tribe from providing a new waiver. After careful review of all the issues, the Department concludes that the Yurok Tribe can tender a new, unconditional waiver and that the Act provides authority to the Department to act administratively to distribute the remaining funds to the Yurok Tribe upon receipt of such a waiver if it otherwise comports with the waiver requirements under the Act.

Neither the Act nor its legislative history specifies whether proceeding under one provision would preclude the Yurok Tribe from proceeding under the other, i.e., whether bringing a takings claim and providing a waiver, actions both authorized under the Act, were mutually exclusive. For a number of reasons, we conclude that the takings litigation in Karuk Tribe did not result in the Yurok Tribe's forfeiting the benefits established in the Act. For example, the Act does not specify a time limitation, like the limited period to bring a constitutional challenge, on the ability to provide a waiver. Moreover, the Act's Yurok waiver provision is not limited solely to the constitutionally-based property claims authorized by the Act and litigated by the Yurok Tribe. The Act did not provide any contingent distribution arrangements if the Yurok Tribe chose to assert a takings claim. Fundamentally, nothing in the Act states that the Yurok Tribe's choosing to litigate its takings claim would cause the Tribe to forfeit the benefits under the Act.

Because Congress acted as a trustee in passing the Act and because the Hoopa Valley Tribe received already all of its benefits established by the Act, including its designated share of the Fund, we believe that any ambiguity in the Act should be read in favor of providing the other beneficiary, the Yurok Tribe, with its benefits established by the Act. Because the Act specifically authorized either Tribe to bring certain claims against the United States yet did not provide for an alternative distribution of benefits if a Tribe took such an action, we further believe that an interpretation of the Act that avoids penalizing a beneficiary for taking an authorized action and that avoids potentially troublesome constitutional issues to be necessary here. Thus, we believe that it would be unreasonable to read the Act to work a forfeiture of the Yurok's right to receive the monies from the Fund, and we decline to do so.

The Act authorized the Yurok Interim Council, an entity that ceased to exist in 1993, to provide the requisite waiver under the Act. The Act did not preclude or otherwise divest power from the permanent Yurok Council also to waive claims. Both the Department and the Hoopa Valley Tribe subsequently acknowledged that the Yurok Tribe, after the expiration of the Interim Council, could "cure" its conditional waiver. Therefore, we also conclude that the current governing body of the Yurok Tribe can submit the waiver required by the Act.

Conclusion

After careful consideration and for the reasons set out briefly above, the Department has concluded that, through administrative action, the remaining funds set aside pursuant to the Act can still be distributed to the Yurok Tribe. The better reading of the Act and the underlying circumstances is to allow the Yurok Tribe to submit an unconditional waiver and to authorize the Department to distribute these funds to the Yurok Tribe upon that proper submission.

The Department appreciates that the underlying issues of this dispute have been argued between the two Tribes (and others) for over 40 years. Both Tribes have argued vigorously and persuasively for their respective positions. In recognition of these divergent views, the Department will not take action on this final decision and distribute the remaining funds until thirty days after the Department has received an unconditional waiver from the Yurok Tribe consistent with the Act.

Ross O. Swimmer

Honorable Maria Tripp
Chairperson, Yurok Tribe

Dear Chairman Marshall and Chairperson Tripp:

I received today a copy of Yurok Tribal Council Resolution 07-037. This resolution provides an unconditional waiver of claims that the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

Upon review, I find that the resolution meets the requirements of the Act. Therefore, the Department intends to distribute to the Yurok Tribe the funds still held by the Department pursuant to the Act, including the remaining balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund, based on my decision letter dated March 1, 2007.

As noted in the March 1 letter, however, the Department will not distribute the remaining funds to the Yurok Tribe until thirty days after the Department received the waiver required by the Act. Accordingly, the Department will not take further action consistent with this decision until April 20, 2007.

Sincerely,

Ross O. Swinamer

Cynthia McKernan

43 C.F.R. § 4.318, which allows the Board to broadly exercise the inherent authority of the Secretary of the Interior “to correct a manifest injustice or error where appropriate.”¹ Manifest injustice results from the Special Trustee’s unlawful action and the subsequent denial of jurisdiction to hear this appeal, which could be referred by the Secretary, before tribal trust funds are released in contravention of the Trust Reform Act and the Hoopa Yurok Settlement Act.

2. Standard of Review

43 C.F.R. § 4.315 empowers the Board to reconsider its decisions in extraordinary circumstances upon receipt of a petition containing “a detailed statement of the reasons why reconsideration should be granted.” The Board has prudently exercised this authority and should do so in this instance. E.g., McKenzie v. Senior Awarding Official, 39 IBIA 242 (2004); Dragswolf, 31 IBIA 228 (1997). The Board’s very prompt ruling on this large and complex appeal overlooked facts concerning the unique and limited authority of the Special Trustee in this instance and evidence that jurisdiction exists under, at least, 25 C.F.R. pt. 1200 and the related provisions in 25 C.F.R. pt. 115, subpart G.² A manifest injustice will be done, and substantial

¹ “Manifest injustice” or “manifest error” arise when the injustice or the error is obvious. Estates of Walter George and Minnie Racehorse George Snipe, 9 IBIA 20, 22-23 (1981); cf. Estate of Glenn Begay, 16 IBIA 115, 118 (1988) (the Board has authority “in extraordinary cases” to correct manifest error); Chitina Traditional Village Council v. Juneau Area Director, Bureau of Indian Affairs, 31 IBIA 100 (1997) (using authority in 25 C.F. R. § 4.318 to “modify the Judge’s procedural disposition” of the case because Judge erroneously relied on a prior Board decision).

² The Board believes that Mr. Swimmer’s decisions “were made pursuant to the Department’s administration of the Settlement Act.” 44 IBIA at 212. This, however, is the ultimate issue on the merits: whether the Settlement Act authorizes the decisions by Mr. Swimmer. The Tribe believes the Settlement Act does not authorize Mr. Swimmer’s decisions. However, this issue on the merits has no bearing on whether the Board may exercise jurisdiction over this appeal of Mr. Swimmer’s egregious and very political decision that attempts to shrewdly deprive the Tribe of any forum for a remedy at law preventing distribution of the settlement funds. Griffith v. Acting Portland Area Dir., Bureau of Indian Affairs, 19 IBIA 14, 18 (1990) (Board serves to provide independent, objective administrative review of decisions of liability for the United States will arise, if the Board declines to exercise its jurisdiction here to prevent the unlawful distribution of tribal trust monies in violation of federal law.

3. Actions Governed by the Reform Act Are Within the Board's Jurisdiction.

Upon a thorough examination of the exhibits in support of the Tribe's notice of appeal, together with the three additional exhibits provided herewith,³ the Board should conclude that it has jurisdiction because this is a "dispute" within the meaning of 25 C.F.R. pt. 1200 and the related provisions in 25 C.F.R. pt. 115, subpart G. As explained below, the only lawful way the Special Trustee could have acted here is under the Reform Act, which makes his actions subject to review by the Board.

No Secretarial Order or special delegation of authority to the Special Trustee applies here. Secretarial Order No. 3259, Amendment No. 2 (Mar. 31, 2006) temporarily redelegated all functions of the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs to the Associate Deputy Secretary during the time that the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs position remained vacant. The Special Trustee's first decision, dated March 1, 2006, occurred just before Mr. Carl Artman was confirmed as Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs on March 5, 2007. The second decision, dated March 21, 2006, came after the Assistant Secretary position was filled. Because the Special Trustee did not purport to be exercising either the authority of the Associate Deputy Secretary or the authority of BIA officials and to prevent the politicization of those decisions). The Board's reference to the ultimate question on the merits is circular and cannot be used as grounds to deny jurisdiction.

³ The Tribe is aware that the Board ordinarily declines to consider arguments or evidence presented for the first time in a petition for reconsideration. Yeahquo v. Southern Plains Regional Dir., 36 IBIA 59 (2001). However, the new evidence could not have been presented at the time the notice of appeal was filed and was not relevant until the Board's decision. This is particularly true concerning Exhibit HVT-17 which was dated March 21, 2007 and received by the Tribe on March 30, 2007, after the notice of appeal was filed. This newly available evidence, which could not have been presented earlier, should be considered by the Board upon reconsideration.

the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs, any power the Special Trustee had must find its source in the Reform Act and the regulations implementing it.⁴ The Board notes that 25 C.F.R. pt. 1200 provides it with jurisdiction “over the denial of a tribe’s request under Section 202 of the . . . Reform Act.” 44 IBIA 211. Those regulations are the only legal basis for the Special Trustee’s involvement in this matter. It therefore follows that the Board has jurisdiction here. This appeal involves a disagreement over distribution of tribal trust funds which the Board has jurisdiction over to assure statutory compliance. 25 C.F.R. § 115.806; 25 C.F.R. pt. 1200.

The Trust Reform Act of 1994 has four parts. Subchapter I recognizes the United States’ trust responsibility and the duty to account for balances of Indian trust funds. Subchapter II authorizes withdrawals from trust funds programs. Subchapter III creates the position of Special Trustee for American Indians. Subchapter IV authorizes appropriations. The Special Trustee is a creation of Subchapter III of the Reform Act which has as its purposes: more effective management of and accountability for the Secretary’s trust responsibilities to tribes, the goal of reforming and carrying out in a unified manner the trust responsibilities, and overseeing certain reform efforts. See 25 U.S.C. § 4041-43. The Reform Act was adopted six years after the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act became law. Consequently, the Settlement Act makes no reference to the Reform Act and it gives no special authority to the Office of Special Trustee which was created after Congress passed the Settlement Act. This does not mean, however, that the Reform Act does not apply.

As a creature of the Reform Act, the authority and responsibilities of the Special Trustee are defined effective April 21, 2003, by Pt. 109, Chapter 11 of the Departmental Manual. “The Special Trustee exercises Secretarial direction and supervision, pursuant to the 1994 Reform Act, over of the Office of Special Trustee for American Indians.” Id. § 11.3 (emphasis added). The regulations adopted under the Trust Reform Act delineate that authority. The final rule adopting 25 C.F.R. Pt. 1200 notes that “the Act, for the first time, permits American Indian tribes to take tribal funds out of trust status with the Department of the Interior.” 61 Fed. Reg. 67931. The situation is analogous to Estate of Madeline Bone Wells, 15 IBIA 165 (1987). In Wells, the Agency Superintendent proposed to disperse funds from an IIM account for funeral expenses. However, after responsibility for Indian probate shifted to the Office of Hearings and Appeals, the IIM regulations were not updated. The Board held that the Superintendent’s authority had been superseded by the new authority vested in administrative law judges by the Departmental Manual and regulations. Similarly, here the Reform Act governs any action by the Special Trustee to allow withdrawal from old trust funds such as those contained in the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund.

Unlike the Secretary himself, or certain other Departmental officials, the Special Trustee only has authority to release Indian trust funds pursuant to Section 202 of the Reform Act and the related regulations.⁵ The Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act reserved to Congress the authority to further distribute resources such as this. 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c). The Reform Act had not yet become law in 1988, but it clearly now does apply to the Special Trustee. The fact that the

Special Trustee's letters make no reference to the procedures required by the Reform Act adds nothing to his authority or his ability to act outside the Reform Act. It is a glaring omission by the Special Trustee that does not provide grounds to deny jurisdiction over this appeal.⁶

Plainly, the Special Trustee plans to withdraw from trust status and distribute to the Yurok Tribe the balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund on April 20, 2007. This is a clear example of a withdrawal of funds within the meaning of 25 C.F.R. § 1200.11 and it approves the Yurok Tribe's application for that withdrawal as provided in its waiver. Plainly, there is a "disagreement" concerning the lawfulness of the Special Trustee's action and "any disagreements over application approvals are subject to the criteria and procedures in § 1200.21 of the regulation." 61 Fed. Reg. 67,932 (Dec. 26, 1996) (emphasis added).⁷ Because 25 C.F.R. § 1200.21 expressly authorizes appeal under 43 C.F.R. pt. 4, the Board has jurisdiction here. Because the Special Trustee's decision concerns trust funds held for tribes and individual Indians, and allows withdrawal of such funds and distributions to a tribe, it must conform to the requirements of the Reform Act. If this act walks like a duck, and quacks like a duck, it should be treated as a duck.

The Special Trustee's limited authority here is also illustrated by Mr. Swimmer's minimal involvement in the matter prior to March 1, 2007. Attached as Exhibits HVT-15 and HVT-16 are the Hoopa Valley Tribe's March 22, 2006 letter to the Special Trustee (requesting a report on the Settlement Fund balance and investment information pursuant to the Reform Act) and the June 13, 2006 reply of the Deputy Special Trustee-Field Operation stating the balance of the Fund as of June 12, 2006. The Special Trustee's duties regarding these funds are no different than those for other Indian trust funds. Neither Congress nor the Secretary of the Interior has bestowed upon the Special Trustee a wide-ranging power to dispose of Indian trust funds. The Special Trustee is bound by the regulations and these create jurisdiction in the Board in the event of exactly these types of disputes over the disposition of trust funds.

There is an appealable disagreement within the meaning of 25 C.F.R. § 1200.21 concerning the Special Trustee's rejection of the Hoopa Valley Tribe's proposal for the funds and his approval of the Yurok Tribe's request for 100% of the funds.

4. Reconsideration is in the Interest of Justice Because it Will Avoid a Likely Loss to the Judgment Fund.

The Board should stay the effectiveness of Mr. Swimmer's decisions pending consideration of the merits and thus protect the United States from damages liability in the Court of Federal Claims for misapplication of trust funds. The trust funds at issue are subject to particular statutory and judicial constraints. To the extent that the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act does not authorize this expenditure, as the Tribe's Statement of Reasons shows, the standards of Short v. United and particularly Short III, 719 F.2d 1133, 1135 (Fed. Cir. 1983) and Short VI, 28 Fed. Cl. 590, 595 (1993), aff'd, 50 F.3d 994 (Fed. Cir. 1995), must be met or the United States will be liable in damages for breach of trust.

In Short VI, plaintiffs pointed to a 1991 distribution to members of the Hoopa Valley Tribe in which other Indians of the Reservation outside the Tribe did not share. The Court noted that the plain language of Section 7 of the Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-6, permitted the distribution. The Court concluded that a reasonable construction of the Settlement Act is that it changed the nature of the government's discretion to make per capita distributions.

Under the law of this case, it is within the Secretary of the Interior's discretion to make per capita distributions. Short IV, 12 Cl. Ct. at 44. The Secretary's discretion is constrained by statutes including 25 U.S.C. §§ 117a and 407, and by the fiduciary relationship between the Secretary and the Indians. Short III, 719 F.2d at 1135-37. The Settlement Act is simply another statute that constrains the Secretary's discretion in new ways.

Short VI, 28 Fed. Cl. 590, 594-95. In other words, the Settlement Act requires that the Secretary use the Settlement Fund for the benefit of all "Indians of the Reservation," unless another provision of the Act expressly allows another use. No provision of the Settlement Act allows this use for the distribution violates the plain language of 25 U.S.C. §§ 1300i-1(c)(4); 1300i-8(d). Moreover, the Yurok Tribe is now poised to distribute the tribal trust funds held as part of the Settlement Fund to its members through a per capita payment. Exhibit HVT-17 (attached hereto). There can be no mistaking that the non sequitor request by the Yurok Chairwoman that all members "contact the Enrollment Department . . . to update their details" telegraphs a per capita distribution. Id. Such a payment of federal trust monies committed to the benefit of all "Indians of the Reservation" to only Yurok members plainly violates the fiduciary relationship.

The Settlement Act did not supersede the rulings in Short v. United States. See 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-2. Those rulings require that all Indians of the Reservation, including the Hoopa Valley Tribe, be benefited by expenditures from these funds unless the Act otherwise provides. Thus, if the Settlement Act does not authorize the distribution contemplated by the Special Trustee, and the funds are expended, the United States will be liable in the Court of Federal Claims.

The interests of justice should also compel the Board to act here because judicial review by a United States District Court of the administrative decisions here will likely not reach the merits of the action because of Fed. R. Civ. P. 19. A court might find that the Yurok Tribe has a legal interest in the litigation concerning the validity of the Special Trustee's decisions. Because the Yurok Tribe has sovereign immunity and cannot be compelled to participate in the litigation, the litigation would almost be certainly dismissed under Fed. R. Civ. P. 19. See, e.g., Shermoen v. United States, 982 F.2d 1312 (9th Cir. 1992), cert. denied, 509 U.S. 903 (1993) (suit by Indians and tribe challenging implementation of Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act dismissed because absent tribes were indispensable parties and were immune from suit).⁸

Importantly, the rigid limitations of Rule 19 do not restrict the Board. E.g., Citizen Potawatomi Nation v. Dir., Office of Self-Governance, 42 IBIA 160, 171 (2006); Citizen Band Potawatomi Indian Tribe of Oklahoma v. Anadarko Area Dir., 28 IBIA 169, 181, n. 16 (1995); Indians of the Quinault Reservation v. Comm'r of Indian Affairs, 9 IBIA 63, 65 ("it is not incumbent on administrative tribunals to invoke traditional rules of joinder and of necessary or indispensable parties. Nat'l Licorice Co. v. NLRB, 309 U.S. 350 (1960)"). Thus, it appears that the Board is the only tribunal which can review the Special Trustee's decision prior to its implementation. The Board can proceed to the merits of this appeal prior to exposing the United States to damages liability. The interests of justice require that these trust funds remain in their

Re: Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund, Trust Account No. J50-501-7193

Dear Mr. Swimmer:

We would like to receive a report on the balance and composition of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund. This account was established pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-3 which requires the Secretary to “invest and administer such fund as Indian trust funds pursuant to section 162a of this title.”

We recently received a report on the status of this Fund as part of the report of the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs made pursuant to 25 U.S.C. § 1300i-11(c) (Mar. 15, 2002). The page summarizing the status of the account is attached. A full copy of the report is available from the Department or can be downloaded from <http://www.schlosserlawfiles.com/Section14Report.pdf>.

The Assistant Secretary’s report declared that “the Fund dollars would be administered for the mutual benefit of both the Hoopa Valley and Yurok tribes.” Proper administration requires regular reporting. Please provide us detailed information concerning the current balance and investment of the Fund.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Marshall:

We have been asked to provide the balance of the Hoopa/Yurok Settlement Act to Tom Schlosser, attorney at law. However, we do not have a current resolution from the Tribe authorizing the Office of the Special Trustee for American Indians (OST) to release any information to Mr. Schlosser. We have been provided guidance by the Solicitor's office authorizing us to release the information directly to you.

The balance in the Hoopa/Yurok Settlement Act fund is $89,639,816.77 as of June 12, 2006.

Aiy-yu-kwee' ni kee-chew:

As you are aware, the Yurok Tribal Council received notification on Thursday March 1, 2007 from the Department of the Interior that the Yurok Tribe will receive the accrued funds from the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act; an estimated $90 million dollars. This represents the hard work of many people over many years.

In the notification letter received from the Department of the Interior (enclosed with this letter), through the Office of the Special Trustee, the Tribal Council must provide a waiver of claims to the Interior Department. As stated in the letter from the Department to the Tribe "...the Department will not take action on this final decision and distribute the remaining funds until thirty (30) days after the Department has received an unconditional waiver from the Yurok Tribe consistent with the Act".

The Tribal Council passed a resolution providing the Interior Department with the required unconditional waiver. On March 21, 2007 the Department of the Interior accepted the Tribe's waiver. You will see within the acceptance letter (also enclosed with this letter) that the thirty (30) day waiting period has begun and is expected to conclude on April 20, 2007. On that date management of the settlement fund will transfer from Interior to the Tribe.

Council anticipates that there may be legal challenges to the Department's decision during the thirty (30) day period and we are preparing a strategy accordingly. Once we reach the end of the thirty (30) day period we will have a much clearer picture of how to proceed and at that time, we will be reaching out to the membership again. In the meantime, we thank you for your patience.

On a final note, Council is concerned about the number of undeliverable addresses that we have on our register. Enclosed with this letter is a list of those undeliverable addresses and we ask that if you know anyone on this list, to please have them contact the Enrollment Department in Klamath to update their details.

Dear Chairman Marshall and Chairperson Tripp:

I received today a copy of Yurok Tribal Council Resolution 07-037. This resolution provides an unconditional waiver of claims that the Yurok Tribe may have against the United States arising out of the provisions of the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act.

Upon review, I find that the resolution meets the requirements of the Act. Therefore, the Department intends to distribute to the Yurok Tribe the funds still held by the Department pursuant to the Act, including the remaining balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund, based on my decision letter dated March 1, 2007.

As noted in the March 1 letter, however, the Department will not distribute the remaining funds to the Yurok Tribe until thirty days after the Department received the waiver required by the Act. Accordingly, the Department will not take further action consistent with this decision until April 20, 2007.

Sincerely,

Ross O. Swimmer

Dear Chairman Marshall:

On behalf of Secretary Kempthorne, this letter responds to your April 9, 2007 letter, in which you request the Secretary to refer decisions dated March 1 and March 21, 2007, by the Special Trustee for American Indians to the Interior Board of Indian Appeals (IBIA). These decisions addressed the distribution of funds still held by the Department of the Interior pursuant to the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Act).

As your letter notes, the IBIA has already dismissed the Tribe's appeal of this matter, concluding that it did not have jurisdiction. Hoopa Valley Tribe v. Special Trustee for American Indians, 44 IBIA 210 (March 27, 2007). Likewise, the Assistant Secretary – Indian Affairs, in a response dated April 6, 2007, declined to refer the matter to the IBIA as you requested pursuant to 43 C.F.R. § 4.2(b)(2)(ii).

As expressed in the Assistant Secretary's letter, the Special Trustee can render final decisions for the Department, and the March 1 and March 21 decisions present the final decision of the Department on this matter. Referral to the IBIA would not be appropriate.

As noted in the Special Trustee's decisions and the Assistant Secretary's response, the Department will not take further action consistent with those decisions before April 20, 2007. The 30-day period established in the Special Trustee's decisions provides the Tribe an opportunity to explore further steps that you may want to take. From the Department's perspective, however, the Special Trustee has rendered a final decision.

Dear Chairman Marshall and Chairperson Tripp:

As I noted in letters to you dated March 1 and March 21, 2007, the Department has concluded that authority exists under the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Act) to distribute funds still held by the Department pursuant to the Act to the Yurok Tribe upon the submission of a new waiver of claims by the Yurok Tribe. The Department has received the waiver of claims, adopted as Yurok Tribal Council Resolution 07-037, which meets the requirements of the Act.

As I also noted in those letters, the Department would not take further action consistent with this decision before April 20, 2007, in recognition of the fact that issues involving the Act have had a long and disputed history and that the Tribes may want to explore further steps in light of this decision. The Hoopa Valley Tribe filed a notice of appeal with the Interior Board of Indian Appeals (IBIA), but the IBIA dismissed the appeal because it did not have jurisdiction. Hoopa Valley Tribe v. Special Trustee for American Indians, 44 IBIA 210 (March 27, 2007). The Hoopa Valley Tribe recently filed a motion for reconsideration before the IBIA; the applicable regulations provide, however, that the initial IBIA decision is final and that petitions for reconsideration do not stay the effect or otherwise affect the finality of any decision unless so ordered by the IBIA. 43 CFR §§ 4.312, 4.315. Moreover, as confirmed in Assistant Secretary Artman's April 6, 2007 response to Chairman Marshall, the decision in this matter represents the final decision of the Department and thus is not subject to review by the IBIA.

Accordingly, nothing precludes me from taking action consistent with the decision in this matter. As of 10:00 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time today, I have advised the custodian of the account holding the remaining balance of the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund that its ownership has been transferred solely to the Yurok Tribe.

Dear Chairman Marshall:

On behalf of Secretary Kempthorne, I am writing to respond to your May 21, 2007 letter regarding the Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Fund (Fund). Your letter charges that “the personal views of a few unsupervised employees of the Department” have resulted in the proposed “mismanagement” of the Fund, the denial of the Hoopa Valley Tribe’s right to appeal Departmental decisions, and the theft of the Tribe’s “rightful inheritance.” I appreciate the long history and sensitivity of this matter for all involved, but respectfully disagree with your characterization of this matter and its effect on the Tribe.

The decisions by the Special Trustee at issue in your letter, dated March 1 and March 21, 2007, addressed the distribution of the remaining monies in the Fund, which the Department still held pursuant to the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act (Act), Pub. L. No. 100-580 (codified as amended at 25 U.S.C. § 1300i et seq.). After an extensive and thorough review of this matter by the Department, during which both the Hoopa Valley Tribe and Yurok Tribe asserted their respective views both in writing and in meetings with Departmental officials, the Department appropriately concluded that the Yurok Tribe could still submit a waiver as required by the Act for the Yurok Tribe to receive its benefits under the Act and, upon submission of such waiver, the Department could distribute the Fund to the Yurok Tribe pursuant to the Act.

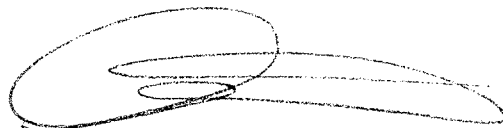

The takings claim brought by the Yurok Tribe in the Karuk Tribe v. United States litigation certainly clouded resolution of this matter, but litigation of that claim by no means resolved the matter in favor of the Hoopa Valley Tribe. Congress provided in the Act for the equitable division of the Fund between the two Tribes, the Hoopa Valley Tribe consented to the use of escrowed funds to be included for this purpose, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe long ago received its share as specified by the Act--a fact also noted by Assistant Secretary McCaleb in his 2002 testimony before the Senate Indian Affairs Committee. Nothing in the Act divests the Yurok Tribe of its share of the Fund or specifies that the Yurok Tribe would forfeit its benefits by bringing a takings claim. It would be inappropriate for the Department, as trustee, to ascribe a contrary intent to Congress. Based on these factors, the Department can hardly be accused of “robbing” the Tribe of its “rightful inheritance” by paying to the Yurok Tribe its share of the Fund.

The Department disagrees with your assertion that the Hoopa Valley Tribe was denied a right to appeal these decisions. The Tribe presented its case for over a year to all levels of the Department prior to the issuance of these decisions. The Department also stayed the effect of its March 21, 2007 decision for 30 days to provide the Tribe an opportunity to challenge them and even provided the Tribe early warning in the initial March 1, 2007 decision. Although the Interior Board of Indian Appeals (IBIA) immediately dismissed the Tribe's administrative appeal for lack of jurisdiction and although Departmental officials repeatedly informed the Tribe that the decisions were final and not subject to IBIA review, the Tribe submitted several requests to the Department seeking rehearing before the IBIA. The Department provided ample opportunity for the Tribe to challenge these decisions in federal court, where aggrieved parties usually challenge final agency actions. The Tribe itself chose not to take this approach, based on an interpretation of a Ninth Circuit decision with which the Department does not necessarily agree.

Finally, your letter states the Hoopa Valley Tribe will sue the United States in federal court and seek damages for a breach of trust "if the funds are withdrawn from the trust account." The Department already distributed the Fund to the Yurok Tribe in accordance with the expressed intent of the March decisions as well as the April 20, 2007 letter from the Special Trustee. Had the Hoopa Valley Tribe wanted to prevent this distribution, the Tribe should have sought to enjoin it in an appropriate forum. If the Tribe chooses now to bring suit in federal court asserting a breach of trust, then the United States will be obligated to assert all available defenses.

The Department appreciates the underlying issues of this dispute have been argued between the two Tribes (and others) for over 40 years. The decisions made by the Department comport fully with the 1988 Hoopa-Yurok Settlement Act. It is my hope that the Tribe and the Department can move forward and work constructively together in the future on other issues of importance to the Tribe.

Sincerely,

Carl J. Artman
Assistant Secretary – Indian Affairs
